Nation Faces Its Shortest Corn Crop In 20 Years

Meat Prices Soar As Feed Situation Grows Acute; Iowa Yield Hardest Hit

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Des Moines, Iowa, June 24.—Unless all signs fail, the Nation is headed toward one of the shortest corn crops in a score or more years.

That means that all types of meats, already scarce and skyrocketing, are going to be even more scarce and expensive in a few months, for prices of meat and corn are always tied together.

Some old-timers in the grain business here are even predicting a corn failure in Iowa—a development last experienced during the days of President Grover Cleveland.

The situation isn't confined to Iowa. This writer has just finished driving 1300 miles through the best growing sections of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. He has yet to see one field of corn of average development for this time of year.

Iowa Corn Rained Out

All east of the Mississippi corn is badly retarded. But in Iowa, the great corn State, there just isn't any. From Davenport to the Missouri, through the center of the greatest grain growing belt in the world, corn is drowned out. Even in the uplands in northern Iowa sudden cloudbursts, that have become almost daily occurrences somewhere in the State, have swept away section after section.

One hears estimates of anywhere from 30 to 70 per cent crops, but all are based on dryi weather coming soon, so farmers can get into their fields.

Last week an Iowa group, apprehensive of the situation, appealed to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to reimpose restrictions upon the purchase of corn by distillers and brewers. Such purchasers, they say, were largely responsible for the sudden rise of corn prices a week ago to above $2 a bushel for the first time in history.

Anderson's announcement yesterday of removal of restrictions upon the use of wheat—one of the last remaining war food controls—is thought here to have been born of this appeal. If distillers use wheat, of which there is an all-time record crop now being harvested—it may cut down their use of corn. But you can't make bourbon without corn.

The biggest buyers of old corn recently, according to reports here, have been distillers, brewers and corn belt farmers. The Des Moines Register last week mentioned that a number of local men, anticipating the shortage, had made a cleanup in the market.

Iowa agricultural leaders also are urging a complete reconsidera-

Wheat Harvest Expected To Set All-Time Record

The June 1 condition forcast by the Department of Agriculture put the prospective wheat crop for 1947 at an all-time high record of 1,409,000,000 bushels.

The Crop Reporting Board, however, did not forcast the corn crop because of "untimely weather" which it said has hampered spring plantings "over wide areas." In its March 20 report the board forcast a drop in corn production from 3,287,000,000 bushels to 3 billion bushels. On April 1 current stocks of corn were reported 29 per cent larger than those of a year before and larger than on any other April 1 on record.

Big 3 to Be Asked To Pick Committees From All Europe

Parley Starts Friday

London, June 24 (U.P.)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin intends to ask the Big Three Conference in Paris Friday to set up committees representing all European countries to start work on Secretary of State George C. Marshall's recovery plan, well-informed quarters reported today.

Bevin plans to fly to Paris late Thursday or early Friday for his Marshall plan talk with French Foreign Minister Bidault and Russian Foreign Minister Molotov. The cabinet will meet Thursday morning to go over last-minute plans.

Although it was officially denied in Paris it was known that Bidault and Bevin in their talk last week suggested setting up at once a commission to start work on the Marshall plan. There would be subcommittees on coal, steel and iron, transportation and food.

The agreement was denied because it was feared that Molotov would resent any such plan unless he helped draft it.

Increasing emphasis was being put on the necessity for reaching some sort of agreement on Germany if the Marshall plan is to succeed.

Bevin was understood to have raised the German question with United States Undersecretary of State William C. Clayton when the American economic aide talked with Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee and his cabinet advisers today.

It was understood that the British conferees strongly urged Clayton to attend the Big Three conference in Paris.

But a United Press Geneva dispatch said Clayton was expected to stick to his original schedule, and arrive in Geneva Friday to attend a United Nations Trade conference.

[The Chicago Sun Foreign Service said "it was stated" Clayton will go to Paris.]

Major Callahan's Successor Gets Free Hand in Filling Jobs

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Detective Chief Robert J. Barrett yesterday was appointed new superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department, effective July 1, by the District Commissioners.

Appointment of the 45-year-old veteran of arrest glories and recriminations was announced at noon yesterday by his sponsor, Commissioner John Russell Young. He succeeds Maj. Harvey G. Callahan, who retired because of failing health.

The not unexpected announcement followed receipt of a virtual deluge of written and telegraphed indorsements and a scattering of protests for his selection. Indorsements recounted his police record for courage and efficiency; protests recalled past allegations of brutalities to prisoners.

Free Hand on Vacancies

Inspector Barrett, his appointers said, has been given a free hand to fill vacancies down the line that follow his promotion. Barrett, himself, said he might choose them—a new captain, a new lieutenant and a new sergeant—by Friday.

District Commissioners Guy Mason and Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young concurred with Police Commissioner Young in his statement that selection of Barrett was unanimous after a careful study of the records.

The barrel-chested, bush-browed veteran of 22 years service with the local police issued a prepared statement upon telephoned confirmation of his appointment from Charles Stofberg, secretary to the District Commissioners.

Expresses Qualification

"I am deeply gratified at the confidence reposed in me by the District Commissioners in promoting me to the position of superintendent," his statement read.

"My aim is to merit that confidence and to give to the citizens of the District of Columbia a Police Department of which they will be proud.

"It is indeed an honor to be placed in the position occupied by my distinguished predecessor, Maj. Callahan, and I trust that I can maintain the department at the high level of efficiency established by him.

"I shall always remain—and I hope that all the men of the department likewise remain—deeply conscious of the fact that we are employes of the citizens of the District of Columbia and that our whole objective is to serve them

Cave-in Jams Traffic at DupontCircle

Connecticut ave., from Q to R sts. nw., which funnels 8000 cars an hour into the Dupont Circle bottleneck in rush hours, was closed to traffic yesterday.

Save-in of an old sewer at the Q st. intersection brought emergency closing orders from Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young at noon after advice that the supports under the paving might not bear the traffic load.

It also brought quick, emergency detour routs from Traffic Director G. orge E. Keneipp.

The one-block section of the much-traveled artery will be closed from "five days to a week," according to Sanitary Engineer Harold Kemp and Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst.

Meanwhile, traffic will go like this:

NORTHBOUND—Use 19th st. nw. as one-way from Dupont Circle to R st., west on R st. to Connecticut ave.

SOUTHBOUND—Use 20th st. nw. as one-way between Connecticut and Massachusetts aves.

Police sale barricades have been erected and added that the "rush hour confusion was tremendous" because it was necessary to confine the usual six lanes of traffic to two lanes on the detour routes. Four policemen detailed to cover the detour routes upped the traffic flow estimates. "It looked like eight million cars an hour—not 3000" they remarked.

Cave-in of the old sewer was discovered early yesterday by workmen who were installing a new syphon sewer 35 feet below Connecticut ave. and Q st. nw., to serve the Dupont Circle underpass.

The new sewer is 18 feet under the old one. Officials said the new construction weakened the old line, which will be abandoned before Connecticut ave. is reopened to traffic.

Stassen Suggests Talks With Stalin On Atom Control

American experts should confer "directly" with Generalissimo Stalin and the Russian Politburo, "on the whole subject of worldwide control of atomic energy," Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, suggests in the July issue of the Ladies' Home Journal.

The delegation should include "senatorial representatives of both the Republican and Democratic parties from the Atomic Energy Committee, a few scientific leaders, such as President Conant of Harvard, and members of our domestic Atomic Energy Commission," the former Minnesota Governor says.

"Such a conference would not supersede the United Nations' conferences or conclusions: it would rather be a frank, exploratory conference attempting to reach the foundation for agreement between our two countries

U. S. Studying Court Action As 168,000 Miners Strike; NLRB Pledges Law Support

Fair Administration Called for by Board In Wire to Regions; Talk With Truman

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday pledged its "single-minded purpose" to give the new Taft-Hartley labor law "the fairest and most efficient administration" within its power.

The promise came amid congressional admissions that the law might not stop a coal strike and proposals for additional legislation specifically drafted to retain the coal mines under Government seizure.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), co-author of the Smith-Connally Act, seizure provisions of which expire on Monday, offered a new bill extending this power. He referred to the possibility of a national coal strike within the next 10 days and said that the Taft-Hartley Act might not take care of such a situation.

Earlier Representative Hartley (R., N. J.) himself expressed "serious doubts" that the law could be used as a weapon against the United Mine Workers, because of the peculiar circumstances growing out of the expiration of Federal mine operation next Monday.

NLRB Statement

The NLRB promise of earnest enforcement attempts was issued after the three members, Chairman Paul E. Herzog, John M. Houston and James J. Reynolds, jr., conferred with President Truman for more than an hour.

The statement was in the form of a memorandum to the board staff, telegraphed to all regional offices. It read:

"Yesterday the Taft-Hartley bill was proposed legislation. Today it is the Labor-Management Relations Act, the law of the land. The people's representatives having spoken, the debate is over as far as this board is concerned.

"The Congress has not only decided the policy issues, but has entrusted the effectuation of much of the new policy to the National Labor Relations Board. All who ac-

Subpenaed But Immune Now

Rep. Buckley, Key Witness In May Case, Listed 'Missing'

By the United Press

Representative Charles A. Buckley (D., N. Y.), a key Government witness at the May-Garsson war fraud and bribery trial, was mysteriously "missing" last night.

Chief Prosecutor William A. Paisley told newsmen that thus far all his efforts to locate the New York Congressman have failed. He said Buckley was subpenaed last April 2 and had agreed with Government attorneys to appear on 24 hours' notice whenever needed.

Paisley said his best information is that Buckley left Washington Friday and is supposed to be somewhere in New York City. He said he obtained a New York telephone number from the Congressman's office but was told, on calling, that Buckley was "not known" there.

Other Calls Fruitless

He said he also called Buckley's New York office and home. His secretary refused to come to the telephone in his office, he said, and a maid at Buckley's home reported that the Congressman was "out of town for a few days."

Paisley said a wire has been sent to the United States marshal at New York asking him to locate Buckley and advise him that he is wanted here as a witness. The subpena cannot be enforced because Congressmen are immune from arrest while Congress is in session.

Eisenhower Accepts Post At Columbia

General Is Expected To Take Over Duties As President in 1948

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed yesterday that he will step down as Army Chief of Staff early next year to become president of Columbia University.

Announcement of his appointment was made simultaneously by the board of trustees of the great New York City institution. He will succeed Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who retired two years ago at the age of 83.

There was no announcement of a successor to the man who led Allied armies to victory in Europe in World War II. However, Gen. Omar Bradley, now Veterans Administrator, is regarded as almost a certain choice for the top Army post.

No definite date was set for "Ike's" retirement. The War Department announcement said that President Truman and Secretary of War Patterson had approved his release from active duty to accept the Columbia post.

"While this date cannot be accurately foreseen," it was said, "it is probable that with no radical change in the current outlook, it should be sometime during the first half of 1948."

The appointment immediately revived talk of Eisenhower entering politics, possibly as a '48 or '52 White House candidate. Dr. Butler, during his long years at Columbia University head, was a power in the Republican Party.

But Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Army public information chief, who made the announcement, told reporters:

"I can assure you definitely that Gen. Eisenhower has no political ambitions. He reiterated to me he is not interested in a political career."

Under a recent Act of Congress, "Ike" will receive his full Army

Hough Guilty Of Veterans' Housing Fraud

Arlington Builder Faces 20-Year Term And $40,000 Fine

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Federal jury yesterday found Stanley P. Hough, who promised but failed to build houses for veterans, guilty on four counts of using the mails to defraud.

The 40-year-old Arlington builder and self-styled Baptist minister faces a maximum sentence of 20 years' imprisonment and $40,000 fine.

The 12-man jury, after listening to two days' arguments in Alexandria District Court, returned with the guilty verdict after 65 minutes of deliberation. Judge A. D. Barksdale set July 29 for the date of sentence, pending a report of the court probation officer.

Hough, fidgety throughout the trial, was calm when the verdict was announced. He was released on continued bond of $2500.

Defense Attorney John Donovan immediately after the guilty verdict made a motion to set aside the jury's decision on the ground that it was contrary to both the law and evidence. He later said if the new trial were not granted, the case would be appealed to a higher court.

The real estate operator, who admittedly collected $48,000 in deposits from approximately 30 veterans seeking to buy homes at Hough Park development, Oxon Hill, Md., was found guilty of using the mails to defraud three of the former servicemen involved.

Two letters had been sent to Claude H. Leer, 4200 Rusk st., Kenilworth, D. C.; one to Walter A. Penfield jr., 2304 North Columbus st., Arlington; and one to Col. Fred L. Green, 3640 Greenway dr. se.

Justice Department Checks on Origins Of Stoppage; Other Walkouts Threaten

By The Associated Press

At least 168,000 coal miners were idle yesterday in the aftermath of the Taft-Hartley labor law enactment and the Justice Department was reported studying the situation to determine if injunction proceedings could be taken against John L. Lewis and his union.

The National Coal Association, an operators' group, said a full-scale national strike seems to be developing apparently in "clear violation" of the new labor law.

In remitting all but $710,000 of the $3,510,000 contempt of court fines imposed on Lewis for the coal strike last fall, the Supreme Court in March left the way open for another injunction if the Federal contract is broken by a strike. The soft coal pits will be under Government operation until June 30.

The Justice Department was reported by Federal officials, who asked not to be identified, as trying to determine if the miners were idle of "their own volition" or upon their leaders' advice.

Shipyard Strike

Other labor developments included a strike of Omaha livestock handlers and a call from striking Ford Motor Co. foremen for 85,000 auto workers to respect their picket lines.

Meanwhile, a strike of 40,000 CIO Bethlehem Steel shipyard workers in nine East Coast yards tonight at midnight seemed certain after negotiations bogged down on wage increase demands.

"We're ready to take a chance on testing the Taft-Hartley law" said Charles Leone, regional director of the CIO Industrial Union Workers of Marine and Shipbuilding.

Thirty-day strike notices filed under the Smith-Connally Act expire tonight for the shipyard workers.

Field reports from eight major coal-mining States showed that about 168,000 miners were idle. Industry representatives in Washington said "more than half" the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners had left their jobs.

The mine walkouts—three days in advance of 10-day vacations scheduled to start Friday—were in protest against the new labor law, a union spokesman said.

At West Frankfort, Ill., Hugh White, stated United Mine Workers president, said he did not know how long the more than 20,000 Illinois miners would be out. He added that the miners traditionally do not work without a contract and that their present Government contract expires June 30.

Earlier, a mine company spokesman said it was "unlikely" the UMW would reach an early agreement with the Government and that "some confusion" was expected in the coalfield when the miners' 10-day vacation period ended July 8.

The Government is returning to private ownership July 1 the mines it seized last year to end a coal strike.

The field tabulation of idle miners showed: Pennsylvania, 41,000; West Virginia, 31,000; Kentucky, 30,000; Illinois, 24,700;

Suffers Heart Attack

Woman Found Dead Sold Horse the Day Before It Won

A lapse in horseracing fever and a tragic aftermath were recited here yesterday in the heart attack death of Mrs. Ethel Florence Woodridge, 52, former English showgirl, of 1016 16th st. nw.

Investigation showed she died of a heart seizure suffered within 24 hours after her racing hope, Sun Target, romped home a winner at Charles Town, W. Va.—the day after she sold the 4-year-old to its trainer.

A temporary certificate of death from acute, congestive heart failure was issued yesterday following an autopsy at the District Morgue.

Mrs. Woodridge, who reportedl sang in English musical comedies in the early 1920s under the name "Fay Evelyn," was found dead in her apartment home Monday night. Police had to break through a chain-locked door.

Chronologically, police investigators found that:

Last Thursday, Mrs. Woodridge sold Sun Target to its trainer, H. F. Atwell, of Charles Town, W. Va., for $1500.

Last Friday, Sun Target came in first in the sixth race at Charles Town, with an $850 purse and paying $66.20 for a $2 ticket.

Last Friday night, Mrs. Woodridge telephoned Miss Elsie Mercer of Leesburg, Va., a nurse companion, she needed her services.

Last Saturday, Mrs. Woodridge summoned her doctor, Dr. Alfred R. Greenfield, of 924 15th st. nw.

Last Sunday, Dr. Greenfield made a second call at her home but received no answer to his knocks. On Monday, he telephoned the apartment, but received no answer.

On Monday, at 5 p. m., Miss Mercer reported for duty but no one answered.

That's when police broke the door down and found Mrs. Woodridge dead. Death may have come Saturday night, they said.

Senate Committee Testimony

Patterson Fears 'Dissipation' Of Field Forces in Budget Cut

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Secretary of War Patterson warned the Senate yesterday that personnel cuts voted by the House will mean the "dissipation" of the Army's mobile field forces.

He appeared before the Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee asking more funds for the Army, as the Senate passed the $3,462,000,000 naval supply bill for 1948.

Patterson protested against the reduction of 17,000 Army officers and 74,631 civilians required under the 435 million dollar slash in the War Department's '48 budget. He called upon the Senate group to restore $375,310,899.60 of the House cut.

Stressing the seriousness of the civilian reduction, Patterson declared that it will force the Army to replace many civilians with soldiers and thus "deplete an already inadequate military reserve."

"This would be," he said, "the last desperate recourse of the War Department—to dissipate the remaining two and one-half divisions of our mobile field forces, leaving the Army totally without means to meet an emergency."

Without this ground force reserve of two and one-half divisions, Patterson declared, we face a condition which "invites disaster."

The Secretary of War testified behind closed doors, as the Senate subcommittee began consideration of the Army's '48 needs. Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) made his statement available to reporters.

Gurney said the Joint Chiefs of Staff had recommended four divisions of mobile field forces in the United States instead of the 2½ at present. He said the 375 additional millions asked by Patterson

Vetoed Tax Cut Bill Is Reintroduced

Sent to Senate

Committee Okays 147 Postmasters

The Senate Civil Service Committee approved 147 postmaster nominations yesterday and sent them to the Senate for confirmation.

More than 800 postmaster nominations have been held up in the committee, while Chairman Langer (R., N. Dak.) insisted that the Senate authorize an inquiry by the group to determine whether any political considerations were involved in the appointments.

A $35,000 appropriation for the investigation was approved a few days ago.

Twelve States are represented in the first nominations approved this year, including 43 for California and 26 for Illinois.

Senator Williams (R., Del.), a member of the committee, said all the nominations reported were unprotested.

Those okayed included:

Maryland—Alice A. Kellner, White Marsh; Cornelia W. Hickman, Point of Rocks; Cosette I. Hopkins, Tyaskin; John T. Smullins, jr., Pocomoke City; Anita G. Swann, Piney Point; Gertrude S. Chapman, Lanham; Vera M. Gordon, Fork; Mary R. Schmidt, Eccleston; Frank A. Beachley, Braddock Heights; Milton T. Holt, Brandywine; Harry R. Ringler, Bishopville, and Grace H. Hudson, Bishop.

House Votes To Extend RFC

By the United Press

The House yeserday passed and sent to conference with the Senate a bill to extend the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for another two years with rigid restrictions on its lending activities.

The roll call vote was 334 to 4.

The House version limits RFC's lending authority to two billion dollars, instead of the present 14 to 18 billion dollar ceiling; would prohibit it from making foreign loans or domestic loans in competition with private banks, and would require the agency to liquidate "as soon as possible" nine billion dollars of its outstanding loans.

The Senate has passed a bill to extend the agency for one year without change in its authority, and a sharp conference fight is expected over House changes.

The agency originally was established in 1932 to take up the slack in the Nation's credit operations. Congress has renewed its authority from time to time since then. It would expire on June 30 without another congressional lease of life.

First Irrigation Water Crosses Great Divide

Estes Park, Colo., June 24 (AP).—A stream of mountain water which fell on the Pacific slope of the Continental Divide splashed from a 38-inch pipe into the churning Big Thompson River today and flowed eastward, signalizing the first major transmountain diversion for irrigation.

The water tumbled through the 13-mile long, 10-foot high Adams Tunnel drilled under the mountains from scenic Grand Lake to a point near this resort community. From the mouth of the bore a two-mile-long pipe carried it into the river.

Police Lieutenants May Don White Shirts

The white shirt will become a mark of distinction in the Prince Georges County police force July 1.

Superintendant Ralph W. Brown, who usually wears civilian attire, also will be permitted to wear a white shirt when in uniform. Non-commissioned officers and privates will continue to wear the customary gray shirts.

Miss Overell glanced once at the dynamite-blasted yacht. Tears came to her eyes, and she looked away.

GOP Trying to Beat Truman to '48 Gun, Democrats Charge

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The GOP's vetoed four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill yesterday was reintroduced in the House in a surprise shift in strategy.

Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), who had previously ruled out further tax action this session, said another fling at the legislation before adjournment "is possible."

In any event, Knutson said, the 10½ to 30 per cent income tax cuts will be moved to the floor in 1948 in advance of the slated general overhaul of all taxes.

Charge "Beat" Attempt

Democrats promptly charged that the GOP is trying to "beat the President to the gun" on reduction of taxes in 1948.

As reintroduced by Knutson, following clearance with House Republican leaders, the bill makes only one change in the measure the House refused to pass over the President's veto. Instead of making the cuts effective July 1 of this year, it provides that the reductions start January 1, 1948.

Knutson said the bill will be pressed this session only if a preliminary canvass shows it will get a two-thirds, veto-overriding majority in both Houses.

House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn (Tex.) pooh-poohed that possibility.

In the Senate, Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), commented only: "We are watchfully waiting."

George Will Vote for It

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), who voted for the original bill but announced he would support the veto, told newsmen he would vote for the measure with the January 1 date change.

George recalled that he had originally moved in the Finance Committee to postpone the cut to next January, but was voted down, party-line.

"Had we moved up the date, when the bill was first before us, it might have become law," said the Georgian. "But I see little possibility that the Senate could handle it this late in the session. The House, of course, could vote, and leave it pending for Senate action next year."

Backing Water, Says Forand

Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.), chairman of the House Democratic caucus and a minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, charged Republicans "are backing water again."

"Only last week they told us the veto killed the bill for this session and possibly for next year as well."

Forand said the authors of the bill had apparently heard current reports that Mr. Truman will recommend some tax reduction next January and "want to beat him to it."

The Rhode Islander predicted that if the President does ask some tax cuts, he would be more likely to favor increased personal exemptions than the nearly horizontal Knutson cuts.

Not Consulted as Group

It was learned Senate Republican leaders as a group had not been consulted on the Knutson move. One well-informed Senate Republican, however, who asked not to be identified, said the change in strategy involved two considerations:

1. By introducing the bill now, it would have prior status in 1948 over the President's possible recommendations.

2. If the date change won sufficient adherents to override another veto, it would be good Republican strategy to act at once.

Knutson was asked if the possibility of Truman recommendations for some tax cuts next year was involved in his move.

"That wasn't overlooked," he said.

Uniform Federal Jury Blocked by Saltonstall

By The Associated Press

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) blocked Senate approval yesterday of a bill to set up uniform standards for Federal jury service.

He said he objected to the measure because it would require women to serve on Federal juries in States which do not permit them on juries.

Apartment Project Proposed for Rockville Pike

John P. Fitzsimmons—Designer

"POOK'S HILL" is the title of the architect's drawing of the multimillion dollar apartment project, proposed for erection on the Merle Thorpe tract, on the Rockville Pike, north of Bethesda. Only two persons said they were opposed to the project at yesterday's zoning hearing in Rockville. Sponsors contemplate approximately 1000 units in two large buildings. Conversion into an apartment-hotel is possible

NLRB Pledges Law Support

cept that trust must do so with single-minded purpose to carry out the congressional intent. Effective June 24, 1947, this board will prepare to give the new act the fairest and most efficient administration that lies within its power."

The board members' conference with the President, it was known, dealt in part with the choice of two new members which the law prescribes, and of the general counsel, whom the law makes equal to, if in fact not vastly more important than the members themselves.

The President is determined to pick "top drawer" men, it was reported, and to make every effort to guarantee that the new law operates fairly and effectively, even though he still stands by what he said in his bitterly critical veto message.

The proposal of Representative Smith to continue Government seizure power came as a wave of walkouts took place in coal mines throughout the country. The Federal Coal Mines Administration estimated that already half of the soft coal miners were idle; they feared a complete shutdown by today.

Smith said that before Congress adjourns, it should retain control of the mines in the Government, thus giving the President power to prevent a strike. (A Federal injunction stops the miners from striking as long as they are in Government possession. Editor's note.)

But Senator Taft (R., Ohio), co-author with Hartley of the new law, immediately expressed his opposition to the Smith measure. He said he would favor it only in case of a national crisis.

Advised that the National Coal Association had charged that the miners' walkouts violated the new law, Taft said he could not see how it did. If anything, he said, it is a violation of the Government contract with the miners and their leader, John L. Lewis.

Admitting that the law "will not be completely effective" in stopping a coal strike, Hartley explained that it was a compromise measure and "had to be so to get a two-thirds Senate vote for overriding a veto."

Since the UMW follows a policy of "no contract, no work," Hartley continued, Lewis is not obliged to call a strike. Therefore, Hartley said, the courts might find it difficult to apply the injunction procedure prescribed in the "national emergency" section of the law.

"The act might aid in mobilizing public opinion and putting pressure on both sides to end a coal strike," Hartley said. "But I think that what would happen is that a coal strike would point up the need for more adequate legislation to meet Nation-wide work stoppages."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) was more optimistic over the effects of the act on a possible coal strike. At the very least, he said, it will "act as a definite deterrent."

"Nobody ever said that the act is supposed to prevent strikes," he said. "It is an attempt to settle fundamental questions of labor-management relations and make the collective bargaining processes work.

"In the case of the mine workers, we may get into this shadowland of what is and what is not a strike. But the public will have very definite protection."

Democrat Whip Cracks

Democrats, meanwhile, grabbed the chance to claim that the Republicans had failed to plug vital holes in the law. House Democratic Whip John W. McCormack (Mass.) shouted in a brief floor speech:

"We find the omnibus labor bill becoming law yesterday and immediately it becomes inadequate to meet a situation of prime importance to the Nation. The public should not have to undergo another coal strike."

He said Republican sponsors of the statute now were admitting they had been "aware of the defects and for some reason or other ducked the issue."

"I wonder if it could be because Mr. Lewis is one of the most important Republicans in the country?" he asked amid a chorus of catcalls from the opposition.

Coal Mines Administrator N. H. Collisson said it would be "futile" to try to stop the protest walkouts now, inasumch as the miners are scheduled to start an official 10-day vacation Friday. The chief hope of Government officials is that they will not get out of hand and stall production in vital industries.

Law Is Praised

Chicago, June 24 (U.P.).—Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council, said tonight the Taft-Hartley labor law would give a "distinct" advantage to three million Negroes heretofore discriminated against by many national unions.

"The elimination of the closed shop will open employment opportunities in hundreds of industries to thousands of Negro workers," he said. "The National Negro Council will give full support to a fair and impartial administration of the new labor law."

Baltimore Strike Set

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—A CIO union official announced today that nearly 8000 Baltimore shipyard workers would go out on strike as of midnight tomorrow.

The official, Walter H. Oakes, regional director of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, said the three Baltimore shipyards of the Bethlehem Steel Co. would be struck.

Thorpe Tract Apartment Plan Opposed by Only 2 at Hearing

Strong opposition which was expected to a proposed multi-million-dollar apartment project on the Merle Thorpe tract, near Bethesda, failed to materialize yesterday at the zoning hearing in Rockville.

Absence of strong opposition was significant, it was pointed out, since the project is one of several now pending, all of which have encountered opposition from nearby property owners.

Two Voice Opposition

Two persons told the county commissioners they were opposed to the project, which is to be on the 104-acre Rockville pike tract, with approximately 1000 units to be built at a cost of 10 to 15 million dollars.

The two opponents were Robert H. Myers, attorney for Charles Hawley, large property owner just south of the tract, and Mrs. Daisy Whiton, who lives next to Hawley.

President Brooke Johns of the board expressed unusual interest when the builder, Harry H. Brodie, told the commissioners initial plans call for construction of two large apartment buildings, a part of which would be later converted into an apartment-hotel project if appropriate rezonings would be granted.

Johns pointed out that the latter project would provide more sorely needed tax revenue for the county and indicated he was in favor of the application.

Conditional Withdrawal

Walter W. Dawson, attorney, who represented the applicants, said the petitioners were willing that the rezoning be granted with the stipulation that it be withdrawn if the two huge apartment structures were not erected.

Dawson read letters of approval from the United States Public Health Service, the National Institute of Health and the Bethesda Naval Hospital, all of which are situated nearby. Gilbert E. Grover, who owns the adjoining estate, also approved, Dawson said.

Majority of 16 zoning petitions heard yesterday were unopposed, but approximately 75 property owners from the Four Corners (Md.) area appeared in opposition to an application to rezone from Residential A to Commercial D a tract fronting on the Colesville rd. between Woodmoor Shopping Center and Timberwood ave.

McNutt Says Asia Should Get Help First, Then Japan

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—Paul V. McNutt, former United States Ambassador to the Philippines, said today that rehabilitation of Asiatic nations "that were devastated by Japan should be the first order of business, reserving for a lower priority the reconstruction of Japan."

In an address to the Midwest regional committee of the Far East America Council, McNutt said:

"However much we may urge democracy upon the Japanese people, we will be building a machine primed for military aggression against our interests, unless we solve the problems of the Orient as a whole, and not merely the problems of Japan because we happen to be the occupying power there."

U. S. Studying Strike Action

Alabama, 20,000; Virginia, 9500; Ohio, 5000; Indiana, 5245, and Utah, 1200.

In Virginia, more than half of the State's 17,000 miners were idle despite the declared intention of UMW District Leader W. F. Minton to "insist" that they stay at work.

In Cumberland, Md., union sources reported the men were "bitter about the slave-labor law" but no miners were reported idle there.

Miners in the Richeyville, Pa., area whiled away their time playing cards, helping in household chores, sipping a few beers or playing "catch" with baseballs. Many had received their vacation pay.

All were in amiable mood but waxed hot at the mention of the new law.

Some declared grimly, "Let the Senators dig coal" and tacked up a crude sign bearing that slogan.

The coal-sensitive steel industry was expected to feel the coal tonnage losses quickly since a "ton of coal for a ton of steel" is the rough yardstick used by steel makers. Operating at nearly 100 per cent capacity in record peacetime production, the steel industry has had little opportunity to build up reserve stocks of coal.

One U. S. Steel subsidiary, the American Steel & Wire Co., will close down all its facilities except the Donora and Rankin, Pa., works for a week's vacation beginning Saturday. This was a practice put into effect last year but it coincides with the mine holiday and will help conserve coal.

In Detroit, the striking Independent Foreman's Association of America asked the CIO United Auto Workers to respect picket lines around the Ford Motor Co., the Gar Wood Industries, Inc., in Detroit, and the Midland Steel Products Co., in Cleveland.

The association also has announced it would seek an early court test of the legality of the Taft-Hartley bill which excludes foremen from the guaranteed collective bargaining rights of the Wagner Act.

In a letter to the UAW, Robert H. Keys, FAA president, said foremen were asking aid in their 35-day-old strike against Ford because "since the passage of the Taft-Hartley bill, the (Ford) company is determined to continue to operate its plants regardless of any financial loss and inferiority of their products."

President Walter P. Reuther summoned an emergency session of the UAW-CIO policy committee for today to act on the request to honor picket lines. If the UAW-CIO agreed, industry sources said the plants would be forced to close immediately.

Wilson Cites Two Threats To Prosperity

The only threats to the present prosperous economic outlook, President Charles E. Wilson of General Motors told a congressional committee yesterday, are:

1. The prospect of a coal strike; and

2. "Propaganda from high places" to the effect that prices and profits are too high.

Wilson did not mention President Truman's recent campaign against excessive profits and inflated prices but it was clear that this was what he had in mind.

He made his statement at the first session of the month-long hearings of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report. It is investigating the wage-price-profit situation and the economic outlook.

Asked by Representative Rich (R., Pa.) how to combat the propaganda he complained of, Wilson counseled patience. "The truth will prevail," he said.

He declared that the auto industry was doing a splendid job in keeping prices down. It was not charging "what the traffic would bear," as evidenced by the fact that purchasers could take a new car from a dealer and obtain a large premium on it from used car "gray market" operators.

Wilson said that GM is making a smaller profit on each car that it sells than it did before the war.

S. Sloan Colt, president of the Bankers Trust Co., New York, followed Wilson in the witness chair and agreed with him that the outlook is optimistic.

Sloan said he "doubted" that there would be any business recession comparable to the slump that hit the country following World War I.

As for prices, the banker said the biggest need for correction is in farm prices. He said some farm products have gone up 180 per cent since 1939 to levels "substantially higher than required to bring forth a large volume of production."

On the other hand, he said corporation profits are no higher than in "other prosperous years" and that business needs high profits in good years to carry it through the lean periods.

Wilson said he was hopeful that prices and wages would be stabilized at their present levels, but he said he had seen "no real evidence" that the inflationary trend has stopped.

The secret to future prosperity, he continued, was greater productivity, and the danger was "organized unemployment—that is, monopolistic strikes that paralyze whole vital industries or shut down one important community after another."

The industrialist called for an end to Government operation in the field of housing, thus taking a position at odds with the the committee chairman, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the pending Wagner-Taft-Ellender housing bill.

Similarly, he favored removal of all rent controls by next year, pointing out that they did not add a single housing unit to the country.

But they save a lot of "heartbreak" and distress, Senator Myers (D., Pa.) observed.

"Why?" Wilson asked.

"The question answers itself," Myers snapped.

Pressed repeatedly by Representative Rich to say a good word for the idea of reducing the national debt, Wilson consistently ducked a direct statement. He implied he was more interested in tax reductions. He said he would be more content to pay present taxes if he was sure the money was going to reduce the debt, rather than to pay for unnecessary Government expenditures.

Editor Assails 'Smear Tactics' Of News Guild

Sioux City, Iowa, June 24 (AP).—Nat R. Howard, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, told the American Newspaper Guild tonight that he deplores "the appearance of smear tactics" in labor controversies involving newspapers and the Guild.

In an address prepared for delivery before the CIO Union's Convention, the editor of the Cleveland News declared:

"I believe that it has been almost the rule, whenever controversy reached the strike stage, that the Guild members have widely attacked the integrity and public intentions of the newspaper as a newspaper, and not merely as an employer."

Howard asserted that the truth or falsity of propaganda in a labor dispute involving practically any other kind of business will not much injure its popularity with its customers. The newspaper business, he said, is different.

"A newspaper's good name with the public is something like a woman's reputation for chastity," the ASNE head declared. "You can foul our particular nest with lasting effect."

Howard said newspaper editors were wondering if there was included in the Guild's primary concept of its function "a purpose to protect the existence of newspapers against the onslaught of ill-wishers."

Referring to the suspension of the Philadelphia Record following a strike by the Guild, Howard said he would guess "that there was great rejoicing in various quarters completely at variance with the philosophy of the Guild."

"There must have been quiet moments of celebration by certain predatory and undemocratic agencies and persons," Howard added, "and perhaps at these there were jocular expressions of thanks to the Newspaper Guild for having achieved a defeat of the Philadelphia Record which these more saturnine characters could not have achieved for themselves."

Senate Group Approves Bruce as Ambassador

The nomination of James Bruce of Maryland as Ambassador to Argentina was approved unanimously yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee also approved the nomination of Edwin C. Wilson, the Ambassador to Turkey, as administrator of the Turkish phase of the Greek-Turkish aid program.

Both nominations now go before the Senate.

Slain Gangster Faced Arrest In Dope Ring

Los Angeles, June 24 (U.P.).—Gangland murder victim Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel today was identified by Federal agents as one of the world's biggest dope ring operators.

Narcotics Agent W. J. Craig disclosed Siegel was shot to death Friday night just as he was about to be arrested.

Siegel's Hollywood playboy front in which he hobnobbed with film celebrities like his pal, George Raft, was just to cover up his participation in an international narcotics ring, Craig said.

The West Coast section of the ring, with headquarters here, was on the verge of being cracked open by the Federal agents.

Siegel's part in the ring was reported to have been learned from Frank Orbe, 57, a prisoner in the Tijuana (Mexico) Jail on a murder conviction.

Orbe said Siegel cheated him out of $62,000 obtained from dope smuggling.

The disclosure of Siegel's narcotics connections came as his friend, Raft, agreed to supply any information he had on Siegel.

The movie "tough guy" appeared as a character witness when Siegel was tried in 1944 on bookmaking charges. Two years earlier, when Siegel was acquitted of slaying Harry (Big Greenie) Greenberg, Raft admitted he helped locate defense witnesses.

Air Navigation Courses Urged For Colleges

A proposal to establish a four-year course in air navigation engineering in this country's universities and colleges was made yesterday by Comdr. W. J. Catlett, jr., of the Navy Line School, Newport, R. I.

Addressing the Institute of Navigation's third annual meeting at the Statler Hotel, he emphasized navigation as one of the most important factors in air safety today.

In accord with Catlett was Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.), chairman of the House subcommittee on air safety, who promised he would seek assistance of Congress in furthering the proposal.

At the morning session, Lieut. Comdr. A. W. Wuerker, USCG, listed the following serious problems in the search and rescue picture of civil aviation today:

1. There is no Federal agency to provide search and rescue facilities or to take on the responsibility for the coordination of search and rescue for civil air crashes on land.

2. There is no Federal agency to prescribe minimum standards or inspect local crash facilities at civilian airports.

3. There is no standard high or very high distress frequency for civil aviation.

4. There is no Federal agency to inform civil pilots, passengers and crash crews of rescue and survival procedures and no Federally-required briefing on the location and operation of emergency exits and operation of safety belts and other safety devices.

Hospital Says It Lost in '46 On Group Care

Columbia Hospital's reimbursement for care of Community Chest and Group Hospitalization, Inc., patients in 1946 was nearly $32,000 below "normal charges for services rendered," Superintendent N. L. McDiarmid disclosed yesterday.

In his annual report, the head of Columbia asserted that Community Chest payments, via Health Security Administration, were more than $27,000 below normal charges and GHI fell short by $4500.

During the year the hospital, which specializes in obstetrics and women's diseases, compiled the following record:

Delivered 3882 live infants, 15 per cent of the total born in the District.

Admitted 5621 patients.

Gave 36,730 patient-days of care.

Performed 132 deliveries by caesarean section.

Offered prenatal care to 1245 women, who made 8720 dispensary visits.

Served 301,973 meals, of which 106,920 were to patients and guests, the remainder to staff personnel.

Greek Boat Reported Fired on By Albanians

Athens, June 24 (AP).—The Ministry of Public Order said today Albanian coastal batteries had fired 10 rounds at a motorboat flying the Greek flag in the channel between Corfu and the Albanian coast.

The vessel escaped damage. The ministry said she was in Greek territorial waters 500 yards off the shore of Corfu when the Albanian guns opened up.

Lahore Reported 'Calm'

Lahore, India, June 23 (Delayed) (U.P.).—There were five fires here today, three stabbings and four bombings—a comparatively quiet day for Lahore, where during the past two days communal rioters have virtually burned the Hindu quarter to the ground. Few believe the calm will last for long.

Flood Damage To Property, Crops Mounts

Omaha, June 24 (AP).—Crop and property damage mounted today as Midwest floods spread out over thousands of acres of corn and wheat and washed out railroad lines and highways.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, the Army's Missouri River division engineer, said "our preliminary estimate of flood damage in the Missouri basin this year was about 60 million dollars. These floods will boost that figure considerably higher."

Residents in low-lying areas of Des Moines were warned the Des Moines River would inundate parts of the Iowa capital city. Severe flooding was predicted for lowlands between Jefferson, Iowa, and Des Moines on the Racoon River and between Boone and Des Moines on the Des Moines River.

The weather Bureau issued a warning to residents along the Platte River from North Bend, Nebr., that there was possibility of rains up to 3 inches in Nebraska Thursday or Friday.

In southeast Nebraska at Rulo the Missouri River boiled up toward an expected new record level. The town of Columbus was one-fourth inundated but waters were receding today. In northeast Nebraska the unruly Elkhorn tore out railroad bridges and trackbeds.

Col. W. E. Potter, Kansas City district Army engineer, said nearly 250,000 acres in Missouri were under water between Rulo, Nebr., and St. Louis and that the figure probably will rise to 338,000 before Thursday. Almost all of Agency, Mo., was under water. The Grand River engulfed most of Pattonsburg, Mo.

Damage to the hitherto fine crop prospects throughout the Midwest "breadbasket" was tremendous.

This is the fourth flood for much of the midwest. Farmers had wearily re-planted after previous washouts but now it is too late.

Iowa's weekly crop bulletin said "wet weather has cut stands of corn to a reported 85 per cent of normal."

Water Plant Work Aided By Dry Canal

The May 28 dike break on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal has brought an earlier-than-planned start on the $1,200,000 expansion of Dalecarlia water plant.

It also is saving the Government approximately $4000 in costs of the expansion.

Taking advantage of the waterless canal, District Army Engineers have dragged out already-prepared plans to lay a 30-inch, concrete-encased drain under the canal for a new settling basin to be built perhaps later this year.

The $18,000, three-week job, done by the Army Engineers' civilian crews, is due to be completed by this weekend, and canal barge traffic probably will be resumed by July 4 or shortly thereafter.

Three quarters of a mile downstream, near Canal rd. and Weaver pl. nw., where the dike break emptied the canal into the nearby Potomac, crews expected to complete by Saturday a new 140-foot storm sewer to replace a stone culvert.

This project also, according to Elwood Johnson, deputy director of District sanitary engineering, is being done to take advantage of the waterless canal. After the two projects are finished, Capital Parks engineers must refill the washed-out tow path along which the horses walk to pull the barges.

The basin drain, according to D. M. Radcliffe, chief of operations, Washington Acqueduct, will be used to flush mud from the proposed new basin to the Potomac River.

By doing the drain work while the canal is emptied by the dike break, Radcliffe estimated the Government is saving $4000 in power costs it otherwise would have had to pay two Georgetown industries, Wilkins-Rogers Flour Mill and the D. C. Paper Mill. These industries both obtain electric power from the canal.

Police Join Search for Lost $26,000

Alexandria police have joined the search for a missing $26,000 bank deposit, reported to have disappeared mysteriously from the night depository of the First National Bank there last week.

Lieutenant Russell A. Hawes, chief of the city's detective bureau, revealed that the department was called into the case yesterday by officials of the bank, who first divulged the loss on Monday.

Hawes said the department had known of the loss since last Thursday, but had taken no action because it received no formal complaint.

The money was reported by officials of the J. C. Penney Co. store to have been placed in the depository at 6:20 p. m. on Wednesday. Bank officials said the funds were not found among deposits when the night vault was opened at about 8 a. m. Thursday.

Before calling local police in, bank officials had announced the investigation was in the hands of insurance representatives. According to Hawes, police are working in cooperation with the insurance investigators.

Victory in Suit Over Will Costs Litigant Her Share

Mrs. Edith B. Sullivan, 3605 16th st. nw., won a "moral victory" yesterday but lost her quarter interest in her mother's estate, variously estimated as between $117,000 and $300,000.

A District Court jury caused the situation, described as "unprecedented" by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough. Mrs. Sullivan sued to have codicils to the wills of the mother, Mrs. Rachel R. Bond, set aside. Mrs. Bond died at the age of 83 in 1944.

Mrs Bond willed that half of her estate should go to a daughter, Miss Mary A. Bond. The rest Miss Bond kept in trust for Mrs. Sullivan and her brother, Raymond H. Bond, of Glen Ridge, N. J., according to terms of a codicil.

In another codicil, Mrs. Bond said that if any child contested the testament, the child would lose any right or interest in the estate.

The trial of the case began five weeks ago. At 1 p. m. Monday, the jury received the case. They remained deadlocked until 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

The jury verdict was that Mary Bond had used undue influence on her mother to make the division of the estate. But, the provision penalizing the children if they contested the will, was valid and not made under duress, the jury said.

Attorney H. Mason Welch, representing Mrs. Sullivan, agreed with Miss Bond's attorneys, Richard Gallaher and William Hannan, that the jury verdict caused Mrs. Sullivan to forfeit her rights in the estate. Welch said, however, that the verdict was inconsistent and would be appealed.

Stalin Rebuffs U. N.

Lake Success, June 24 (AP).—Prime Minister Joseph Stalin has declined an invitation of the United Nations to join the heads of the other major powers in a U. N. Charter Day broadcast scheduled for Thursday, a reliable source said today.

D. C. to Get $11,000 Savings Of Sexton Who Left No Will

The $11,000 life savings of a frugal sexton of St. Dominic's Church will go to the District government because he left on heirs and made no will.

The sexton, John J. Barrett, died here last April at the age of 74. His whole life was built around the church. For 30 years he was associated with St. Dominic's, and after his retirement six years ago, he visited the church daily. Barrett was born in Ireland, coming here at the turn of the century.

Under local law, estates without heirs revert to the government. Furthermore, funeral expenses of not more than $300 are allowed.

Church officials said Barrett was highly regarded. He saved almost all his salary during his years of service. His only recreation, it was said, was seeing an occasional baseball game. Often Barrett could be seen on the Mall sunning himself, watching children play and feeding birds.

Attorney for the estate is James C. Toomey. W. Warren Taltavall, the undertaker, has been appointed administrator.

Marshall to Visit U. N. Thursday, Charter Day

Lake Success, N. Y., June 24 (U.P.).—United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall will make his first visit to the United Nations on Thursday, the second anniversary of the U. N.'s birth, it was announced today.

Marshall's trip, which will have "absolutely no business purposes," will be the high spot in a colorful ceremony recalling the signing of the United Nations charter at the San Francisco Conference on June 26, 1945.

Every Wednesday America Goes Shopping

Don't be puzzled by the easy chair. Or the feet outstretched, or the collar loosened. They all belong in the picture. And the chap you see here is shopping just as surely as if he were making his way through a crowded store.

He's shopping, all right—American style. Like millions of other people, he's picking and choosing the things he wants in the advertising pages of The Saturday Evening Post.

He and his wife are learning about new products. They are being reminded of old, familiar ones. They are comparing types and styles and brands. They are shopping at leisure . . . in a receptive frame of mind.

Like his wife, his kids, and the dog, the Post is a member of the family. People have confidence in what they read on its pages.

That's another reason why you so often hear people say, "I like to read advertising in The Saturday Evening Post."

Mt. Rainier Mayor Hits At Baltimore

Said the Mayor of some 12,000 residents of Mount Rainier, Md., to the Mayor of Baltimore's one million:

"Keep your criminals off your streets."

Fighting-mad, Mayor Floyd B. Mathias upbraided the big city chieftain, Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro, in a scathing two-page letter recounting his own son's unfortunate experiences last Saturday in the Monumental City. He offered this advice:

"Organize vigilantes. Station a man in every block to watch for crimes about to be committed."

Unless Baltimore can "clean up its inefficiencies," Mathias warned, he will tell all his constituents who plan to visit there to "carry a gun for safety."

The Mount Rainier mayor wrote that some $500 worth of clothes belonging to his son were stolen during a recent trip the son made to Baltimore.

"I learned this was the fourth such case of broaddaylight theft in that neighborhood within a week," he wrote.

"Here in Mount Rainier our people help us keep a crime-free town. Our police force is alert and on the job at all times."

Likening criminals to bedbugs, he expostulated:

"Keep after them. Keep after them, period. If you get bedbugs and watch them long enough you'll eventually get rid of them."

At a late hour last night, he had not received a reply.

End of Credit Curb Approved By Committee

Legislation to end Federal controls over installment buying was approved yesterday by the House Banking Committee.

Under war powers, the Government now requires a one-third down payment on certain durable consumer goods, such as automobiles, refrigerators and radios. It further requires that installments on such purchases be paid off within 15 months.

President Truman recently advised Congress that unless he is given specific peacetime authority to continue consumer credit controls he will end them. Mr. Truman recommended that Congress grant the peacetime power, as a check against inflation.

The bill approved by the Banking Committee would terminate the controls immediately upon its approval by the House and Senate.

Banking Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) told reporters:

"The controls are not needed any more. They are highly discriminatory and in no way reduce the velocity of credit. They served in wartime but they have outlived their usefulness."

The bill would permit the reinstatement of the controls in time of war or when the President declared a national emergency.

U. S. Is Facing Corn Shortage

tion of this Nation's plans for export of grain. They think some replanning should be done before our representatives to the Anderson-inspired cereal grain conference in Paris the week after next commit themselves too definitely.

Corn Greatest U. S. Crop

Overlooked by many, particularly in the East, is the fact that corn is this country's greatest crop.

There is an old saying in Iowa that only 10 per cent of the corn is sold outside the county in which it was raised. The remaining 90 per cent walks out as cattle, hogs or sheep, or goes out as poultry, butter, milk and other dairy products, or as corn sugar and syrup, out of which most of our candies are made today.

Anything that cuts down the corn supply of the Nation cuts down the supply, in a few months, of all better grades of meat.

In a small roadside feed store yesterday I heard a pious old Iowa farmer blame this year's wild weather upon "interference with nature in the use of the atom bomb."

Another disagreed. He blamed it on a Republican Congress.

Hearings on Training Will Be Continued

The House Armed Services Committee decided yesterday to continue hearings on universal training legislation.

Despite the committee's action, however, there is an understanding among members that no bill will be approved this year.

The committee has held three hearings and has questioned members of the President's special commission that recommend a universal training for American youths. It will hear other members Friday before recessing until July 7.

GHI Offers New Plan for Surgical Care

Group Hospitalization, Inc., contracted yesterday with the District Medical Society to provide prepaid surgical care for its more than 300,000 subscribers in Greater Washington.

Joseph H. Himes, president of GHI, said the new subscriptions, fashioned on the same lines as the present hospital care subscriptions, will be available in about six months.

Subscribers to the new plan will have to choose a doctor under contract to Medical Service of the District of Columbia, but will have a choice of any doctor in the group, he said.

Dr. Frank Costenbader, president of Medical Service, an affiliate of the District Medical Society, said the more than 600 local doctors, who responded favorably to the plan last fall, are expected to enroll.

The monthly rate for subscribers will probably be 75 cents for an individual, $1.50 for a husband and wife and $1.75 for a family.

Surgical expenses will be paid in full by GHI for the individual with an annual income of $2500 or less and for the member of a family whose income is $4500 or less.

Subscribers whose annual income exceeds these ceilings will have to pay additional fees for surgical expenses. The amount of such fees will be arranged directly between the doctor and the patient, Himes said.

The subscription will cover payment of the cost of anesthesia, X-rays and laboratory work (if they are connected directly with the surgical work) in addition to the surgeon's fees. Only the actual surgical costs, however, and not the cost of diagnosis and preoperation visits to the doctor, will be covered under the plan, Himes and Dr. Costenbader explained.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Barrett Made Head of Police in the suppression and detection of crimes and the protection of life and property."

Not His Usual Language

The statement was prepared for publication and is not typical of his day to day expressions. Barrett speaks the language understandable by the lowliest of the hundreds he has arrested in his police career.

Barrett joined the police force, a patrolman in the Sixth Police Precinct, July 1, 1925, 22 years ago to the day he is to become its highest ranking officer. His aggressive spirit first made official entry on his own record when, on September 2, that year, he was severely reprimanded for "unwarranted use of revolver."

Thrice since he was haled before the police trial board, but every time the charges were dismissed after hearings. He was charged with "unjustified arrest;" "beating of suspect;" "wilfully mistreating and unnecessary violence on a prisoner," and "bad conduct and use of obscene language."

Friends rallied to his support in all his scrapes. They had evidence to prove that a crime fighter of his zeal makes enemies as well as friends. They pointed to his ever-growing commendations for effective police work.

Greatest blow to his prestige and blackest mark against his record came on October 16, 1931, when he was suspended without pay after a grand jury indicted him for alleged brutality to a slaying suspect who was later found innocent.

Barrett was charged with beating a suspect in the Garden-T Shoppe slaying of Mrs. Elizabeth Jaynes. A jury found him guilty and he was sentenced to one year in prison.

He never served the time. A second trial was ordered on a legal technicality and a second jury could not reach unanimous decision. The charges were dropped, and he resumed police duty nearly two years later, on September 26, 1933.

A detective sergeant at suspension, he was given restitution for loss of pay during that suspension. And from that point on, commendations poured in. Almost every notable arrest brought written word of praise from police superiors, private citizens and Congressmen.

When named to head the Detective Bureau last year at the age of 44, he was the youngest man to hold the position in the history of the Metropolitan Police Department.

The years of work (and no one denies he's been the workingest detective hereabouts) grayed his hair and thinned it to a virtual gray halo broken only by a never-ending forehead. His own superior and predecessor, Major Callahan, has said the years tamed the hands "he used to throw around a lot."

Barrett carries those hock-hams forward in almost a wrestler's crouch when he walks. His broad shoulders slant noticeably to the left and only the shortness of arms belie a gorilla-like physique.

He loves practical joking, except on himself.

Those fans of police radio broadcasts know that the superintendent-to-be has few interests except his police work. Almost nightly to midnight and past, they hear the police dispatcher talking with him.

Hough Found Guilty of Fraud In Veterans' Housing Deals

stand in his own defense and to support the contention of his counsel that far from trying to deceive the veterans Hough actually was trying to help them.

His direct testimony, and subsequent slashing cross-examination by Assistant United States Attorney George R. Humrickhouse, brought out that Hough had three times been convicted of felonies. After the third sentence, Hough said, he "saw the light," converted, and "six-seven years ago" was ordained a Baptist minister. In fact, Hough added, he still is a minister.

Hough traced his difficulties to his inability to obtain a construction completion bond; and to the lifting of price ceilings on building materials.

He asserted that the Hyattsville Building Association, 819 14th st. nw., had let him and the GI-depositors down after promising to make the necessary loans for financing the project.

Peron Reaffirms Middle Course For Argentina

Buenos Aires, Argentina, June 24 (U.P.)—President Juan D. Peron, condemning "bad capitalists" as foster-fathers of communism, tonight reaffirmed Argentina's intention to steer a "third course" between right-wing capitalist imperialism and Russian communism.

Peon addressed food industry workers at the ministry of labor.

The speech marked the first direct announcement by Peron of the "middle-way" theory of government which was first announced by the Peronist newspaper La Epoca early this month.

Barrett is making the rounds, investigating the major complaints or just organizing his men in welding the hard-working, efficient Detective Bureau that since his promotion to chieftain has solved almost every major murder case or flagrant criminal action, and in almost spectacularly rapid time.

Official Statements

Statements by District Commissioners after his appointment were:

John Russell Young—We've studied the records very carefully and feel he is the man best-fitted for the job.

Guy Mason—I think it's an excellent appointment. I was happy to vote for it. It was a unanimous decision—no question about it.

Gordon R. Young—I think it's an eminently satisfactory appointment.

Said Acting Superintendent Walter Thomas, who headed the department since Major Callahan became ill early in February:

"Our working team will be the same as always and I'll be in there pitching the same as I did under Major Callahan."

County Gives Land

Right-of-Way For Freeway Completed

The Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners yesterday agreed to donate to the Federal Government a five-acre parcel of county-owned land next to the Prince Georges General Hospital as a right-of-way for the Washington-Baltimore Freeway.

This action was taken after a conference with four representatives of the Public Roads Administration at the board's offices in Marlboro.

Frank K. Wall, PRA appraiser, told the commissioners this parcel, on the northwest corner of the hospital grounds near Cheverly, was the last remaining ground on the right-of-way for which title had not been obtained.

The freeway, when completed will extend from the District of Columbia line in Northeast Washington through Greenbelt and the Beltsville Research Center, parallel to U. S. Highway No. 1, to Jessup, where the Maryland State Roads Commission will take over construction to the Baltimore City limits.

Consent to the donation was given by the commissioners only after Dr. A. K. Besley, superintendent of the hospital, had assured them that loss of the ground would not affect the location of the proposed additional hospital wing, health center and central heating plant.

Wall explained that the present entrance to the hospital from Landover rd. would be blocked off by the freeway, but that a new entrance would be built from the Landover rd. cloverleaf intersection to be located a short distance to the east.

D. Hugh Brown, PRA highway engineer, said that the roadway had been graded from the District Line to a point just south of Greenbelt. He added that grading would be completed over the 20-mile route to Jessup before any surfacing was begun.

Bubble Gum Isn't Sickening—Not To Junior, That Is

By The Associated Press

Bubble gum isn't to blame for Junior's upset stomach or for any other of his pains, except maybe aching jaws, the Food and Drug Administration said yesterday.

The results of tests "do not warrant any conclusion that bubble gum contains toxic ingredients," the agency said.

The bubble gum tests followed reports from some areas that children were possibly being made ill by chewing it. This the agency found incorrect. In fact, it found bubble gum no more harmful than pure paraffin wax.

Fish Fry Fight Fatal

Elkton, Md., June 24 (AP).—George Whaley, 35-year-old owner of an Elkton fish market, today was released on $5000 bond after being arraigned on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Michael L. Peterson in a fight at a fish fry.

Whalen, from Rock Hall, Md., was held for a preliminary hearing before Magistrate James Weinroth, but the date was left open until investigators have completed their work.

State's Attorney Henry L. Constable said he had learned Peterson, 39-year-old barber, was injured as he tried to break up the fight at the Moose Club fish fry on Elk River Sunday night.

Coroner R. C. Dodson said the victim apparently was kicked on the left side of the head.

Directed Verdict of Acquittal Asked for Anti-Fascist Group

Defense Counsel O. John Rogge yesterday moved for a directed verdict acquitting Dr. Edward K. Barsky and 15 codefendants of charges of contempt of Congress and conspiracy to commit contempt.

Rogge

Referring to the defendants, all members of the executive board of the Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee as "not platters—but a little group of frightened people," Rogge asserted that no legal proof of conspiracy exists.

Rogge based his appeal for acquittal on the conspiracy charges on a Supreme Court ruling in another conspiracy case. In this case, he said, it was ruled that statements made by alleged conspirators may not be used against other alleged conspirators unless independent evidence showed that all were party to the conspiracy and that the acts were in pursuance of the conspiracy.

Under this interpretation, Rogge said, statements made to the House Committee on Un-American Activities by defendants could not be admissible as evidence against other defendants—thus a great part of the Government's case would be dissipated.

In asking dismissal of the contempt charges, Rogge repeated the argument used previously that the defendants did not have control of the records of their organization and hence could not produce them in answer to the subpena. Further pleading on the motion will be heard today.

The Government rested its case yesterday after Miss Helen R. Bryan, secretary of the anti-Fascist organization, identified certain records and documents.

Earlier Rogge asserted that the House Committee had treated Fascist witnesses with courtesy while badgering others with liberal tendencies.

Proposed questioning along these lines was objected to by Prosecutor Charles Murray. The objection was sustained by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech.

The defense announced that Fredric March, stage and screen star, may be among witnesses called today. Rogge indicated that the defense case would be ended by Friday.

Ku Klux Headquarters Raided in Knoxville

Knoxville, Tenn., June 24 (AP).—District Attorney General Hal Clements, jr., led officers last night in the raid on a meeting hall which he described as headquarters of the local Ku Klux Klan.

Clements said a Klan charter and other equipment, including some robes, were seized for presentation to the grand jury July 7.

Chief of Police Joe Kimsey said three men had been arrested in connection with the burning of crosses Saturday night in front of the Knox County courthouse, the city hall and the city jail.

Pay Rise for Service Doctors Approved by House Group

Legislation boosting the pay of Army, Navy and Public Health Service doctors and dentists was approved yesterday by the House Armed Services Committee.

The group also acted favorably on a bill to set up a retirement system for Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard reservists. Under the plan they would become eligible for pensions at the age of 60.

Terms of the former bill provide that medical men now in the service and those entering within the next two years will receive an additional $100 a month over their regular pay and allowances.

Those rated as specialists in various fields of medicine would, in addition, be given a 25 per cent increase in their base longevity pay.

"Civilian practice is so lucrative to a private practitioner," said a subcommittee report, "that some action must be taken by Congress or there will be insufficient doctors to adequately provide for Army and Navy personnel."

The measure excludes young Army and Navy Reserve doctors whose medical education was paid for by the Government, unless they enter the regular service. Dentists were also excluded under the bill brought in by the subcommittee, but the full committee voted to extend them the benefits.

Under the Reserve retirement bill, officers and enlisted men must complete 20 years total "satisfactory" service, part of which must be on active duty. At the age of 60, they are eligible for retired pay at the rate of 2½ per cent of base and longevity pay of their rank for each year of active duty plus one half of 1 per cent additional for each year of inactive service.

For example, a colonel of the National Guard who has a total of 35 years Federal service, including seven years active duty during World Wars I and II, would draw $2079 a year retired pay for life beginning at age 60.

A lieutenant commander of the Naval Reserve, with 20 years total and five years active service would draw $858, a year. A first sergeant in the Guard or Reserve with 30 years total and seven years active service would be paid $861.

Officers and men who have at least 20 years total service and a minimum of four years active duty become eligible for a pension at 60, without any further service being required.

Those with less service, however, must gain credits after the passage of the bill. In urging passage of the measure, a subcommittee declared its principal aim was to create an incentive to reservists to remain active. Credit toward retirement eligibilty could be gained either by extended active duty or by summer camps, weekly drills and correspondence work.

Reservists who have between 15 and 20 years total service upon passage of the bill, also must have at least four years active duty to be eligible. But six months of this latter must be performed after passage of the bill. And those with 10 to 15 years total service must gain credit for one year of active service after passage.

Similarly, younger men with 5 to 10 years total active and inactive service when the bill becomes law must later perform at least 18 months active duty to become eligible.

Reservists with less than five years total service when the bill passes must complete three years active duty. Those now in service, however, must gain credit for two years active duty.

New York, June 24 (AP).—Four women agreed today that women in America and throughout the world are not doing their part to prevent future wars.

The opinion was expressed at a panel discussion held at the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention and sponsored by the New York Times.

Taking part in the panel were Anne O'Hare McCormack, member of the New York Times editorial board and United States delegate to Unesco; former Magistrate Dorothy Kenyon, United States delegate to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women; I. A. R. Wylie, author, and Louise Leonard Wright, director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

The speakers agreed that women had the power to prevent a war but said they were not using their intelligence for concerted action. They urged women to mobilize public opinion on the local level in favor of such international organizations as the United Nations.

"Everyone is afraid of war," Mrs. Kenyon said, "everyone wants to prevent war, but nobody, men as well as women, knows what to do about it."

Mrs. Wright said "women are willing and eager, but they don't know how. If women paid more attention to political processes by which war could be prevented, they could be more effective."

Mrs. McCormack said the fact that women by exerting pressure after the cessation of hostilities in World War II brought their sons home from fighting fronts was proof that women could do something about peace if they wished.

Cities Seek '48 Meeting

Earlier today clubwomen from Miami, Fla., and Portland, Oreg., invited the General Federation to hold its fifty-seventh annual convention in their respective cities in 1948.

Resolutions proposing Government purchase of the Redwood Mountain grove of big trees for a wilderness preserve; full time local health services; cooperation of State agencies to secure hospital and health centers for cancer, mental, tuberculosis, venereal and heart cases, and adequate State and municipal fire inspection laws were reaffirmed by the federation.

Mrs. Charles Fuller of Brockton, Mass., budget chairman, presented a report showing the federation had $139,057 in unrestricted funds, $493,192.26 in restricted funds and $76,589.43 in capital funds as of March 31.

would give the Army "something approaching four divisions."

Navy Bill Passes by Voice Vote

Earlier, the Navy appropriation bill rode through the Senate by voice vote. It was virtually unchanged from the form it which it was reported to the floor. Before the measure goes to the President, differences must be thrashed out by a Senate-House conference committee.

The upper house added 176.5 millions in cash and cut back 161 millions in 1946-7 carryover Navy funds. This will add 41,490 officers and men, and increase the active fleets by 85 ships and 693 planes over House totals.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), who has charge of the bill, said it would give the Navy approximately equal "well-rounded battle task forces" in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

While centering his fire on the House personnel cuts, Paterson also objected to other slashes in Army Air Force and Transportation Corps funds.

He declared the Air Force "must be kept modern" and backed by "a sound and vigorous aviation industry."

Deadline Near On Hospital Pepco Refunds

Midnight tonight is the deadline set for sending in PEPCO refund coupons to aid Children's Hospital.

The hospital received additional support yesterday from 1246 District residents, who asked that their electric bill refunds be turned over to the hospital's building fund.

So far, 7341 coupons have been received, the Potomac Electric Power Co. reported. In the event that each donor is entitled to the top refund of $3.60, the hospital will be nearer its $1,300,000 goal by about $26,427. The hospital's campaign is still $80,000 short of funds.

Meanwhile, The Post yesterday received 148 invalidated tranist tokens to be turned over to the hospital's building fund. Of these 137 were brought in by George B. Glazer, a Treasury Department employe, who had collected them for about three weeks. A periodic checkup of coin-vending machines brought the tokens to light, Glazer said.

La Fontaine Assessment May Be Raised

The District may revise its "too low" assessment of seven acres of land owned by Jimmy La Fontaine at Eastern ave. and Bladensburg rd. ne.

This was revealed yesterday by Assessor Edward A. Dent, who observed that La Fontaine recently sold about one acre of adjacent land, assessed at $4000, to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for $52,750.

Assessed at $5000 an Acre

Dent said the seven acres were currently assessed at $5000 per acre. "It's too low," he said.

"We're picking up these low assessed values all the time," he added. "But we can't adjust them all in a week or even a year or two."

Dent said he had no idea how much of an upward adjustment would be made. "You can't just arbitrarily increase the assessment of one property without considering other properties in the area," he pointed out.

"We'll have to study the whole area along Bladensburg rd. before we make any decision," he added.

The assessment rates on the property have already been set for the year beginning July 1, he revealed. "But we'll definitely make the revision before July, 1948," he said.

Russians Help Chinese Reds, Chiangist Says

Nanking, June 24 (AP).—Chiang Kai-shek's chief of staff conceded today his armies in Manchuria were in a perilous position and accused Russia of giving the Communists "substantial" help in the civil war.

Gen. Chen Chung spoke openly of Russia, contrary to the usual cautious policy of high Chinese officials, who, however, have become more outspoken recently in urging the United States to grant China loans.

(A hint of revolt from a new quarter, South China, came in a dispatch from Hong Kong. Six Chinese political organizations urging President Truman to "turn down resolutely" China's application for a loan, saying it would only be used "to prolong the civil war."

(They asserted "a coalition government formed in the near future will never, never accept responsibility for such a debt."

(Among signers of a message to United States officials were Marshal Li Chi-Shen, Chiang Kai-shek's chief of staff in 1928 and sometimes mentioned as a possible leader of a separationist movement, and the Democratic League, China's third largest political party, with often sides with the Communists.)

Chen charged that at least 31 Russian advisers were with the Communist troops now battering the Manchurian city of Szepingkai.

He said Communist strength had grown to 850,000 troops within a year and another 600,000 were being trained.

[Chen admitted that the government's American-equipped 74th Division "gallantly sacrificed their lives" in the Shantung mountains because disrupted communications prevented supplies and reinforcements from reaching them, the United Press said. Presumably the Communists captured thousands of dollars' worth of American arms, trucks and jeeps.]

Chen asserted the Russians had given the Communists direct help in Shantung by transporting their troops in ships from Manchuria.

Meanwhile, progovernment press dispatches from Mukden said government armies were closing in for the relief of Szepingkai's garrison in Manchuria.

The government's Central News Agency said the Communists had control of the railroad from Chengteh, Jehol Province capital, to Mukden by capturing the city of Lingyuan, 75 miles northeast of Chengteh.

European Coal Shortage Put at 42 Million Tons

Geneva, Switzerland, June 24 (AP).—Director General Edward J. Phelan told the International Labor Organization Conference today that Europe would have a 1947 coal shortage of 17 million to 42 million tons, constituting a serious drag on its economic recovery.

Phelan said Europe was making fairly satisfactory progress toward restoration of consumer standards of living.

He said food production was an outstanding exception to economic recovery.

Famine Reported Rife In Schleswig-Holstein

Kiel, Germany, June 24 (U.P.).—Fifty per cent of the population of Schleswig-Holstein is starving, Air Vice Marshal Hugh Champion de Crespigny, British occupation commissioner for the rufugee-clogged zone, said today.

More than 1,250,000 displaced persons—only 3 per cent of whom are fit for active work—have streamed into the area until today it holds 48 per cent of the displaced population of the entire British occupation zone.

Vatican Paper Charges Yugoslav Persecution

Vatican City, June 24 (U.P.).—The semiofficial Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano today accused the Yugoslav government of religious persecution of more than 400,000 persons and charged the Tito government with systematic elimination of Catholicism.

The Yugoslav government also was accused of arresting 200 priests, 60 nuns, 3 vicars-general and 1 archbishop.

He completed his story yesterday while propped on his side in his hospital room. The "courtroom" was closed to all except Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, court officials and opposing attorneys who were packed closely around the bed.

A transcript will be read to the jury when the court reconvenes today.

Dr. Henry Garsson Sued On Transcript Contract

Dr. Henry Garsson was sued yesterday in Municipal Court for $1800. The Bureau of National Affairs charged Garsson violated a contract for transcribing testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee. The BNA said one of its subsidiaries was hired to do the job but that Garsson never paid for the work.

Deficiency Bill Sent to Truman

The House approved and sent to President Truman yesterday a $72,236,257 deficiency appropriation bill carrying 12 million dollars for emergency flood control work.

The total in the bill represents a net increase of $1,380,000 added by the Senate. That body added $1,500,000 for control of the foot and mouth disease and reduced by $120,000 the Postoffice Department's funds.

8 Fliers Feared Dead

Bogota, Colombia, June 24 (U.P.). Eight members of the Colombian air force are feared dead in the crash yesterday of a Beechcraft 507 plane en route from Cali to Bogota, the director general of aviation said today.

Red Delegates Say Koreans Stoned Them

Seoul, Korea, June 24 (U.P.).—Russian delegates to the joint United States-Soviet Commission for Korea protested to American authorities today that they were pelted with stones and dirt by "reactionary terrorists" on three occasions yesterday.

The protest was made public by Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, chief of the American delegation, who also disclosed that rightist followers of Dr. Kim Koo warned him during yesterday's illegal demonstration that they would assassinate Allied authorities who tried to impose trusteeship upon Korea.

The Soviet protest, made by Col. Gen. Terenty Shtikov, charged that Korean police "took no preventive measures" when the Russians were pelted, "but merely stood around and laughed."

Brown assured the Soviet delegation that proper steps would be taken immediately.

He told a press conference that the three rightist representatives he received yesterday during the illegal antitrusteeship demonstration said they would continue demonstrations.

"I told them," Brown said, "that it would be several months before a definition of trusteeship could be reached and they would have this period of grace in which to live before committing suicide."

Blast Shatters Windows In Jerusalem Court Building

Jerusalem, Palestine, June 24 (U.P.).—An explosion, probably of a hand grenade, tonight shattered windows of the building where the British military court for Jerusalem hears its cases.

There were no casualties.

Arab leaders in Jaffa informed the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine today that its delegates would not be received in Jaffa if they were accompanied by newspaper reporters and photographers. The commission asked 25 reporters and photographers not to follow it.

Yesterday the Arab mayor of Ramleh advised the commission that it should not bring along any Jewish correspondents or liaison men.

When the delegates went to inspect a cotton mill at Ramleh today, they were received cordially enough by the Arab managers until the Arabs heard that reporters were outside. They then ordered the gates shut. The commission inspected the plant while reporters waited outside.

The commission visited Jaffa, Beit, and Dajan today.

Sixteen thousand Jews who were caught trying to slip into Palestine asked the commission to visit their detention camps in Cyprus.

House Authorizes Voice Continuation

Funds Still to Be Provided, However; Senate Group Recommends 13 Millions

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

By a vote of 272 to 97 the House yesterday authorized the State Department to continue its foreign information service, while in the Senate the Appropriations Committee recommended a total of 13 million dollars for the purpose.

The ovewhelming House vote on passage of the Mundt bill came after three weeks of delaying tactics on the part of a group of die-hard Republican opponents.

In the expectation that the Senate will not have time to act on the Mundt measure before the end of this session, the full Senate Appropriations Committee requested a suspension of the rules so that the appropriations measure can carry legislative authority for the overseas information service.

Program Still Curtailed

The Senate group asked for $11,500,000 for the program's operating during the fiscal year beginning July 1, and $1,500,000 for liquidating part of the program. This will mean closing the agency's New York office.

The committee yesterday added one million dollars to the total originally recommended by a subcommittee.

Even with the addition, however, the State Department will have to suspend all its American information and cultural relations work in at least a dozen countries, if both houses accept the recommendation.

State Department officials yesterday thought it probable that all its information and cultural officers would have to be brought home from the following countries:

Spain, Portugal, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada, Bolivia, Paraguay and most of the Central American republics.

Information Libraries Affected

In many of these countries there are American information libraries which will have to be closed for lack of funds. An appeal may be made to the American business communities in some of these countries, especially in the British Dominions in the southern hemisphere, to maintain the libraries with some local American resident to answer the thousands of inquiries about the United States that are received every month.

In addition, branch offices of the State Department's United States Information Service probably will have to be closed in Naples and Palermo, Italy, and in Lyons and Marseilles in France.

The present total of 323 American information and cultural officers now serving in 77 countries will be cut to about 150, with a corresponding cut in the number of aliens employed in the various countries for clerical and translation work.

The cuts will leave a total of 24 American information and cultural officers for the whole of Asia, it was estimated yesterday. No more than 70 Americans will be left in this field in 28 countries of Europe.

Of the 13-million-dollar over-all total for the OIC, $6,387,250 was allotted to the International Broadcasting Division, which includes the Voice of America beamed to Russia.

The committee recommended only $678,000 for personnel in this division, "so as to require the State Department to contract with private broadcasters for the short-wave programing."

The Budget Bureau's estimate for the informational and cultural program was $31,381,220.

The information funds were included in a $234,324,703 sum recommended for the State Department. This is approximately 15 million dollars more than approved by the House.

Senate Figures Top House

The State Department appropriation, in turn, was part of a $538,976,492 total recommended by the committee for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments and the Federal judiciary.

The House had voted about 12 million dollars less.

Senator Joseph Ball (R., Minn.) said that in addition to the information authorization, the committee would also seek authorization for employment of clerks and secretaries for Federal judges.

The full Senate committee cut the House-passed 45 million dollars for Philippine rehabilitation by $2,500,000. Ball said last year's appropriation for this purpose had not been exhausted and that the cut should not impede aid to the islands.

Protest Marks Talk on Atom

Lake Success, N. Y., June 24 (U.P.). Russia contended today that the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission had no power to consider international development of atomic industry during its reach for world atomic energy control.

In a closed session of the political committee, Dr. Dmitri V. Skobeltsyn, who is one of Russia's two top cosmic ray scientists, said the committee was no longer talking out atomic control but had moved into a discussion of international development of atomic industry.

The General Assembly did not authorize such a discussion, the Russian insisted, and it is time for the political committee to get back to the fundamental questions as portrayed in the latest Soviet proposals for atomic control.

Skobeltsyn's complaint emphasized Russian resistance to entrusting atomic research, development and management to the proposed world atomic control agency.

Refugee Bill Expected To Reach Floor Today

Legislation authorizing American participation in the United Nations international refugee organization cleared its last committee hurdle in the House yesterday and was expected to reach the floor today.

The bill, which had been held back because of Republican leaders' fear that it might provide a bitter intra-party row on the floor, finally was given an informal go-ahead by the GOP steering committee.

Senate Ratifies Treaty Shifting Dope Control

Strikes Confined to Sicily

Rome, June 24 (AP).—Sicily's Communist-dominated unions started an island-wide strike today over the killing of four Communists near Palermo Sunday, but the General Confederation of Labor averted a general walkout throughout the country.

The confederation's executive, also dominated by Communists, turned down proposals to extend the strike. It compromised on a 30-minute work stoppage at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow as a protest against "Agrarian and Fascist terrorism."

The executive said it had rejected demands to call an Italy-wide strike "in the interests of the nation."

Reports from Messina, Syracuse, Catania and Palermo said the strike was orderly, but that bread workers had joined. Sulphur miners, and gas, light, communications and public transport workers did not strike.

Four small leftist parties joined with the Communists and Left-wing Socialists in a unanimous howl for the overthrow of Premier de Gasperi's government.

This United Leftist front blamed De Gasperi's government for the killings.

[Informed sources told the Associated Press tonight that provisional President Enrico de Nicola will hand in his resignation to the constituent assembly tomorrow. The assembly was expected to adjourn immediately after the letter is read and not elect a new president until Thursday at the earliest.]

Paris Workers Demonstrate

SCUFFLE WITH GENDARMES—Demanding price reductions and wage increases, demonstrators break through a police cordon in front of the French National Assembly Building in Paris Monday. They attempted to enter the meeting place, where Premier Paul Ramadier pleaded with the Assembly for an increase in taxes. (Photo radioed yesterday from Paris)

Paris, June 24 (AP).—Approximately 200,000 French workers were on strike tonight in protest against Premier Paul Ramadier's new tax bill, adopted by the National Assembly today over Communist opposition.

The walkouts affected coal miners, banks and important industries.

The tax bill—which will raise the prices of such items as milk, bread, cigarettes, and gasoline—was approved 302 to 241 after an all-night, 16-hour session of the assembly. Communists and rightists voted against the measure, and 59 deputies abstained.

Ramadier's own Socialist Party and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's Popular Republican Movement (MRP) voted for the bill, many reluctantly.

Freedom Party Gets Threat

Budapest, June 24 (AP).—Dezso Sulyok, Freedom Party leader, said today Laszlo Rajk, Communist minister of the interior, had threatened that he "might have to take appropriate measures against the (Freedom) party in the interests of maintaining public order."

Sulyok said Rajk refused to give an official guarantee that meetings of the party would not be broken up by Communists, and this probably would mean a meeting scheduled for Miskolc on July 6 would be canceled.

The Freedom Party chief quoted the Communist official as saying the group was "Fascist and reactionary" and he was "surprised at the patience of labor parties."

Reports, which could not be confirmed immediately, circulated tonight that Rajk had denied making such statements.

Second Request Rejected

London, June 24 (AP).—An authoritative British source said today Russia had rejected formally a second British request for information about events leading up to last month's Communist-inspired coup in Hungary.

The note repeated the Soviet contention that changes in the Hungarian government were effected in the "normal constitutional way."

Plan Backed

Polish Aid For Europe Is Offered

Poland formally expressed its willingness yesterday to take part in any European discussions on the so-called Marshall plan for European economic revival and reconstruction.

Garner

The Polish Ambassador, Joseph Winiewicz, visited the newly designated Undersecretary of State, Robert A. Lovett, and told of his government's readiness to cooperate. He said Poland would gladly supply any information needed.

"This means our adherence to the plan," Winiewicz told reporters. Poland thus became the first European nation to express its approval of Secretary Marshall's proposal that the European nations agree on a reconstruction program.

Czechoslovakia has already told the State Department of its deep interest in the Marshall proposals, but has not gone further in commenting on it.

Faces Grain Deficit

Poland is expected to figure prominently in European reconstruction schemes as a country contributing help as well as receiving it. Its mines in Silesia are already one of Europe's principal sources of coal; on the other hand, the Ambassador said yesterday, it faces a deficit of 200,000 tons of grain between now and December.

The Poles already have been made eligible for a share of the 350 million dollars of foreign relief money appropriated by Congress. In addition, their mines and farms are in urgent need of redevelopment.

Meanwhile Robert L. Garner, vice president of the World Bank, told reporters yesterday that Bank officials had "informally" proposed formation of an international coal authority to operate and develop the coal mines of the Ruhr.

Garner sair the idea had been discussed with Undersecretary of State Will Clayton, who is now in London, and probably would be discussed by the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and the Soviet Union in Paris.

Interested in Financing

The World Bank is interested in the financing of such a venture, Garner said, and had "thrown out the idea" in a tentative way.

The plan presupposes financial guarantees from Britain and the United States, as the countries administering western Germany, and from France, Belgium, Holland and perhaps other countries that depend on imports of Ruhr coal.

Garner hinted that with such guarantees the World Bank might be able to lend the necessary funds. The Bank, he said, "would be willing to do anything in its power that it believes sound to achieve an increased supply of coal in Europe."

Move to Slash Movie Imports Fails in Britain

London, June 24 (U.P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton refused in the Commons today to promise that motion pictures would head the list of imports from the United States which the government might slash as an economy step.

His refusal accompanied announcement by Food Minister John Strachey that the government had decided not to raise whisky export prices for the United States.

Both statements came as William L. Clayton, American Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, consulted with leading British officials on Britain's proposed import reduction plan and European economy.

Observers said most British officials realized that a decrease in imports from America would work both ways—Americans would slice their imports from Britain, too.

American sources here said Clayton would voice the American view that reduction of imports of films, tobacco and other nonessentials constituted discrimination against American products in violation of the terms of the Anglo-American loan agreement.

Turkish Aids Talks Nearing Conclusion

Ankara, Turkey, June 24 (U.P.).—Reliable sources said today that talks between the Turkish Foreign Office and United States Ambassador Edwin C. Wilson on implementation of American aid were nearing conclusion.

These observers believed the aid agreement would be signed Wednesday.

Widow Arrives For Murder Trial

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

IN CUSTODY—Mrs. Bertha Surprise Cote (left), accompanied by a police matron, arrives at the courthouse in Plymouth, Mass., yesterday for another session of her trial for murder in the Christmas season slaying of her husband, Rene. The attractive 28-year-old widow smiled and took notes as a police stenographer testified to her story to police about having "relations" with Walter Steele, 24, mechanic, once accused of her husband's slaying, but freed last January for lack of evidence. Steele denied he had been in the Cote apartment the night of the crime

The News said a "sizable contract for jet fighters running into several hundred thousand pounds has already been settled."

Petrillo to Face Investigation in House Next Week

By The Associated Press

James C. Petrillo, who got a double rap from the Supreme Court only Monday, will be the target of a congressional investigation tentatively set for next Monday.

Petrillo, president of the AFL Musicians Union, has been under subpena for weeks by a House Labor Subcommittee.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), a committee member told a reporter:

"We've done a considerable amount of groundwork on the case and have plenty of questions to fire at him about his union's policies and practices.

"We want to ask him about featherbedding, about making an employer hire more musicians than he needs; about his famous welfare fund and how it is being used.

"We are interested in whether he has adopted practices that have had the effect of discouraging the use of new inventions, as in the television and frequency modulation fields."

New NLRB

President Truman's first major task in connection with the Taft-Hartley Act is to find a man of great capacity and discretion to be general counsel to the new National Labor Relations Board. The act also calls for two new members of the board, making a total of five. Under the new system, however, we doubt that these positions on the board are as important as that of general counsel, for the latter will become, in some respects, the administrator of the act. According to the interpretation of the measure by the conference committee, the general counsel will have supervision over all attorneys employed by the board, except the trial examiners and legal assistants to the board members. He is also to have "final authority to act in the name of, but independently of any direction, control, or review by, the board in respect of the investigation of charges and the issuance of complaints of unfair labor practices, and in respect of the prosecution of such complaints before the board." In addition, the board may assign him other administrative duties.

The object of assigning these special duties to the general counsel is, of course, to separate the prosecuting and judging functions. Cases involving unfair labor practices will be initiated by the general counsel, just as criminal charges are initiated by the district attorney. Hearings will be held before trial examiners, and appeals may be carried to the NLRB, sitting as a review tribunal. Obviously this arrangement will throw a tremendous responsibility upon the general counsel. He will have to order investigations of unfair labor practices and to decide which cases are to be presented to the board or its examiners. Since he will have to deal with complaints against unions as well as those against employers, he should obviously be free from bias—a man in whom both groups will have confidence. Above all, he should have the discretion and patience to apply this complicated piece of legislation with a sense of understanding and restraint. The act effects drastic changes in the organization and functions of the NLRB, but these changes ought to be effected with a minimum of disturbance to its work and to well-regulated labor-management relations.

Sen. Morse's P. S.

Senator Morse, in the closing hours of the debate on the Taft-Hartley bill, took us to task for saying that the filibuster in which he took part "fizzled." It is all a question of semantics. "Fizzled," according to Webster, means an abortive effort. We said in our editorial that the filibuster was intended "to stave off a vote until the country rallied to the support of President Truman's veto." If it wasn't for that purpose, what on earth was it for? Certainly the Senator, with his 10-hour talkathon, did succeed in staving off a vote, but the effort had not the slightest effect on the outcome. In a word, the filibuster fizzled. What seems to bother Senator Morse more than anything else is that anybody should think he could not have stayed on his legs much longer. He says he would have continued to talk but for Republican agreement to put off the vote till 3 p. m. Monday. We are free to pay tribute to the redoubtable Senator's stamina and staying power. But, it seems to us, he does not invalidate our point that, though he accomplished his purpose in staving off a vote, the endeavor came to precisely nothing. Again to quote Webster's meaning of fizzled, he "failed after a good start."

Where the Oregon Senator may have a grievance, and we understand he has voiced it, is that we did not give space to a letter to the editor from his pen on the Taft-Hartley bill. He seems to think this was part of our campaign of "slanted editorials." A misunderstanding seems to be involved here. A letter from Senator Morse dated June 10 arrived by special messenger addressed personally to the editor. The salutation was personal and the tone was personal, and we felt, therefore, that it was only a personal remonstrance, so that we replied personally. If we had thought that the Senator intended his letter for publication, we would certainly have printed it. We are very careful to give both sides in a controversy full attention in our letters column. In the dispute on the labor bill, for instance, since May 1 our statistical record shows that we have given over twice as much inchage to anti-bill letters as to pro-bill letters, 57½ inches to 26 inches. The preponderance of anti-bill letters was not due to any paucity of letters on the other side, but represented a conscious selection on our part so as adequately to present the views of those who differed from our editorial policy.

Tideland Oil

The Supreme Court's decision on the tideland oil issue exposes the disingenuousness of the legislation quitclaiming the underwater land off the coast of California passed by Congress last year and fortunately vetoed by the President. It was argued by the proponents of that legislation that it involved no yielding on the part of the Federal Government but merely quieted a State claim which was in any event indisputable. Now, however, it appears that the State claim, so far from being indisputable, was actually altogether invalid. Thus the bill would have given to California an incalculable asset belonging to all the people of the United States.

Of course, Congress had, and still has, the power to give this asset away. Legislation to that end has again been introduced in Congress. But to enact it would be, we think, a most reckless profligacy. One of the arguments advanced by Mr. Justice Black in support of the Court's judgment that the Federal Government possesses paramount rights in and full dominion over the 3-mile belt off the Nation's coasts affords an equally cogent plea for retention of that dominion. "The very oil about which the State and Nation here contend," he noted, "might well become the subject of international dispute and settlement. The ocean, even its 3-mile belt, is thus of vital consequence to the Nation in its desire to engage in commerce and to live in peace with the world; it also becomes of crucial importance should it ever again become impossible to preserve that peace. And as peace and world commerce are the paramount responsibilities of the Nation, rather than an individual State, so, if wars come, they must be fought by the Nation."

This decision of the Supreme Court is indubitably a blow to California and holds the threat of a blow to Texas and possibly to other coastal States which have derived revenue from leasing their offshore lands. We hope that some way can be found to afford California a measure of compensation for the loss of land to which her claim has long gone unchallenged. But the rich mineral resources of the marginal sea ought to be conserved for the national security and welfare. And the Legislature of the Nation, though it be composed of representatives of the States, should have no question as to its paramount allegiance. Mr. Justice Frankfurter dissented from his colleagues on the ground that the determination to claim the marginal sea on the part of the United States "is a political decision not for this Court." He went on to say, however, "I have no doubt that the President and Congress between them could make it part of the national domain." This is precisely what the President and Congress ought to do, so that all doubt may be resolved. So rich a prize should be claimed for, not relinquished by, the people of the United States.

Scarcity Controls

There seems to be little opposition, at least among leaders in Congress, to extension of the export-import controls that are basically necessary for promoting world recovery. The agreement is fortunate, but it seems to have bred a degree of lackadaisicalness. The June 30 expiration date is fast approaching, but so far there has been no decisive action, although several committees have been at work on the problem. There is no good reason why the extension of controls should be another last-minute shotgun affair. What is needed, apparently, is a legislative saddle burr to get the matter before the House and Senate for a vote. The Administration must share the blame for the delay because of its peculiar dalliance in requesting continuation of the Second War Powers Act which includes import restrictions.

In our opinion there is much to be said for the approach of the Senate Judiciary Committee in wrapping all export-import controls in one bill. The present pot-pourri only promotes confusion. Export controls per se now are a subject of separate legislation apart from the conglomerate Second War Powers Act which contains import controls and several other essential provisions. The Senate committee has merged all the interrelated functions into one operation, to be presided over by an independent administrator appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. We think the House, which is still mired by a jurisdictional split, should follow the Senate example.

The controls are as necessary in our own interest as in anyone else's. Export restrictions are essential to protect our domestic economy from an inflationary spiral that would result from unlimited foreign competition for scarce goods. A corollary is the authority of the Secretary of State to obtain priority over domestic users for export articles necessary to implement our foreign policy, such as, for instance, road machinery. This will become increasingly important in execution of the Marshall plan. In a similar category is the clause giving priority to production and export of materials necessary to increase our imports of strategic items. An example is tin mining machinery, which will aid in obtaining greater output of that scarce commodity. Restrictions on food imports are likewise vital to the food allocation plan carried out by the International Emergency Food Council. Were we, with our superior power, to vie with needy countries for fats and oils or nitrogen fertilizers, we should soon prostrate their recovery—and incidentally their ability to buy from us.

The State Department, we believe, should be completely candid with the people in explaining both the need and the consequences of these controls. Undersecretary Acheson hinted at the issues in his recent speech in Mississippi. To some degree, the continuation of export-import restrictions will prolong the wartime lowering of our standard of living in that some consumer goods will remain scarce. It is necessary, however, not to think in terms of the washing machines that will not be available on a full scale for a while, but in terms of the alternative. The unrest and economic distress abroad that would result if we did not impose these self-restraints ultimately would cost us far more than any temporary inconvenience we must endure.

Shipping Powers

If our reservoir of ships is to be employed to meet our own and world needs during the next year, Congress must aid the Maritime Commission with enabling legislation. Both Secretary of State Marshall and Undersecretary Clayton foresee a shipping crisis if the Maritime Commission's ship operating powers are allowed to expire June 30.

The reason for this is that the commission is still operating ships, through agents, in categories in which private companies have been either unable or unwilling to take over. The number of ships so operated is relatively small, but it is highly significant. It includes, for instance, 262 tankers, which by law may be sold but not leased to private companies. Shipping operators have been reluctant to purchase these tankers because they feel the present demand will soon subside. Consequently, the Maritime Commission has underwritten the uneconomic end by continuing to provide tanker service to needy countries and our troops abroad. Moreover, the commission is still operating 81 dry cargo ships, and is assisting our depleted passenger fleet with converted troopships to aid in meeting essential travel requirements.

What the State Department seeks to guard against is a contingency in which there would not be enough privately operated ships available to meet the need and the Government had no power to step in. Shipping is a particularly crucial factor in world recovery. Though the goods and food we send abroad are by no means all relief cargoes, they must be carried largely in American bottoms because foreign shipping has been drastically reduced. The beneficial aspect of the predicted record grain crop could be lost, for instance, if there were not enough shipping readily available to handle the exports. Likewise, if 262 tankers were suddenly withdrawn from service, a world petroleum crisis could easily ensue. Certainly the shortage predicted for our own East Coast would be greatly augmented.

Agreement with the Maritime Commission will not, of course, provide the answer to the problem of the size of our merchant marine. That is a matter upon which we should be giving careful thought. It seems foolish in view of our postwar sea and air power to build up a bloated merchant marine. Other seafaring nations should be permitted a comeback. The need for sharing the world's carrying trade is pointed up by the present dollar shortage. Why cannot we let the Europeans have the surplus ships that are now rotting in our harbors, so enabling them to earn dollars in the carrying trade, and curbing the senseless competition for steel in Europe for purposes of shipbuilding?

But this is another problem. Extension of Maritime Commission operating powers is an expedient to tide things over temporarily until we can consider the future of the merchant marine on a permanent basis. That the Maritime Commission is not anxious to remain in the operating business is proved adequately by the fact that from a total of 100 per cent Government operation on VJ-Day, the proportion has now been reduced to 5 per cent.

Old-Age Insurance

The House has voted to freeze the 1-per-cent payroll tax levied on employers and employes for old-age insurance purposes for two more years. Without legislative action, the rate would automatically advance to 2½ per cent next year and 3 per cent in 1949, thereby increasing contributions from employers and employes together by two billion dollars in 1948 and 2.8 billion the following year. Even these larger contributions to the old-age fund would be woefully inadequate to cover the costs of prospective benefits. But in view of the heavy burden of postwar taxes, a strong case can be made for deferring scheduled additions to payroll taxes that would exact toll from industries and wage earners.

However, the House bill does not stop there; it sets up a reduced schedule of contributions for future years, fixing the maximum rate at 2 per cent in 1957 and thereafter. Of course, limited payments of this sort would fall far short of the contributions required to put the old-age insurance system on a self-sustaining basis. It may well be that Congress will eventually put the system on an entirely different basis, recognizing that the safety of a compulsory governmental insurance plan of this sort rests on the Government's power to tax. It may then decide to limit contributions to amounts admittedly inadequate to defray the costs of the system, leaving the Government to supplement returns from payroll taxes when need arises.

As benefits become more comprehensive, objections to such a proposal on grounds of inequity would lose force. Meantime, we may be sure that any schedule of rates adopted without allowing for the ultimate heavy cost of the old-age insurance system will almost certainly have to be discarded.

Military Training

In answer to my letter of June 14 asking for a recital of instances where universal military training had kept a nation out of war, Mr. Charles A. Grefe (letter published June 20) says that Holland kept out of war from 1814 to 1940 by maintaining a conscript army and cites the fact that in 1870 Holland was invited to enter the Franco-Prussian war, but the King chose to remain neutral; that again, in 1918, the Queen declined a similar German request. This seems to me irrelevant. Apparently Holland kept out of those wars not because she had a ready conscript army; but because she had two monarchs with the good sense not to use it.

Meanwhile let's see about that alleged 125 years of Dutch peace. From 1825 to 1830 Holland was at war constantly against the revolutionary forces of Java, and again in 1849 and 1888 and, still later, in 1904. For 25 years following 1872 Holland was in constant warfare with the Achinese of western Sumatra.

And J. B. N. (letter published June 20) cites the case of the French violation of the Monroe Doctrine in Mexico while we were fighting the Civil War and of her precipitate skedaddle when she saw our prepared Union Army. Here, at least we have some admissible evidence—for whatever it is worth. But in evaluating it one must note that France did not renew her attempt notwithstanding that for several decades thereafter we didn't have a single conscript soldier and only a "contemptible little army" of 25,000 volunteer regulars.

Universal military training is as old as Mars himself—and since 4600 B.C. the world has had 13 years of war somewhere, for every year of peace!—so the researchers tell me. JOHN P. EVERETT.
Washington.

Noisy Fliers

Mr. Francis J. Robertson (letter published June 4) has asked whether the reserve pilots at Anacostia can not accomplish their training with less noise.

I am a reserve pilot responsible for part of the noise. After a great deal of thought, I see no relief from the noise. Babies cry and airplanes roar. We do our best to still our baby without strangling it. Commanding officers do and will see that pilots comply with CAA regulations and avoid unnecessary noise at low altitude.

CAA engineers have equipped a "silent cub" with a multiblade, slow-speed propeller, reduction gears and muffler. Reserve planes, reconditioned from the war, boast no such refinements. Military planes are quiet only on the ground.

The take-off pattern must pass over some homes. Safe take-off demands every bit of power. No one can quiet the screaming cry of a propeller and the roar of 2000-horsepower, straining to lift 6 tons to a safe altitude.

RICHARD E. MOOT,
Lieut. Comdr., Naval Reserve.
Washington.

Depleted Resources

In your issue of June 16 in a news item entitled "Worst Oil and Gas Shortage Threatens United States" it was predicted that by late summer or fall the old wartime signs "Sorry, no gas today" may become prevalent once more throughout our country.

In the same article you state that Russia is sending a fleet for United States gas and oil and that the first five ships of a 12-tanker Russian fleet have arrived at San Pedro to load aviation gasoline for Vladivostok.

While no mention is made of scrap iron and other strategic materials, would not an investigation bring to light that other Russian ships are likewise engaged?

Here we are again, applying the same old practice of appeasement that preceded the war with Japan and Germany, only in a more acute form, for now, when our resources of these vital materials are dangerously depleted, instead of stocking them ourselves, we are shipping same to a potential enemy.

Despite this terrible threat, the former Chief of Staff and now Secretary of State permits shipments of our precious war resources, while at the same time advocating a sort of world WPA which can only end by the complete bankruptcy of our present over-taxed country, followed by the same old curses of Uncle Shylock from those nations we would have tried to help.

Would it not be wise for Congress and the rest of us to weigh carefully the Herbert Hoover policy of stop, look and listen, before embarking on the proposed "Lady Bountiful" program which will only exhaust our country and its remaining resources in a hopeless task and thus fall an easy prey to the Communist forces within and without? JOHN A. BALCH.
Washington.

Unification Testimony

The continued interest of Congress in opinions on unification of the armed forces is now shown by the testimony before the House Committee on Expenditures. As reported in the press, Captain Karig, USNR, and Rear Admiral Zacharias, USN, retired, oppose the idea. The latter very able officer is reported as saying that 99 per cent of the members of the naval service are opposed to unification. This may well be true of graduates of the Naval Academy, active or inactive. It is certainly untrue of reserve officers now on the inactive list, who make up the bulk of the officers in any war.

It seems to me the testimony of inactive reserve officers below the rank of captain, who had experience in joint undertakings with other services, might be illuminating. Human nature being what it is, the viewpoint of the inactive reserves would be as free from bias as Congress is likely to hear. GARRARD W. GLENN.
New York.

Diplomats And The Law

While I was seated by the radio reading The Post, news came on telling about Mr. Truman's safety program. Right in front of my eyes, I was reading about "Two Drivers Stage Race on Boulevard." They were going 80 to 95 miles an hour. The police, after a chase, got one and made the justified arrest. They chased the other and finally caught him, but had to let him go since it was a diplomatic car.

Since when can a diplomat's car break laws and be protected by the law? I thought our safety laws were meant for all.

MRS. ALICE DUTCHER.
Silver Spring, Md.

Wallace's Foreign Policy

Of the three "sympathetic-to-Wallace" letters in The Post of June 21, I believe the letter of Gertrude Chap came closest to confirming Reporter Mary Spargo's statement that there were many persons present at the Watergate who had obviously come out of curiosity.

There wouldn't have "seemed to be an atmosphere of general letdown and dissatisfaction," the crowd would not have "expected more," if the crowd had not turned out in the hope of hearing Mr. Wallace spout Communist fire and brimstone and, most likely, in the hope of witnessing at least one or two small riots.

Mr. Wallace says that he is fighting and arguing "for peace"; the argument he makes, however, takes no account of most of the factors bearing on the possibility of peace and is, therefore, devoid of logic.

Mr. Wallace seems to take, as his point of departure, the fact that all peoples want peace; he goes on from there to make what could appear to be a logical argument only to those minds which are incapable of encompassing more than "one idea—one collateral concept" at a time. Of course, it is absolutely true that people do want peace, but they also have other wants. It is in the pursuit of these "other wants" that people are bound, sooner or later, to come up against the difficult proposition that they must sacrifice either their "desire for peace," or their desire for something else. F. L. FREEMAN.
Coral Hills, Md.

I am taking issue with you not on your disagreement with Mr. Wallace, although I, in turn, find myself in disagreement with you on that score, but on the nature and tone of your criticisms as expressed in your June 18 editorial.

First, I should like to take exception to your analysis of what the late President Roosevelt would have done under existing circumstances. As you have pointed out a number of times in the past, no one can predict with any great degree of accuracy what Mr. Roosevelt's course in a specific situation would be. As you note, the peace conference invitation to Mr. Roosevelt came from Japan; Mr. Wallace suggested that Mr. Truman issue the invitation in this instance. This represents quite a difference, I believe. But, and this is more fundamental and important, the use of the analogy in the first place indicates a very interesting state of mind on the part of The Post. Here is a direct comparison between the situation prior to Pearl Harbor and now. Such a comparison is somewhat questionable, in my opinion.

Then, your editorial goes on to state that Mr. Wallace proposed a meeting of President Truman and Stalin at which basic differences should be discussed and settled if possible, but that all or any references to Germany should be avoided. I haven't the text of Mr. Wallace's speech, but, as I remember it, he simply stated that the framing of the German peace treaty should be postponed until after a meeting between Truman and Stalin to achieve basic harmony which would permit the drawing of a satisfactory peace treaty with Germany. I cannot recall any statement by Mr. Wallace to the effect that discussion of Germany should be avoided at the meeting.

KENNETH R. KLEINMAN.
Washington.

To test out Mr. Wallace's sporting blood, and his own actual belief in the worthiness of his statements, this writer makes the following suggestion: That Mr. Wallace be sent to Moscow as a committee of one to straighten out conditions, and obtain an understanding with Russia, capable of being carried out, and not inimical to the best interests of our country, or any of our Allies, and with the express understanding that if he fails, his passport shall be revoked, thus permitting him to remain in Russia until he shall have learned more about Russia and its form of government.

HARVEY N. MILLER.
Asheville, N. C.

"Political Expenditures"

Your editorial "Political Expenditures" of June 22, does not explain away the suppression of freedom of the press contained in the Taft-Hartley bill. For example, many unions have gone on record in convention in favor of increasing the legal minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents hourly. Even though Senator Ball opposes this measure, the Taft-Hartley bill would prohibit a union newspaper from advising its members to vote against Ball. And this despite the fact that opposition to Ball would be the logical result of the policy the union's membership adopted. The Taft-Hartley bill would even prohibit a union member from learning through the news columns of his union newspaper that Senator Ball voted against the minimum wage bill.

You claim that equal treatment is given unions and corporations alike, as regards the Taft-Hartley bill's restrictions on publications with political views. Such equality is akin to that of the French law prohibiting rich and poor alike from sleeping under bridges. Corporations have no need of directly financed house organs.

Any restraint on political expression by the CIO News or the American Federationist should apply to The Washington Post and any other newspaper as well.

People And Tariffs

Wool Warning

LONDONERS don't look nearly so shabby as they feel, report American visitors. The reason—a 12-year-old suit of British loomed wool often shows no shine, no trace of fray on its sleeves.

British craftsmen, who determinedly held quality up (at the expense of quantity) throughout the war, are now putting all their skill, energy and hope into the tweeds, fine woolens and worsteds, linens, cotton lace, subtly colored pottery, delicate chinaware they are denying themselves and readying for the American market. For these they expect to get the dollars with which they can buy American food to enliven their drab diets, and American machinery with which to rebuild their industries, and put their hard-up nation back on its feet.

In Holland the Dutch are industriously growing 8000 acres of bulbs—tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses—to sell to America next fall. Italians are eagerly working on their pottery, hand-blown glass, metal vases, pitchers and urns they hope to sell here—so they can buy our mass-produced products. Artisans all over the world are laboring long hours, forgetting fatigue in their zeal to create things of beauty and utility more fortunate people want—and can pay for.

IN THE United States, consumers look forward to enjoying (at reasonable prices if the Geneva conference can succeed in making a start toward economic peace) all these fruits of Old World handicraft.

But now chill winds of doubt begin to blow about all these trade hopes and expectations. The wool bill, an act providing for increase in wool import duties under certain circumstances, has given a bad scare both to foreign countries whose economic lifeblood is in exports, and to Americans who were hoping to buy badly needed suits, coats, blankets for a little less money within the next year or two.

The bill, passed by Congress, may not withstand a presidential veto if one is forthcoming. But the debates and the vote in Congress revealed a trend back toward high tariffs that brought disturbing memories of the trade wars of the 1930's.

Sniping at international trade cooperation keeps breaking out in unexpected places. What amateur gardeners construed as a camouflaged attack on the Netherlands bulb industry—whose sales to this country last year were 35 per cent of total Dutch national exports—came before Congress in a measure to permit the Secretary of Agriculture to limit imports of foreign nursery stock including flowering bulbs.

THE BILL, passed by the Senate, is now before a House Committee on Agriculture. Nurserymen who backed it insist the legislation is only to assure that imported bulbs are free from foreign disease pests. But the State Department opposed it (as it did the wool bill) and so did women from garden clubs, who maintained that through it American bulb growers were fighting foreign competition in order to force amateur gardeners to buy their less satisfactory bulbs. The move has caused great concern in the Netherlands.

Consumers, from whose pocketbooks come the cost of high tariffs, also have been getting into action. Twenty-two organizations, including 10 of the largest national groups of women, appealed to President Truman to veto the wool bill on the grounds that it would sabotage the Geneva negotiations and also work a hardship on American wool consumers. They pointed out that a small industry representing one-thousandth of the total economy should not benefit at the expense of all the people.

From now on special interests affected by tariff negotiations—such as the glove industry whose representatives have just been to Geneva to protest a proposed tariff reduction on gloves—will naturally be seeking exemptions. If these are granted and the program for international economic cooperation breaks down, consumers in general, including especially the mass of workers in unprotected industries, will be pawns in the trade wars—and possibly the shooting wars—that follow.

Ignoring The U. N.

Defect In Marshall European Plan

SECRETARY Marshall's Harvard address has helped to bolster confidence in Western Europe. The Marshall proposals represent a practical remedy. They offer reasonable assurance that if the European countries join in deciding how they can best help themselves, the additional assistance needed will come from the United States.

The clearest analysis of the Marshall speech was published by the organ of the British Labor Party. While the London Daily Herald admitted that "great good can come from this policy if it is guided throughout by the principle of world unity" it emphasized its conviction that "if the American Administration's plans are to advance the promotion of enduring peace they must raise no barrier to close collaboration between Eastern and Western Europe."

There is, unfortunately, to be found in the Marshall proposals the same basic defect as that contained in the original Truman proposals for help to Greece and Turkey before the latter were amended by Senator Vandenberg.

Why should this Government, which continues to proclaim its faith in the United Nations, have again ignored that organization?

LAST IARCH the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations established the Economic Commission for Europe. It was the United States which first proposed its creation. The Soviet Union, after some opposition, voted for its establishment. There is a Russian member on it. All of the European states are represented. Since no veto right exists in the commission, no one power could block approval of a reconstruction program satisfactory to a majority of the European countries.

The commission is to meet early in July. It is scheduled to take over the functions of three other bodies, the Emergency Economic Committee for Europe, the European Coal Organization and the European Central Inland Transport Organization. Such autonomous agencies as the Food and Agriculture Organization and the International Bank and Monetary Fund are equipped to collaborate closely with it.

The commission's major difficulty so far has been that it had no assurance that its recommendations would be implemented with financial support. Now that the United States is urging the European countries to agree upon a cooperative reconstruction program, and is willing to help in making such a program succeed, surely no more suitable planning agency could be found than the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

THE FAILURE of this Government to approach the problem through the United Nations has already done grave damage. There is no doubt that the division between the West and the East has been accentuated. The countries of Western Europe are well aware that there can be no sound economic reconstruction of Europe without cooperation between the West and the East.

As was to be expected, Moscow's original reaction was violent. The Marshall plan was termed "political pressure with dollars." Such governments as those of France and Italy cannot make a success of any economic program unless they can organize labor behind it, and labor in those countries is at present largely Communist-inspired. France, in the words of Winston Churchill, is the "keystone of a united Europe," and unless the French government is able to cooperate, the Marshall plan will break down.

Many European governments also object to the initiative taken by the British government, since they fear that if Great Britain is given the chief role in shaping economic reconstruction plans Britain's individual interests will secure preferential consideration.

Deep resentment, moreover, has been aroused in Latin America. The other American republics are vitally concerned in the economic reconstruction of Europe, their help must certainly later be asked, and they can see no logical reason why they should be excluded from the discussions.

IT IS TRUE that Secretary Marshall belatedly indicated that Russia was included within the scope of his proposals, and that Undersecretary Clayton subsequently announced that the United States "would be delighted if its neighbors of the New World wished to help in supplying Europe's needs.

But many of the present controversies and suspicions, which jeopardize the success of the entire plan, could readily have been avoided had Secretary Marshall's proposal included the specific suggestion that the project for economic reconstruction be undertaken on a Pan-European basis, and that the plans be formulated by the Economic Commission for Europe under the authority of the Economic and Social Council.

Such a proposal would have done much to strengthen the United Nations at a moment when its authority needs more than ever to be buttressed. And, what in the long run may prove to be equally important, such an approach to the solution of Europe's problems might well have contributed measurably toward laying the first foundations for a United States of Europe.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Stalled Science Foundation

THE FARTHER we get from the war, the more we are inclined to forget the lessons of the war. In so many ways, we seem to be lapsing back into the past or, rather, into a convenient dream of the past.

Childs

We learned in the war the paramount importance of scientific research and development. We saw what the efforts of our own scientists brought about—the proximity fuse, atomic fission, DDT, a whole host of discoveries, most of them with direct application to better peacetime living as well as to war.

Supposedly we learned in the war the criminal folly of our draft policy. Unlike our Allies, we drafted young men out of science and scientific education. And thereby we robbed our science of four years that can never be made up.

Supposedly we learned that we had to try to make up for this folly. In the immediate aftermath of VJ-Day, there seemed to be a great deal of enthusiasm for supporting scientific research with Federal funds. Almost everyone seemed to agree that such a program was necessary so that we could begin to make up for the grave loss we suffered during the war in pure research, in medicine, chemistry, physics, in every field. We were told that the Soviet Union was appropriating vast sums for research and exploration.

So—action. But before action, argument. As in so many instances, it seemed difficult to agree on how we should proceed.

ONE SOURCE of disagreement was how the Federal money should be distributed and who would get the gains. The Federal funds would be made available in grants to business for research and to nonprofit laboratories run by universities and foundations. But what about the patents that would come out of this research?

Democrats on the liberal-labor side, such as Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia, wanted to write into the law that any and all business firms should be able to use the inventions achieved with Government money. Conservatives said this would take away incentive. They argued that it was contrary to the free-enterprise system.

Little less than a year ago this column told how a Federal science foundation bill was buried in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. It had been passed by the Senate with the Kilgore patent provision.

Now another science foundation bill seems to be stuck in the same committee. Like the first one, it has been passed by the Senate. In deference to the conservatives, the present bill does not contain the provision making patents available to all. When it was up in the Senate its sponsors said that in the beginning about 20 million dollars a year would be spent for scholarships, for research, for all-round promotion of science, including the exchange of scientific information with foreign countries. It is, then, a more modest bill and far less controversial with respect to changes that it might or might not bring about in the present organization of our society.

THIS TIME the opposition has come from another source. It is led by Frank B. Jewett, president of the ultraconservative National Academy of Sciences. He has been conducting a one-man crusade against the science foundation bill.

Jewett has argued that such a Federal foundation is unnecessary. He insists that the money to advance science must come, as in the past, from private contributors. To encourage such contributors, he proposed special tax exemption on donations to science and education, which is a dubious proposal since it would require several years to institute and then it is doubtful how much money would be realized for basic research.

Running through Jewett's propaganda is the fear of Government interference. That is understandable. We believe passionately in the right of free inquiry and free research.

But it sometimes seems that we carry this so far as to bend over backward into complete distrust of any common effort for the general good. It begins to look as though only in war can we unite in a common cause.

Backing for science now, as approved in the Senate bill, is a minimum for national security. The time has come to prove that we have learned at least this one small lesson out of the war.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Tinker-To-Evers-To-Chance

THE FOUNDATION of a third party has been made vastly more difficult by President Truman's veto of the labor bill. Yet it is already clear that the third party planners will proceed on the basis that the Democratic Party has not supported the President. The chances are thus about 9 to 1 that within the next 18 months the mystic figure of Henry Agard Wallace will be propelled forward, like an ungainly puppet, as the "leader of the party of peace and the toilers."

It has often been stated in this space that the ultimate propulsion will come from the executive of the American Communist Party. Now is the time to proceed to prove this statement.

The report of the National Committee of the Communist Party, United States, meeting in special plenum in the summer of 1946, makes remarkable reading in view of what has happened since. Certain portions of the report are italicized. These portions, according to those who should know, are the order to the faithful.

"Recent political developments," wrote the planners at the plenum, "make it incumbent upon . . . us Communists more effectively to promote the movement for a new people's party." This can be quite simply paraphrased: "Get busy, boys, and beat the drums for a third party." This has been done.

The technique of the drumbeating is outlined in a nonstop sentence, written in the peculiar Maxist jabberwocky, which reads in part: "It is necessary to build the Political Action Committee, the National Citizens' Political Action Committee, and the Independent Citizens' Committee . . . to organize in the course of the 1946 election and immediately afterwards, a grass roots political machinery and foundations for the new peoples' alignment and party which are now in the making . . ." Again, this is not difficult to interpret: "Use NCPAC, ICCASP (Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions) and so on to build a political machine for the third party." This too has been done.

IT IS EVIDENT from the report that the strategists at the plenum were fully conscious that a non-Communist figurehead for their movement would be essential. Wallace was an obvious choice. But at the time Wallace had firmly and publicly announced his opposition to a third party. The report notes more in sorrow than in anger, and with a galling air of condescension, that Wallace, "honest though confused," was taking "sharp issue with the concept of a trend toward a third party."

In a remarkable example of Maxist double-talk, the Communist leaders decided that Wallace "must be shown" that his "orientation and activity cannot make serious headway unless the trend toward a progressive regrouping in the Democratic Party is accelerated by the growth of all independent labor progressive organizations and activity outside of and quite independent from either of the existing major parties."

This sentence, when carefully parsed, means simply: "Use Henry." There is plenty of evidence that this also has been accomplished.

The gentlemen who attended the party plenum also wanted to use the crusty Harold Ickes, but this inevitably misfired, and Ickes shortly resigned his chairmanship of ICCASP. Yet the plenum planners are evidently effective men. Naturally they did not dream up their plans all on their own. This had already been done for them at the Seventh Congress of Moscow's Communist International. The congress, considering "cardinal questions of the United States of America," plumped for a new American "mass party of toilers." The new party was not to be overly Communist. But above all, in the words of the report of the congress, it "must not be anti-Communist." Henry Wallace himself has made it clear that his new party will carefully eschew "any hysteria of Red-baiting."

ALL THIS ADDS UP to an odd little game of Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance. No one, of course, is fool enough to suppose that the wooly-headed Wallace is consciously playing the Communist game, or that he takes secret orders from the Communists in smoke-filled hotel rooms. Most observers believe that the correct line merely permeates gently down to Wallace through the strange group of professional joiners, United fronters and misty-eyed do-gooders who make up the peculiar political vaudeville team which now controls the Wallace thought process. On this team are such characters as Raymond Walsh, a frustrated operatic baritone who has found a substitute for opera in the gyrating politics of the extreme left; Michael Straight, amiable and sincerely idealistic angel of The New Republic, and Harold Young, Wallace's secretary, who adds the professional political touch with cigar, tough talk and paunch. Young is author of the classic remark, "Now we got a slogan nobody can beat. Who's against peace, anyway?"

The key figures, however, are almost certainly C. B. Baldwin and Hannah Dorner. Baldwin, former Wallace subordinate in the Agriculture Department, was subsequently loudest among the CIO's political planners in advocating the suicidal strategy of united front with the Communists. He is an intimate of Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, whose political sympathies are notorious. As for Miss Dorner, she is a female bird of the same feather, only rather more so. And Baldwin and Miss Dorner were, respectively, the moving spirits in the NCPAC and ICCASP, for which the Communist plenum showed such solicitude, and arranged the Communist-desired merger of these and other organizations into the Progressive Citizens of America. Their relationship to Wallace may be grasped from the fact that Miss Dorner persuaded Wallace to indorse the congressional candidacy of the fellow traveling Johannes Steel last year. A Wallace friend explained this very simply: "Henry," he said, "just can't resist when Hannah calls him up."

Battered Harbors of Greece Operating on Prewar Scale

By M. W. Fodor

(Post reporter, authority on the Balkans and the Near East, author of "South of Hitler," "Plot and Counterplot in Central Europe," and other works.)

Athens, Greece, June 24.—While docks, piers, cranes, harbor installations and warehouses were mercilessly destroyed by the retreating German army three years ago in Pireaus (the port of Athens), in Salonika) Volos and other Greek ports, the major Greek harbors today can handle the same amount of goods on the desolate-looking quaysides as they were able to load and unload before the war.

This miracle has been attained by the incessant and expert work of UNRRA and also by previous efforts of the British Royal Engineers. While British engineering units, soon after the arrival of British troops in this country in October, started to repair quays and piers in Pireaus and Salonika, UNRRA brought in machinery, especially cranes, to aid the unloading of ships.

When this correspondent was in Athens last year, only three ships could anchor along berths at the quayside; the rest had to be unloaded onto lighters, then from the lighters onto the quayside and then—all this by costly handwork—from the quayside into the warehouses.

The greatest hiatus was caused by the systematic German destruction of cranes, including the huge 300-ton electric portal crane in Pireaus harbor. Today 24 cranes, of about 8-ton capacity each, traveling on railroad tracks, help the work of loading and unloading. Moreover, there are eight other types of traveling cranes (on caterpillar wheels) which are able to handle goods up to 100 tons. At present two floating cranes are being fitted together—one with 15, the other with 30-ton capacity.

Railroad Tracks Repaired

The dock clearance is satisfactory. The railroad tracks have been reconditioned and Pireaus can handle about 8000 tons of goods per day. This is approximately up to the prewar level.

In Salonika the 365-foot-long and 56-foot-wide Lancashire quay was repaired by British army engineers, the wrecks were blasted in the harbor, with the exception of one big wrecked ship at the end of the aforenamed pier, and the railroad tracks were reconditioned. Salonika today can handle 2500 tons of goods per day, which brings up her capacity almost to prewar level.

To give an idea of the damage inflicted by German destruction, I want to give you the following figures:

Damage in Pireaus
Estimated at	$3,000,000
Damage in Salonika
Estimated at	800,000
Damage in Volos
Estimated at	1,200,000
Damage in Kalamata
Estimated at	400,000
Damage in Patras
Estimated at	300,000

The total damage caused in all Greek ports by German destruction, civil war and lack of upkeep is estimated at $11,850,000.

Rebuilding Costs Great

Yet these figures give a wrong impression. They are estimated at the real wage value of the drachmae in 1938 and converted into dollars of the same period. To reconstruct these piers and harbor installations today will cost much more. Thus while the damage in Salonika is estimated at $800,000, approximately $2,300,000 will be required to rebuild the destroyed installations, quays and warehouses, and in addition about $1,500,000 will be required for capital investment, to replace equipment, etc.

There are also other difficulties. For example, some harbors, owing to the destruction, are not deep enough to handle Liberty ships at their quays or in their basin. A Liberty ship, having a 28-29-foot draft, has to be unloaded outside the harbor into lighters in Kalamata, and can enter the port only after it has been unloaded to a 23-foot water mark.

The Greek government has drafted a 15-year program for the rehabilitation of the destroyed ports, this ambitious scheme being divided into three five-year plans. Even this 15-year plan will not be able to complete the full reconstruction of the harbors, but it hopes to bring it up to such a level that these ports can do satisfactory work.

Europe's No. 1 'Danger' Man Faces Captive-Torture Trial

Dachau, Germany, June 24 (U.P.).—Otto Skorzeny, a hulking, scar-faced former colonel of the SS (Elite Guard), officially described as the "most dangerous man in Europe," was arraigned today on charges of torturing and murdering surrendered American troops and wearing their uniforms. Trial will begin on July 29.

Skorzeny

Skorzeny, a man with an almost incredible record of ruthlessness and cruelty, led the parachutists who rescued Benito Mussolini in 1943 from anti-Fascist Italians.

There was a rumor that he had tried to assassinate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and other Allied leaders. Skorzeny said today that was not so.

"You can be sure that if any attempt had been made it would have succeeded," he said.

Skorzeny is 37 and 6 feet 4 inches tall. There is an old dueling scar across his face. The chief prosecutor, Col. Alfred Rosenfeld, called him the "most dangerous man in Europe today, because there are so many of his men on the outside waiting for him. There is even a rumor that they have organized their own underground. If he really wanted to, he could probably get out. His chauffeur escaped from a work detail here a few weeks ago."

The charges involve the Ardennes offensive of December, 1944. Skorzeny commanded some 150 English-speaking Germans who were dressed in American uniforms, schooled in American mannerisms, and sent out to sabotage, spy upon and disrupt the retreat of U. S. forces. They were accused of torturing captured Americans for information and murdering them.

One legend about Skorzeny concerns his enlistment in the SS. The jewels of Heinrich Himmler's wife were stolen, and Himmler publicly offered immunity to the thief, if he would turn himself in. When Skorzeny appeared, Himmler said: "Any man who could break into that burglar-proof vault of mine to steal those jewels I can use."

Red Soldier Fires on U. S. Plane

Budapest, June 24 (AP).—A Russian sentry, apparently by mistake, fired today across the nose of a plane in which Maj. Gen. Daniel C. Noce of the United States War Department, was about to depart.

Noce

American officers said a Russian sergeant went to check on clearance for the plane while a tommygunner stood guard. The sergeant returned and apparently not within view of the tommygunner waved to the pilot to take off.

The pilot began to taxi and the tommygunner fired a burst over the cockpit.

Yesterday Noce was in a party which was turned back from a boat cruise on the Danube after receipt of a Russian message which said that the boat had not been "demagnetized" and was approaching "perilous waters."

Veto Is Urged On Wool Bill

New York, June 24 (AP).—The National Foreign Trade Council today urged President Truman to veto the Congress-approved bill providing import fees and quotas on wool and woolen products.

In a telegram the council described passage of the bill as "a grave setback to the United States foreign economic program" and said a veto would "reassure all friendly nations that the United States does not intend to increase barriers affecting international trade."

Bush Deplores Push-Button Warfare Talk

By The Associated Press

Dr. Vannevar Bush said yesterday that talk of "push-button" warfare is harming the country.

He told the House Expenditures Committee that anyone who expects a "precise 5000-mile missile" overnight would "believe in Santa Claus," adding:

"If we got into war tomorrow, it would be a tough, rough slugging match like the one we just got out of."

He said America would use the weapons it had at the end of World War II, plus some new developments of the last two years.

Bush, who heads the Government's research and scientific program established during the war, testified in favor of a bill to unify the armed forces under a single Cabinet officer.

"In your opinion, the large bomber is no more obsolete than the large battleship?" inquired Representative Dorn (D., S. C.).

"Of course not," the scientist answered.

"If war comes five or 10 years from now, would you say we'd use great fleets of bombers as in the last war?" asked Representative Latham (R., N. Y.).

Bush said he could give a better reply at a closed door committee meeting. But he offered these generalities:

"If war broke out tomorrow, all of us know the character it would take at the outset. If war broke out 20 years from now, no man could say what form it would take. But 10 years from now—that's tough."

Bush said the unification bill has no dangers he can see of military domination of defense in peacetime.

Marshall to Address Governor's Conference

The State Department announced yesterday that Secretary Marshall will speak at a dinner session of the Governors' Conference at Salt Lake City July 14.

The department also announced that Marshall has accepted an invitation from the National Women's Press Club to attend its July 1 luncheon.

Standard Oil Will Allocate Gas in 12 Midwest States

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—A shortage of gasoline in the face of growing demand today forced Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) to allocate its output during June, July and August in 12 of the 15 States it serves, the company announced.

The allocation system, which will amount to approximately a 15 per cent cut in the company's current distribution, is the first consumer restriction of its kind since gasoline rationing ended in August, 1945.

Demand Up 15 Per Cent

The company said it could deliver supplies this summer approximately equal to those delivered a year ago. However, current demand is about 15 per cent above last year, it added.

The shortage was attributed to inadequate pipeline and refinery capacities rather than any shortage of crude oil.

"The making of very large amounts of heating oils during the past winter and spring cut seriously into gasoline yields during that period," the company said in a statement. "That reduction, plus unexpected heavy demand, particularly from the farm trade, has reduced the company's refinery and terminal stocks of trade to a level which is 30 per cent below that of a year ago."

Retailers to Decide

States covered by the allocation plan are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wisconsin. Excluded were Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

Under the allocation system, available supplies will be "equitably distributed" among retailers who will work out their own methods of passing it on to consumers.

Standard is the first major oil company to take such a step. In New York, a spokesman for the Phillips Petroleum Co., which serves the same territory, said no rationing was being considered. The Texas Co., however, said it had no comment to make "as yet."

No Rationing in East

New York, June 24 (U.P.).—Major oil companies on the East Coast said today they did not plan to ration gasoline to their customers.

Spokesmen for Socony-Vacuum Corp., Standard Oil of New Jersey and other companies said that while their supplies were a "little tight" they were believed adequate to meet demand during the summer months.

Soviet Imports U. S. Oil In Ships Built for U. S.

By The Associated Press

Chairman Weichel (R., Ohio) said yesterday the House Merchant Marine Committee has learned that Soviet-operated tankers carrying oil from this country to Russia were built for the United States Government only a few years ago.

One of them, he said, sailed from California less than two weeks ago with 123,895 barrels of gasoline and 12,500 barrels of oil and two others left earlier this month with 113,000 barrels of oil.

Three more, Weichel told a reporter, are loading in California ports and may depart before export controls are restored on petroleum products effective June 30.

"As soon as we obtain more information," Weichel said, "I will ask the committee to request Maritime Commission officials to explain how the Russians got these ships. At the time of our earlier inquiry into failure of Russia to return 95 lend-lease vessels, we were given the impression that none of them were tankers."

In disclosing plans for a full scale inquiry, Weichel commented: "It now appears that not only are we sending oil to Russia but we are furnishing her the tankers to haul it in."

Truman Turns Down Invitation to Hawaii

By The Associated Press

Gov. Ingram M. Steinback of Hawaii said yesterday, after a talk with President Truman that the Chief Executive does not plan to visit either Hawaii or Alaska this year.

He said that he invited Mr. Truman to visit Hawaii, and that the President told him he had hoped earlier that he could visit both Hawaii and Alaska, but had been forced to change his plans and would not visit either this year.

Stainback said he told the President of a threatened strike of pineapple workers in Hawaii, but that the call was largely "to pay my respects."

Boy Given Life Term For Killing 4 Children

Lapeer, Mich., June 24 (AP).—Sixteen-year-old Oliver Terpening, jr., was sentenced to life imprisonment today a few minues after he pleaded guilty to first degree murder in the flower-patch "thrill" slaying of four neighbor children.

Earlier, he had been found sane.

The boy said he shot his four young companions to death during a flower-hunting expedition near Imlay City May 28 "because I always wanted to know what it would feel like to kill somebody."

The victims were Barbara Smith, 16, her brother, Stanley, 14, and sisters, Gladys, 13, and Janet 2.

House Group Approves ODT Extension Bill

The House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday approved a Senate bill extending the life of the Office of Defense Transportation from June 30 to January 31, 1948.

Representative Howell (R., Ill.) said the action was based on a representation by ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson that the continuation is needed to handle the critical freight car shortage.

"By every word and deed"

By the democratic process which all Americans cherish, the Congress has written a new set of rules for labor-management relations.

The new law which came out of this democratic process is based solidly on the conviction that workers and their employers must work together in the public interest.

But laws alone cannot put the will to cooperate or the desire to understand into the hearts of men.

What is needed to make this new law work for the good of all people is real teamwork between employees and employers, based on sincerity, confidence, and good will. Name-calling, abuse, and bitterness must be forgotten, for they can contribute nothing toward the cause of industrial peace.

For its part, the National Association of Manufacturers calls upon management to show, by every word and deed, that it is determined to work with labor under the new law to build an era of general prosperity such as this country has never known.

Teamwork built America. Teamwork is still the one sure way to better days.

So, let's all roll up our sleeves and go to work—in the public interest.

This is the hour of CRISIS

The World Is Doing Less...

UNRRA ENDS—On June 30, just 5 days from now, this relief and rehabilitation agency goes out of existence. The help that it provided must be replaced—by us.

IRO DELAYS—The International Refugee Organization set up to replace UNRRA is not yet operating. Meanwhile, its good intentions cannot feed the starving.

U. S. ARMY BUDGET CUT—For the past two years, the basic care of Displaced Persons in the camps of the U. S. Zone of Occupation in Germany and Austria has been provided by the U. S. Army. For this care, thousands of refugees will be forever grateful. But the recent slash in our military budget has forced curtailment of Army help. The Army has refused assistance to new infiltrees.

CROPS FAIL—All over Europe, crop failures have made the relief problem more acute. Inflation, unsettled political and economic conditions have also helped wreck relief budgets.

So We Must Do More...NOW!

"Less help" is merely a phrase until you think of it in concrete terms: less food, less shelter, less medicine, less tools.

And more suffering.

Since the day of "liberation" two years ago, we have kept the homeless Jews of Europe alive—not only with food and shelter, but with hope.

If we abandon them now, they are lost. This hour of crisis is the test. Not only for them—for us, too. Failing them, we fail ourselves. Dooming them, are we too not doomed?

Everything—everything—now depends on the UJA campaign for $170,000,000. Washington's quota is $2,000,000 of which a minimum of $200,000 should be subscribed by Christians of the Washington area.

We must reach that goal if 250,000 Jews now living in miserable Displaced Persons camp are to be moved to permanent homes . . . if all the million and a half Jews of Europe are to be fed and housed and retrained for useful lives in Palestine or other hospitable lands.

With traditional generosity, Americans of all races and creeds have given more than ever before. But tragically, even that is not enough. Not nearly enough.

Remember, this is the hour of crisis. The world has failed, and only we are left. But for us, the survivors will not survive much longer.

And there is so little time to save them. So little time and so much to do.

If you have not given to the UJA, decide now that your contribution will be an heroic one . . . to match the heroic size of the job which must be done. And done now.

If you have already given, count your blessings, and look into your heart. Can you not give an extra "crisis" gift?

Our generosity must match their courage. Our sacrifice must equal their sacrifice. The choice is simple:

Shall we save our money? Or a people?

Survey Shows New Car Prices In Washington

By S. Oliver Goodman

Prices of new autos, delivered in Washington, were revealed last night in a special compilation by the Washington Automotive Trade Association.

This is the first over-all compilation since the association discontinued such releases in 1941. It doesn't mean that new cars are any easier to get. Demand still far exceeds supply here, according to auto dealers.

Publication of these prices, it was hoped, will help stem the racket of some persons in buying new cars, putting a few miles on the speedometer and then asking exorbitant prices in the used car market.

Reputable dealers here have attempted to stamp out this practice, seeking to sell only to bona fide buyers. But, as is well known, many persons have their names on several dealers' lists. When notified a car is available, they take delivery and then sell at a price hundreds of dollars more than their cost.

Buyers of used cars often complain that they don't know what current new car prices are. The following list as of June 20, 1947, may be of help in judging what to pay for used autos. These new car prices are on a "delivered in Washington" basis and are for the lowest-priced model in each category:

Bank Frauds Analyzed

Lester A. Pratt, Washington certified public accountant, is author of a new book called Bank Fraud, published by Ronald Press Co. Based on his analysis of several thousand actual cases of embezzlement, the book reads like a "who-dun-it."

The illustrative case histories of frauds and how they were exposed are of immediate value to bank management. Pratt lists 210 different ways of defrauding a bank and how to detect them. Pratt's thesis is that most bank employes start out as honest men and women and it is the bank's responsibility to keep them so.

Sometime ago, the same author wrote an article for a nationally circulated magazine on "How to Rob a Bank." It was widely commented upon in Washington.

Southern's Net Jumps

Southern Railway Co. yesterday reported net income of $1,089,000 in May, against a loss of $456,299 in the same 1946 month. For the first five months net of $5,293,000 was equal to $3.12 a common share, compared with $2,418,258, or 90 cents a share in the like period last year. Revenues in 1946 were affected by a prolonged coal strike and a two-day interruption to train service by a walkout of engineers and trainmen.

Norfolk & Western Railway yesterday reported net income of $3,869,366 for May, a gain of $2,783,863 over the like 1946 month. For the first five months N. & W. income balance was $13,237,992, against $7,233,270 in the same period last year.

Record Ad Outlay Seen

Printers Ink, trade publication, said yesterday total advertising outlay in 1947 would equal or exceed the record three billion dollars spent in 1946.

The magazine predicted that nothing short of a major economic disaster during the remainder of 1947 could depress the 1947 advertising total below 1946.

For the first four months, the publication said, national advertising expenditures were up almost 18 per cent over the comparable 1946 period. Each successive month has increased by a larger margin over the corresponding 1946 month.

Jim Ferrier Captures PGA Title, 2-1

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

MR. GOLDIE AHEARN, who was associated so closely with the fight business some years back that Al Forman brought a short left hand under his chin and knocked him out in one round, is now more artful. He hasn't had a glove laid on him in more than a decade. He likes the prize-fight business better as Promoter Ahearn of the Liberty A. C.

POVICH

Speaking disinterestedly, except for the fact that he is trying to drum up a $50,000 gate for his next show on July 1 at Griffith Stadium, Ahearn is babbling over his Danny Kapilow-Smuggy Hursey 10-rounder. "If I am a fight fan, even, I would like it," says Ahearn. "When it's Kapilow and Hursey it has to be a good show, even at $10 tops. Already we're out of the barrel on the advance sale."

Aheart has, indeed, come up with an intriguing match. The sharp-punching Kapilow is a warm favorite with Washington fight fans, and he is taking on, in Hursey, the hottest article to hit the Griffith Stadium ring since Aaron Perry shot the gate receipts to new heights and then sputtered out like a stick. It's Hursey's first move against the better class of fighters after a string of victories over the lesser lights.

"HOW CAN IT MISS?" says Ahearn. "Hursey's the kind that walks in all night and makes trouble for anybody that's in front of him. Sure, he's gonna get hurt some night, and next Tuesday night may be it, but it has to be a good fight so long as Hursey wants to fight that way. I know he wants to make this fight a good one. He's taking movies of it. No, he's not taking movies while he's fighting.

"I know he's taking movies because he just borrowed $250 from me to buy a movie camera. That's fighters for you. Hursey picks up $18,000 for his last three fights and wants a $250 advance from me, because he says his money is tied up in postal savings or something. Who's smarter, Hursey who has his money tied up in postal savings or me who has his money tied up in Hursey?"

Hursey is no dope, says Ahearn. "In fact, he's smarter than he looks," was Ahearn's compliment to the 19-year-old pug. "He knows he's fighting a smart boxer in Kapilow, so all week he is working with Archie Moore, the best boxer in this part of the country. He's learning to pick off punches, and move his head, like he has to do if he's going to beat Kapilow."

HURSEY IS COMING UP fast, according to Ahearn. "Look at him, with Archie Moore for a sparring partner, and two trainers and also a rubber. The fight business is changing. I am fighting six years before I can even get a rub-down, but Hursey is fighting only a couple of years and he's got a payroll like a champion."

Not until he licks Kapilow is Hursey going to be completely pleased about his victory over Aaron Perry which started him to local fame. "It's bothering him," says Ahearn, "that he only gets a decision over Perry while Kapilow knocks Perry out in three rounds. It's going to bother him, too, if Kapilow sticks him a few times with that left hand and then shoots that straight right that put Perry on the floor."

What Hursey will have going for him in addition to his ceaseless aggressiveness is an 8-pound advantage in the weight. Kapilow at best will weigh in at 147 pounds or less, while Hursey has agreed to make 155 pounds by 2 o'clock. "Eight pounds in that class are a lot of pounds," Ahearn points out.

KAPILOW, who is managed by Al Weil, copromoter with Ahearn in the Liberty A.C. functions, has been working out all week in New York with Marty Servo, the former welterweight champion, and advisedly. Against Servo, Kapilow has been sampling the same weaving style that Hursey affects.

If Kapilow enters the ring the favorite, as he probably will, it is understandable. Washington fans liked the neatness and dispatch with which he disposed of Perry in three rounds, and they saw him put Sammy Angott on the floor twice the night Angott was given an unpopular decision. Kapilow is a deceptive-looking puncher with a physique on the frail side, but he stood up to a draw with Rocky Graziano a couple of years ago and can box as well as hit.

"If Kapilow don't stop Hursey in the first five rounds, I don't like Kapilow's chances," quoth Ahearn. "Hursey can slow him up with all those punches he throws, even when he hits Kapilow on the arms. If it goes past five rounds, I like Hursey. I am not talking for publication, but I know about freedom of the press and if you want to put in the paper what I'm saying, I can't stop you, heaven forbid."

Masterson Beaten by Chisox, 3-0

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Walter Masterson's scoreless inning streak of 34 was snapped in the first inning by the Chicago White Sox last night, and the Chicagoans went on to win, 3-0, at Griffith Stadium.

The White Sox made two runs off Masterson in the first inning and Ed Lopat, veteran Chicago southpaw, turned the Nats back scoreless all the way.

Masterson didn't get past the first inning in his bid to extend his streak of 34 consecutive scoreless innings. The first two men he faced thumped him for a run, and the White Sox took a 2-0 lead.

Still Hitting Them

The Sox also banged out hits against Masterson in the second and third innings. Baker, who led off the third with a single, was snuffed out when Rick Ferrell called for a pitch-out and caught him stealing.

Southpaw Ed Lopat meanwhile was pitching shut-out ball for Chicago. He encountered a flurry of trouble in the second inning when two walks, wrapped around Christman's single, filled the bases with two out, but Masterson went out on a grounder to York.

Masterson Steadies

Masterson steadied suddenly and pitched hitless ball through the fourth, fifth and sixth, but the Nats couldn't get a man as far as second against Lopat in those innings.

Double plays twice choked off Washington rallies. McBride opened the fourth with a single to right, and York started a twin killing on Spence's grounder. In the sixth Yost led off with an infield hit, but Lewis grounded into a double play, nullifying Vernon's single that followed.

A brazen bit of base running by Jack Wallaesa fetched the White Sox another run in the seventh after he opened with a two bagger to right. He held second as York beat out a single to Christman, and scored from that bag on an infield out.

Michael's grounder to Priddy precipitated Wallaesa's runs. Priddy ran York back toward first before throwing to Vernon to retire Michaels, and Wallaesa streaked home ahead of Vernon's relay to the plate.

Nats Stopped Again

The White Sox's third double play in four innings stopped the Nats in the seventh after Priddy bounced a single off Baker's chest with one out. On Christman's grounder to Appling, the Sox made the double killing that retired the side.

State Roundup

Colts Sign Stidham as Line Coach

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Professional Football Conference announced today they had signed Tom Stidham, former Marquette and Oklahoma University mentor, as a line coach.

Stidham comes here from the Buffalo Bills, where he had been doing the line coaching.

Stidham's signing gives Head Coach Cecil Isbell a staff of three assistants, with one to be named later. Nick Campofreda, Western Maryland College star and former National League pro player, and Don Edmonds, former University of Indiana fullback and for 10 years coach at Laporte (Ind.) High School, already have been signed.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 24 (AP).—Stewart "Stukie" Hoskins, former University of Richmond football, baseball and basketball star, has been signed as director of athletics at Falmouth High School. He will begin coaching varsity sports September 3. Hoskins, 28-year-old Fredericksburger, was a four-letter athlete at James Monroe High School here before entering the University of Richmond, where he was all-State fullback in 1939.

Luray, Va., June 24.—A softball league with L. J. Shandelson, Luray merchant as president, and Amos Cave, secretary and treasurer, has been organized for Luray. Four teams are entered, including the VFW with Eugene Mauck as captain; a team sponsored by the American Legion with Doug Lancaster as captain; West End, with William Campbell as captain, and East End, with Julian Yates as captain.

RICHMOND, VA., June 24 (AP).—An invitation to join the American Professional League has been extended to the Richmond Rebels of the Dixie Professional Football League, General Manager H. MacAuley McEver disclosed today.

Harry C. Seibold, a stockholder in the Richmond Rebels, Inc., and McEver plan to attend a meeting of the American loop's board of directors in New York City Wednesday, it was said, to report on the local club's progress in clearing territorial rights for the Rebels to enter the faster circuit.

The Rebels have been offered the American League franchise formerly held by Akron, Ohio, Bulldogs.

Winchester, Va., June 24.—Dr. G. G. Snarr, eye-ear-nose and throat specialist here, has reported the largest catch for the bass season to date. Dr. Snarr caught a bass on the opening day of the season that weighed 4¼ pounds. Three pounders have been reported by Clark Cooper and Walter Bursey.

Reagh Again Wins Amateur

Seventeen-year-old Eddie Reagh of Manor won the D. C. Golf Association's Junior Amateur Tournament yesterday for the second straight year as he posted a 79 over the par 70 Columbia Country Club course.

Trailing the Calvin Coolidge High junior were Jim Frizzell of host Columbia with 82, Dick Sturges of Manor with 83 and Bill Diffee of Congressional with 84.

Reagh, a semifinalist in The Post's Schoolboy Tournament six weeks ago, had an easy time of it yesterday, playing steady golf. He didn't have to break par once, but double-bogied only twice.

Reagh's card:

GRIFF'S OVERMATCHED—Clark Griffith, 77, puts a headlock on Primo Carnera, somewhat to the ponderous Italian's amazement (oh, yeh?) while Frank Sexton (left), so-called world champion, seems slightly puzzled. Sexton and Carnera wrestle at Griffith Stadium tonight with some of the proceeds going to the Damon Runyon cancer fund, headed by Griffith locally

Nats and Kids Have Big Time At Schools

The Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School went over with a bang in the five nearby counties.

More than 2000 kids turned out at 1 p. m. to register for the opening session at 19 Recreation Department locations. And they cheered lustily when their Washington Nat instructors came on the scene a few minutes later to lecture and demonstrate the big league way of ballplaying.

Biggest turnouts of the day were recorded at Municipal Stadium in Alexandria where Ray Scarborough appeared, Rock Creek Park in Montgomery County where George Case lectured, and Washington-Lee High School in Arlington where Chick Pieretti took over. Between 250 and 300 youngsters were on hand at each of the locations.

Even Manager Ossie Bluege pitched in. He was up bright and early to make sure that his players were at the ball park in time. Then he, himself, went out to Madison School in Fairfax. Coach Sammy West and Bullpen Catcher (Handsome) Fitzgerald also took a turn at lecturing the kids.

At several classes, there were not enough registration cards to accommodate the turnout, so it was decided that youngsters who report at the next session will be eligible for diplomas.

There was some confusion in Montgomery County over instructions that were given yesterday in The Post. About 20 boys turned out at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High instead of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center. These boys will all be eligible for diplomas when they register at the next session.

For the kids of Arlington, Alexandria, Fairfax and Prince Georges counties, the next session will take place Friday at 1 p. m.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY—Jessup Blair Park, Stan Spence; Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation, Joe Grace; Rock Creek, George Case. ARLINGTON COUNTY—Washington-Lee High, Chick Pieretti; Cariyna Spring, Sid Hudson; Highway No. 1, Mart (Manor), 89; Bob Scott Cary. ALEXANDRIA COUNTY—Jefferson Playground, Tom McBride; Municipal Stadium, Ray Scarborough; Montgomery Playground, Eddie Yost. FAIRFAX COUNTY—Madison School, Osslo Bluege; Fairfax High, Mickey Haefner; Mount Vernon, Sammy West; Herndon High, Sherry Robertson; Falls Church, Frank Mancuso. PRINCES GEORGES COUNTY—Maguder Park, Mickey Vernon; Greenbelt, Handsome Fitzgerald; Fairmont Heights, Al Evans; Marlboro, Johnny Sullivan.

Primo Takes Shot at Wrestling Title at Stadium Tonight

Primo Carnera, one-time heavyweight boxing champion, takes a shot at the world's wrestling title (it says here) at Griffith Stadium tonight.

Carnera's opponent will be Frank Sexton, recognized in these parts as the grunt-and-groan ruler.

A portion of the proceeds will go to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund.

Sexton, who became champion when he beat Sandor Szabo and Babe Sharkey, is unbeaten since he started his reign early in 1945. Carnera also is undefeated since he invaded these shores early last fall.

Two women will meet in the secondary feature. They are June Beyers of Dallas, and Elvira Snodgrass of Hollywood, Calif. Maurice LaChappelle and Jan Blears, the Britisher, will clash for the world's junior heavyweight title. Other bouts send Gino Garibaldi against Sheik Badul, and Jesse James and Chick Garibaldi against Sandor Kovacs and Farro Rinaldo. First bout is at 8:45.

Giants Stagger Chicubs, 11-0

Chicago, June 24 (AP).—Manager Mel Ott, in a desperation move, sent Clarence (Hooks) Iott, recently acquired pitcher, against the Chicago Cubs today and the unsung left-hander came through with a two-hit, 11-0 triumph for the New York Giants.

Ott made the surprising nomination because he didn't want to overwork Dave Koslo, his only available starting pitcher. Koslo pitched four innings of relief ball Sunday and was slated to work today but was sidetracked for Iott, who joined the club just before game time.

The 27-year-old Iott fanned eight and walked five, while the Giants supported his brilliant pitching with a 13-hit attack that included homers by Walker Cooper and Willard Marshall.

Purchased for the waiver price of $10,000 from the St. Louis Browns Saturday, Iott had been a member of the St. Louis organization since 1938.

Mrs. Cralle Wins, 8 and 7

Ingleside Country Club, Staunton Va., June 24 (AP).—Mrs. J. B. Cralle 2d, a 23-year-old sharpshooter from Roanoke's Monterey Country Club, moved into the spotlight of the twenty-second annual Virginia State Women's Golf championship tourney today when she brushed aside Mrs. Sterling Cannaday of her own club, 8 and 7.

Playing under spasmodic showers that made the sun-drenched Ingleside Course close and sultry, Mrs. Cralle traveled the outgoing nine in exactly par 38, going over par only on the fourth but getting even with a birdie two on the 170-yard eighth.

Mrs. G. S. Hall of Amelia staged the first upset of the tournament. She scored a 2-and-1 triumph over Mrs. H. C. Hookaday. Mrs. James W. Reynolds, medalist from Richmond's Glenwood Country Club, who moved another step in defending her title by coming from behind to beat Mrs. Hiram Smith of the Hermitage Club, Richmond, 4 and 2.

Mrs. H. N. Allen, for years Tidewater titlist and champion of the James River Club at Newport News, was very impressive with her 8 and 7 triumph over Mrs. Robert Schlesinger of Charlottesville's Farmington Club.

Sizzling 32 On 3d Nine Too Much For Harbert

By Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

Detroit, June 24 (AP).—Big, blond James Bennett Elliott (Jim) Ferrier, who sinks putts even longer than his name, today won America's twenty-ninth PGA championship over Plum Hollow's rolling fairways.

The Australian-born resident of San Francisco defeated Melvin (Chick) Harbert of nearby Northville, Mich., 2 and 1, in the 36-hole title round, to become the first foreign-born entrant to win the classic since Tommy Armour, the Silver Scot, turned the trick in 1930.

Ferrier, a gum-chewer who plays with the speed of a tortoise and the finesse of a billard shark, is a sophomore at this play-for-pay fixture, but he has made good use of his two tries.

Last year he set the tournament's qualifying record with 71, 63—134, and this year he hit the peak by grabbing the crown. The gentleman from Down Under has arrived on top. His triumph carried a cash award of $3500.

He Caroms Off Gallery

Ferrier also, if he cared, could lay claim to the golf-carom title, for he rattled tee shots off eight galleryites today as a crowd of 7000 thronged the course to boost the attendance to 52,800, far over the previous record of 36,000 set two years ago at Dayton, Ohio.

Harbert, also a second-time entrant in the PGA and the avowed favorite of the galleryites, stuck a red tee behind his right ear and started as if he would sweep the stolid Ferrier off the course.

Chick holed a four-footer on the first, and a 15-footer on the second—each good for birdie—to go two up, but the big fellow with the unorthodox dip in his swing remained unruffled. He canned a 20-footer on the third for a birdie, and his par on the fourth was good enough to even the match.

Each had a one-up edge during the rest of the morning session, but when they went to lunch with their wives, who trailed them around the course, they were all even.

20th and 21st Eventful

Although the finish didn't come until the 35th hole, the decision really was reached on the 20th and 21st.

On the 208-yard 20th, Ferrier's long iron smacked a spectator, and the ball rolled far down a hill, into deep grass. His second barely reached the edge of the green, but he ran down a 25-footer for his par, while Harbert needed two putts from 18 feet for his halve.

With the apparently won hole snatched from his grasp, Harbert stood by and watched Ferrier cash in on the picture shot of the clash on the 42-yard twenty-first.

The Australian's drive sliced to within a foot of the out-of-bounds stakes near the equipment house, and came to rest on a huge piece of canvas with a long line of tall, bushy trees blocking his way to the green.

Harbert was 70 yards ahead, in the center of the fairway. Ferrier was permitted to lift his ball, and drop it after the canvas was removed. As he dropped the ball, it rolled almost to the base of a heavy bush which impeded his swing on what already looked like an impossible shot.

But Ferrier had the course attendants move a power mower, two big rollers, a wagon and an automobile from his projected line of flight, "choked up" a five iron, and hit a terrific hook which scsreamed around the row of trees

Babe Back In Hospital

New York, June 24 (AP).—Babe Ruth returned to the hospital today on the advice of his physicians for further treatment.

"I felt very tired," he explained. "I couldn't seem to get any strength and decided to take things easy for a few weeks."

The former home run king was discharged from the hospital two months ago after being there for almost three months, during which he underwent a serious neck operation. "I even get tired taking a walk around the living room," the Babe was quoted by friends as saying. "I can't seem to gain any strength, so I guess I'll just get some rest here at the hospital."

Maxim Claims In Foul Bout

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP).—The State Boxing Commission heard protests today from the Joey Maxim camp that its boy was fouled out of the decision against Joe Walcott last night.

Maxim was on hand to display some bruises, which, oddly enough, were all in the vicinity of his left hip, which seemed to have been Walcott's favorite target. Jack Kearns, Maxim's manager, asked commission attaches to have the verdict changed, either giving the Clevelander the duke or at least a draw.

Ida's Clips Naval Team In Departmental Clash

Army Congratulates Navy!—That's News

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—Congratulations have been pouring into the Naval Academy on the Middies' crew victory in the Poughkeepsie Regatta—and one even came from the traditional rival—Army.

The Army telegram said, "All hands at the United States Military Academy join in sending heartiest congratulations to the United States Naval Academy on the occasion of Navy's triumph in the Poughkeepsie Regatta."

Can You Play First! If So, Contact Phillies

Cincinnati, June 24 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies, who a few weeks ago had so many first basemen you couldn't count them, were scouting around today trying to find somebody to play the base for them.

Howie Schultz, purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers, was back in Philadelphia for treatment of a pulled leg muscle. Frank McCormick was with the Boston Braves, Nick Etten with Newark of the International League, Lou Finney managing a minor league club and Vance Dinges with Utica of the Eastern League. Manager Ben Chapman figured on using Al Lakeman, a nominal catcher acquired from the Cincinnati Reds last week, at first.

Across the Nation: Question—How Did Tape Get on Player's Nose? Answer—I Bit Him There, Says Girl in Lawsuit

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP).—A young woman filed in Circuit Court today her story behind the adhesive plaster Russ Meyer wore on his nose yesterday as he pitched the Cubs to a victory over the New York Giants.

Miss Kay Gidd, 26, a waitress, said the patch was there because she bit Meyer on the nose Saturday night in the Sheridan Plaza Hotel bar. What's more, she asked $50,000 damages for a hair-pulling she alleged Meyer administered before she took her bite.

Meyer could not be reached immediately for comment on the suit, alleging assault and battery.

The suit said Meyer, a "complete stranger" to Miss Gidd, approached her in the barroom and asked her to leave with him. When she refused, she said he grabbed her high-combed blonde coiffure and pulled it down to her shoulders. She retaliated by biting his nose. A hotel detective intervened.

The suit names the hotel as codefendant. A disorderly conduct complaint against Miss Gidd, preferred by the hotel detective, was continued yesterday in Police Court until July 15.

The War Department announced yesterday it would grant 72-hour passes to Lieuts. Glenn Davis and Felix (Doc) Blanchard to allow the former Army football stars to play in the Chicago Tribune all-star charity game in August and the New York Herald Tribune charity game in September.

Davis and Blanchard also received confirmation of permission to make a movie during their forthcoming 60-day graduation leave. Each was expected to realize $40,000 from the movie.

DALLAS, Tex., June 24 (AP).—Little Bobby Hogue stepped into the Texas League hall of fame here last night, pitching no-hit, no-run ball against Beaumont's Exporters as Dallas won, 4-0.

It was the second no-hit game of the year, but the first over nine innings. Jack McKinney, of Beaumont, turned in a seven-inning perfect performace earlier in the season. Only two men reached base against Hogue—one a walk, the other an error.

Pittsburgh, June 24 (AP).—Pete Reiser, Brooklyn's wall-crashing outfielder, flew to Baltimore today for neurological treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital. The treatment is expected to determine whether nerves were injured when Reiser bounced into a wall at Ebbets Field last month while chasing a batted ball. He is expected to rejoin the club at Brooklyn on Thursday.

MACALESTER, OKLA., June 24 (AP).—The hand of Eddie Haney, forger and star pitcher for the McAlester Penitentiary baseball team, is quicker than the eye.

Haney hurled a no-hit, no-run game against the Savanna, Okla., Indians, striking out 10 men for the penitentiary outlaws who won 3-0. In addition, the pitcher hit a triple and scored one run. If any scouts are interested in Haney they can see him in 1951. His 10-year forgery term expires then.

The hat not only lighted up like a neon sign. It was one.

When illuminated, the hat resembled a pink, blue and white halo. Mrs. Burtz flashed it on and off, coincident with joy over spectacular play of the Atlanta Cracker team.

Quantico Swamps Arsenal

Baltimore, June 24.—The Quantico Marines slammed out 22 hits and swamped Edgewood Arsenal, 26-7, in a game that was called after seven innings because of darkness. It was the sixteenth straight win for Quantico and puts the Marines in first place in the Middle Eastern Service Conference.

Victor Liquors Win

Apprentice Jockey Baird Boots In 5 More at Charles Town

New Chum Disqualified In Eighth

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 24.—Jockey Jimmy Baird, leading rider at the meeting, rode four winners and was presented with a fifth after finishing second in the eighth race.

J. K. Wynkoop's New Chum was the winner but was disqualified because Jockey Willie Nertney weighed out with only 114 pounds instead of the 118 New Chum was supposed to carry.

When New Chum's number was removed, Baird's mount, Mrs. L. B. Davis' Sabrate, moved into the winner's circle with J. Ridgeley's Grand Fanar placed second. M. Longerbeam's Sir Midas and Martin and Early's Big Ado, originally in a dead heat for fourth, were moved in to the deadlock for third in the pay-off.

Sabrate Pays $12.20

New Chum was the favorite at 2-1. Sabrate paid $12.20.

Chief Steward John T. Morrissey said the 4 pounds difference in weight was called to his attention, and under rule 211 which reads, "A jockey must weigh within 2 pounds of the original weight." He was forced to disqualify the horse.

Jockey Willie Nertney said he went on the scales prior to the race at 118 pounds and Dulaney Randolph, clerk of the scales, said he checked the boy at that poundage. Morrissey said he would investigate to determine whether saddle lead pads were lost during the running.

Baird, who becomes a full-fledged rider on July 2, rode Mrs. J. S. Gentzler's Inez M. to victory in the Woodward Purse, the day's feature. E. A. Nicodemus' Double Duty was second and Ariel Legend, third.

Two Carter Entries

Inez M was coupled with Sunday Knight as the Trainer V. T. Carter entry, and there was some confusion before the race centering around the condition of Sunday Knight. After the track veterinarian had OK'd the gelding, the stewards allowed him to run.

He was not a dangerous factor in the test, however. Sunday Knight could have stayed in the barn for his entry-mate, Inez M, had too much stretch punch. Double Duty, ridden by Sammy Palumbo, moved with the filly but tired in the final furlong. Ariel Legend, the early pacemaker, was third but tiring.

Backers of the Carter entry received a $7.80 win pay-off after Double Duty, with Palumbo seeking his third straight winner, was installed at even money in the closing odds line. Inez M was clocked in 1:26 3/5 for the about 7 furlongs over a fast track.

Baird Rides in Double

As usual, Baird participated in the daily double. He was aboard Mrs. L. B. Davis' Fair Mail and got the 5-year-old home at a $9.20 mutuel. However, it was a lucky win because Jockey Willie Nertney lost stirrups on Rakish Jane and the filly finished third on her own courage. Baird also scored with New Book at $12.20 in the third and Mystic Rumble at $22.40 in the seventh.

The twin wager paid $15.40 when Nertney had better luck with Mrs. Carroll Bowers' Val Victory in the second race. This son of Vicar took command early and was galloping at the end. His legion of backers collected a mere $2.80 win mutuel while place and show bettors took down $3 and $2.60.

Two favorites, Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, medalist, and Mrs. L. G. Pray, Columbia, were upset yesterday in the first round of match play in the Women's District Golf Association championships at Manor.

Mrs. D. H. Henderson, Congressional, eliminated Mrs. Meckley, 1 up, by sinking an 8-foot putt on the eighteenth green. Mrs. Meckley won medalist honors Monday with a 78.

Mrs. Pray, recent winner of the Hinshaw Cup at Columbia, also lost on the eighteenth hole on a putt by Mrs. S. F. Little, Army-Navy.

Mrs. Richard Kruezburg, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. Webb Hayes, Columbia, 5-4.

Mrs. Walter Stokes, Manor, defeated Mrs. E. P. Moore, Army-Navy, 5-3.

Mrs. John Ives, Columbia, defeated Mrs. Roderick Watson, Manor, 2-1.

Mrs. J. R. Daily, Manor, defeated Mrs. Rex Howard, Kenwood, 3-2.

Mrs. Marie Walper, Prince Georges, defeated Mrs. Bunker Hill, 4-3.

Broomwich, Geoff Brown Hard Pressed

Wimbledon, June 24 (AP).—Australia's Geoff Brown and Jack Bromwich had their anxious moments today in the second-round men's singles matches of the Wimbledon tennis championships but all eight seeded favorites advanced to the third round while the top-ranked women rushed through easy opening victories.

The first distress signal went up in mid-afternoon when fifth-seeded Brown dug deep into his bag of tricks to overcome Bohous Cernik of Czechoslovakia, 6—4, 2—6, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1.

Brown, beaten by France's Yvon Petra in last year's Wimbledon finals, finally got the upper hand by a combination of two-handed smashes and chops that left Cernik puzzled.

Bergelin Loses

Nearly all the 4000 seats in court one were filled for the match, played under a blazing sun. When it was over, the fans moved to the center court where Bromwich, seeded No. 2, employed the same strategy to shake off Lennart Bergelin of Sweden, 6—0, 6—4, 11—9.

The rest of the seeded men—from Jack Kramer on top to his fellow American, Bob Falkenburg, at the bottom—had easy passages.

Kramer of Los Angeles, the popular favorite to justify his No. 1 ranking by dethroning Petra, swept past Czeslaw Spychala of Poland, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2, without any difficulty and Tom Brown of San Francisco ousted France's C. H. Grandet, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

Falkenburg Gains

Gangling Bob Falkenburg of Los Angeles had little trouble in knocking out Roland Carter of Britain, 6—1, 6—1, 7—5.

Standing fans on an outer court roared as the RAF champion, Howard Walton, tried to foil Petra with a "fool-em" service that wound up like a juggler starting his act. But Petra had the last laugh, a 6—2, 6—2, 6—2 win.

Drobny, the other half of the Czech team, disposed of J. Mehta of India in an hour, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2, and Dinny Pails, the Australian champ, eliminated Norway's Jan Staubo, 6—2, 6—1, 6—1.

Unseeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles needed a break to squeeze past Man Mohan of India, 7—5, 1—6, 6—2, 5—7, 6—3. Mohan slipped and injured his arm in the last set and Patty reeled off five straight games in succession to win the match.

British Star Still In

Britain's top-ranking player, A. J. (Tony) Mottram, was sidelined by Pierre Pellizza of France who won, 7—5, 6—3, 8—10, 6—4.

There were no surprises in the women's first-round matches in which four Americans were seeded in the first four positions.

Margaret Osborene of San Francisco, No. 1, breezed past Mrs. R. F. Chandler of Britain, 6—3, 6—2, and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., routed Mrs. P. F. Glover of Britain, 6—1, 6—0, in the scramble for the title vacated by America's Pauline Betz.

Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., disposed of Mrs. Mary Muller of South Africa, 6—1, 6—1, in an easy romp and Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of Hidden Valley, Calif., eliminated Miss H. S. Morgan of Britain, 6—3, 6—0.

Giacofci's machine, called the hottest in the East by rival drivers, has won four 25-lap features while finishing consistently in the the money of recent weeks.

Col. Shriever Wins Federal Golf's J. Edgar Hoover Cup

Hardy's Wins Playoff From Sealtest, 1-0

The Sealtest Peewees, after protesting an earlier win by Hardy's Barber Shop Clippers, played it off today on the North Ellipse with Hardy's winning 1-0.

The defeat threw the Sealtest Peewees into a three-way tie for the championship of the first portion of the Georgetown Branch Boys Club play.

and came to rest 20 feet from the rim, 180 yards away.

Harbert, in the middle of the fairway, stopped 35 feet from the stick, missed his putt, and went one down as Ferrier curled his 20-footer into the cup.

Harbert evened it with a par on the next hole as Ferrier felled another spectator, but Ferrier birdied the twenty-third with a 35-foot putt to go one up.

He birdied the 24th, needlessly, as Harbert's drive hit a spectator and went out of bounds for a six. Ferrier went three up as Harbert three-putted the twenty-fifth from 15 feet.

Ferrier clung to his three-up lead through the twenty-ninth, where Harbert ran down a 40-footer for a deuce, but the victor got that one back on the next hole where Chick was trapped.

Three down and three to go, Harbert kept the match alive with a par on the thirty-fourth when Ferrier hit his drive into the rough and his second into a trap, but they halved the next one in par fives to close it out.

The tipoff on Ferrier's unbelievable putting touch is that, on the first 34 of today's 35 holes, he never was forced to putt twice. In each instance, when he missed his first, he left the ball so close to the cup that Harbert told him to "pick it up."

The big fellow, who suffered a football injury to his left knee which forces him to hit the ball with a definite "sag" in his swing, toured the 167 holes of match play leading to the title in 25 strokes under par. Harbert was 19 under for 170 holes.

Maritime Lays Off 2000 Until July 1

LOCKOUT: That's exactly what has happened to the 2800 Maritime Commission employes here.

Klutz

The employes have been told not to work until July 1, and that they won't be paid if they do. It's a pure and simple lockout by the Congress which refused to okay a last-minute switch in funds to pay the employes, a brutal pieces of business.

Any employer who denies his workers the right to strike, like the Government, should also protect them against lockouts.

LOYALTY: What price loyalty and hard work? A layoff notice.

Remember, last year when a leave contest was conducted by this column? Well, the winner who had turned back the most annual leave was Herman Buchholtz, a 62-year-old Maritime employe, who had forfeited 568 days and 3 hours of leave in his 26½ years of service. Buchholtz had averaged one day of annual leave a year. He has an excellent efficiency rating.

Talk about long and faithful service—Buchholtz' record was tops.

Well, Buchholtz got his reward yesterday. He was ordered fired along with 1100 other Maritime employes. And 300 of the 1100, like Buchholtz, are career employes.

The mass layoff was ordered because of a sharp budget cut approved by the House. An appeal will be made to the Senate for more money and more employes.

The Congress can never get the loyalty and confidence of employes by such cruel treatment. There would be cries and demands for congressional investigation if a large private employer would pull a similar trick.

WAR: Several hundred of its employes here are being given a rough treatment. They are told that their jobs are to be moved to another city and they are given only a few hours' notice to decide on making the transfer.

Also, those who can't transfer are told bluntly that they will be cut off and be given no reduction in force rights regardless of their status. They will be treated as though they had abandoned their jobs. And Civil Service reluctantly has decided to go along with the department on this harsh treatment.

The Office of Engineers is moving its requirements branch to Granite City, Ill., and its procurement division to Chicago. Finance and Quartermaster also are making transfers. It's all a peculiar and costly brand of economy.

The moves are being made to get the department under the personnel ceiling for jobs in this city—part of the economy program. But it's a safe bet that each of these units will cost a lot more to operate outside of Washington.

The Engineers also is transferring its repairs and utilities branch from departmental to the field office here of the district engineer. The employes will be moved from headquarters to somewhere in the suburban area.

PAY RAISES? The Civil Service Commission yesterday formally urged Congress to raise salaries in "certain brackets," to lift the $10,000 ceiling on Classification Act salaries and to vote higher salaries for Cabinet members and other executives.

However, it said the proposed flat $500 increase to all Federal workers could not be "justified." The commission pointed out that the cost of living had risen 10.9 per cent since July 1, 1946. The proposed $500 increase, it said, would average 17.5 per cent. The commission estimated the cost of the bill as between 750 and 900 million dollars.

As a general principle, the commission said the Federal employe ought to be given enough money which would enable him to buy as much with his dollar as he did in 1939. Very few employes can do that today.

An appeal in the name of "justice and equity" was made for higher salaries for Federal executives. The commission pointed out hat Congress had raised salaries of all employes and officials, including its own, without touching salaries of the top staff in the executive branch.

The commission offered its assistance in working out a pay raise bill. Its comments were not cleared with the Budget Bureau which will end up a similar report.

COMMERCE: The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday restored funds to maintain at least one Commerce field office in each State. Under the House slash, 40-odd offices had been ordered closed . . . The Senate has approved a bill to create a new assistant secretary. The job will go to David Bruce if the House okays the bill, too.

MILITARY LEAVE: The Senate passed and sent to the White House the bill to grant a Federal worker up to 15 days' military leave eac hyear for active duty in the reserve or National Guard.

NLRB: The Labor Board now has around 700 employes. To carry out the Taft-Hartley law, a staff of around 3000 will be required, or an agency at least four times as large.

Horan Backs X-Ray Study If Funds Are Found

House Unit Head Voices Approval After Official D. C. Indorsement

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the District, said yesterday he favors a city-wide chest X-ray study "if the funds for it can be found."

His statement came a few hours after the District Commissioners had told him they approve of Health Officer George C. Ruhland's request for a $60,000 allotment in the 1948 municipal appropriations act as the local government's share of the cost.

"It was a left-handed indorsement that I got from the Commissioners this morning," said Horan. "I am in favor of the survey, though I don't know yet where we'll get the money."

Reflection of Reluctance

The "left-handed indorsement" by the city heads apparently was a reflection of Commissioner Guy Mason's reluctance to have the case-finding study performed, on the ground that the Capital's nursing and hospitalization facilities are inadequate to care properly for cases already known.

Horan intimated that he is assailed by the same fear. That is, he feels the real problem is not the $60,000 request but "where to get the three to five million dollars that will have to be spent for care of the persons in whom tuberculosis is detected as a result of the chest survey."

Supporters of a city-wide X-ray program for Washington, in which all residents aged 15 and over would be invited to have their chests photofluorographed free, point out, however, that it would not be necessary to provide in the 1948 budget for the future outlay cited by Horan.

Would Take Four Months

The Washington study, if undertaken, cannot start before January 1, 1948. It would take at least four months. Thus it would be May or June of next year before public health authorities found out the scope of Washington's tuberculosis problem and what the cost of remedial care would be.

Dr. James J. Feffer, vice president of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, yesterday informed the Horan Subcommittee that the proposed chest survey contemplates X-raying of 640,000 persons—80 per cent of the Capital's population.

The United States Public Health Service disclosed yesterday that its X-ray teams will launch a mass survey in St. Paul, Minn., in October, immediately on completion of the study now under way in Minneapolis. The Washington case-finding program would be started in January, by which time the St. Paul survey is scheduled to be finished.

USPHS would foot the estimated $88,000 bill for making the chest X-rays. The D. C. Tuberculosis Association has volunteered to spend the $34,000 required for educational purposes, beginning four months before the first X-ray is made.

Va. Liquor Sales Mount in 1947

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP).—Virginians ran counter to the National trend in their whisky, gin, rum and brandy drinking during the first four months of 1947.

State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board figures showed that from January 1 to April 30 ABC sales of spirits totaled 1,879,044 gallons, as compared with 1,622,314 during the same months of 1946—a 16 per cent increase.

The Distilled Spirits Institute reported figures on the Nation as a whole showing a drop of 30 per cent in spirits consumption for the first four months of the year, as compared with 1946.

Mental Patients Called Victims of Va. Policy

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP).—Albert O. Boschen, chairman of the House of Delegates Committee on Asylums and Prisons, said today that a "niggardly" State policy had cost "the State a lot of money by retarding the recovery of curable patients" in the mental hospitals.

He said he had urged "adequate maintenance and capital outlay funds for the hospitals" heretofore, and that he intended to "keep after them." He is a candidate for reelection.

At Annapolis

Ex-Leader Of Academy Band Held

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—The Navy disclosed today that Lieut. William R. Sima, sr., former Naval Academy band leader, was being detained here pending a decision on his appeal for a writ of habeas corpus.

At the same time, the Navy reported from Portsmouth Naval Barracks that former Chief Steward's Mate Walter W. Rollins, Virgin Islands born Negro, was freed May 27.

Sima and Rollins figured in two sensational courts-martial last summer at the Naval Academy.

The Navy said Sima was being held aboard the station ship Reina Mercedes "by direction of the Navy Department in accordance with the request of the Department of Justice."

Sima was sentenced to a year at hard labor at the Portsmouth Barracks, but because of legal delays he has been serving his time without the labor, the Navy said.

Rollins, sentenced to two years in the barracks, was freed under ordinary Navy clemency rules which permit pleas after a third of the sentence has been served. The former chief steward was convicted of adultery, theft, gambling and conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. Sima was convicted of misconduct and violating Navy regulations.

Sima's son, William R. Sima, jr., a Naval Academy bandsman, was court-martialed also in connection with the charges, which followed an all-night party at Rollins' quarters at the North Severn Officers Club.

Sima, jr., was given a bad conduct discharge, which was remitted. But later he was booted out of the Navy, in which he had served 11 years.

Denial of Jobless Benefits Claim Upheld by Court

Charleston, W. Va., June 24 (AP). The Supreme Court affirmed in a 3-2 opinion today the Kanawha County Circuit Court's denial of a claim for jobless benefits by rank-and-file miners who were made idle by a bosses' strike in 1944.

The lower court had affirmed a ruling of the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review in denying benefits to Eunice W. Copen and about 200 other miners employed by the C. H. Mead Coal Co. in Raleigh County.

The appellate court's decision, in which Judges James R. Riley and W. T. Lovins dissented, will have far-reaching effects in determining other claims.

Unemployment Compensation Director Cabell S. Davis has said the final ruling probably would determine whether the bosses made idle during the bituminous shutdown last spring were entitled to benefits.

Va. Police Claim Rape Confession

Fredericksburg, Va., June 24 (Spl.).—An 18-year-old parolee from the State Welfare Department has confessed the rape of a 50-year-old woman in her home here last Thursday night, city police said today.

The defendant was identified as Charles Lee Washington, who was arrested on the basis of a description furnished by the woman. According to police, she first reported that an intruder had entered her apartment and made an unsuccessful attempt to attack her, but later changed her story and said the attack had been successful.

Bus Service, Finances Scrutinized

Fare Raise Hearing Sheds Some Light On Fiscal Structure Of Coach Company

The financial structure of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co. and the service if offers the public received a going-over yesterday during an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

The hearing is into a petition by the company to raise fares between Washington and points in Virginia from 2½ cents for riders using tokens to 5 cents for those paying cash.

Howard H. England, vice president and general manager of the company, testified that Manuel J. Davis, chairman of the board, receives rents from the company totaling $3100 a month for the Arlington terminal in addition to a yearly salary of $20,000. Davis, he said, has recently voluntarily reduced his salary by $6000 to $14,000 annually.

Trust Fund Makes Loan

England, principal witness for the company, in direct testimony said that the firm's operating expenses are above its revenue and that its financial condition is so precarious that it can buy gasoline only on a C.O.D. basis. England said the company has been unable to put aside a reserve to replace worn out equipment.

Under cross examination by James M. Earnest, attorney for Colonial Village, Inc., England admitted that the company maintains a fund known as the Employe's Trust Fund. Davis, he said, borrowed $150,000 from the fund last July, putting up as collateral 19,000 of the 28,000 shares of stock he owns in the bus firm.

England said he did not know how much time Davis spent on company business. Davis, he said, uses a company car and in addition to rent collected on his Arlington property receives $100 a month for the use of his Barr Building law office as a Washington office for the company.

Some Walk Up Hills

Francis J. Ortman, president of the Arlington Bus Riders Association, questioned England on service rendered by the company.

England admitted that riders must wait as long as three-quarters of an hour along some sections of the route before a crowded bus will pick them up. He acknowledged that sometimes riders had to walk up hills because a bus couldn't pull a full load.

The hearing will resume at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Tax-Exempt School Land Questioned

Private Institutions In Montgomery May Have to Show They Are Nonprofit

A move that may force Montgomery County private schools to prove they are nonprofit institutions, or else pay taxes, developed yesterday.

A possible crisis in disposal of trash and garbage in Rockville also developed as it was disclosed the town's trash may not lawfully be dumped within a three-mile limit.

At the regular commissioners' meeting in Rockville, Wilton T. Allen, supervisor of assessments, asked that two acres recently purchased by the Longfellow School, Bethesda, be added to tax exempt lists.

Final Action Deferred

Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter immediately interjected that it was his belief all private schools should be made to prove they are nonprofit institutions before they are exempted from taxes.

Allen then suggested that the commissioners continue their present tax-free policy and possibly assess schools next year. They would then have to come before the board, he said, and prove they were nonprofit. The board then placed the two acres on tax exempt lists.

Regarding the Rockville trash situation, F. Barnard Welsh, town attorney, said two Army surplus incinerators have been purchased, but it is expected they will not be installed until August.

Bond Request Approved

Meantime, he said, Blake Merson, operator of the Montgomery County Refuse Co., will be asked to continue collecting trash and garbage in the Rockville area and in commercial areas in Silver Spring and Bethesda.

The board approved a request of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission that one million dollars in bonds be issued for construction of water and sewer lines in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

Commissioner Sauter's was the only dissenting vote after he had emphasized he wanted to know how much of the million dollars would be spent in each area.

Hunt for Man Widened

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—Police today enlisted the aid of authorities in 11 States in their hunt for James Brant, 29-year-old war veteran from Somerset, Pa., who disappeared last Wednesday from a car parked in front of Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Dr. Winter T. Varner of Somerset, who drove Brant to the hospital for treatment of a nervous trouble, said he feared his patient is an amnesia victim. Members of Brant's family said he probably would try to get a job in a restaurant or as a mechanic.

Dr. Varner said he parked his car in front of Hopkins and went inside to confer with doctors, leaving Brant in the car. When the doctor returned, Brant was gone.

'Please Come, Mr. President'

A "BANG-UP" INVITATION—It isn't customary for visitors to stand on the President's desk, but that's what Michael D. Condatore, 2½, of 4619 4th st. s., Arlington, Va., is doing as he invites Mr. Truman to attend the Fourth of July celebration at the Washington Monument Grounds. The boy is the son of Mrs. Ruth Condatore, secretary of the committee sponsoring the observance. Michael left the imitation firecracker with the President and Mr. Truman gave Michael a metal sobrero from his desk-top collection of souvenirs

Two-year-old Michael G. Condatore, wearing saddle shoes and a sporty pair of checked slacks, called at the White House yesterday.

His mission: to invite President Truman to attend the District's annual Fourth of July celebration on the Washington Monument grounds.

Mike carried a dangerous-looking firecracker half as big as himself to present to Mr. Truman. The usually worried White House guards smiled for once. This was one firecracker they knew was a "dud."

Mike stood on the President's desk to present the firecracker (something few White House visitors do) and in return was handed a small bronze sombero by Mr. Truman.

The youngster, who lives at 4619 4th st. S., Arlington, is the son of Mrs. Ruth Condatore, secretary of the committee planning the Fourth of July celebration.

As for the invitation the President explained regretfully that he couldn't make it because of a previous engagement to speak at Thomas Jefferson's home near Charlottesville, Va.

Asked by reporters for an account of his conversation with the President, Mike told them:

"I said, 'Good morning, Mr. President.'"

The District Commissioners yesterday issued their annual Fourth of July proclamation announcing that the annual display of fireworks would be seen again this year at the Monument Grounds.

Parking Rules Eased on E, F, 8th Streets

G Pl. N. W. Included By Commissioners In One-Hour Order

The Commissioners yesterday opened four downtown street sections to one-hour parking during rush hours.

They approved traffic regulation amendments recommended by the Traffic Advisory Board and Traffic Director George E. Keneipp. Traffic on the streets is sufficiently light during rush hours to permit parking, Keneipp said.

The following street sections will be open for one-hour parking between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.: south side of E st. nw.; E st. nw., between 13 and 13½ sts; F st. nw, between 14th and 15th sts; south side of G pl. nw., between 9th and 10th sts.; and 8th st. nw., between G and K streets.

One-hour parking also will be permitted on the north side of E st. nw., between 13 and 13½ sts., from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m No parking will be permitted in this section, however, between 4 and 6:30 p m.

Parking previously was prohibited between 7 and 9:30 a. m. and 4 and 6:30 p. m., Keneipp said. The new regulations will make 130 additional spaces available, he added. Unlimited parking is permitted from 6 p. m. to 8 a. m.

Driver Fined $500 In Truck Death

Fredericksburg, Va., June 24—A $500 fine was assessed against Willie Thomas, jr., in Spotsylvania Circuit Court yesterday, following his conviction on an involuntary manslaughter charge resulting from a fatal traffic accident last March.

Thomas, who was tried by Judge Leon M. Bazile, was accused of being the operator of a truck in which Hugh Paytes, 24, of Spotsylvania County, was fatally injured when the truck collided with an automobile at the south end of Falmouth Bridge. The defense had contended that Paytes was driving the truck at the time of the crash.

School Needs Dispute May Delay D. C. Money Bill

Action on Federal Construction Loan Not Likely to Be Taken This Session

House District leaders squared off yesterday for a showdown over Washington school building needs.

The results of the conflict appeared likely—first, that the District appropriation bill would be delayed, and, second, that the idea of a Federal loan for school construction would await action next year.

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) said he did not want to prepare the District money bill for the fiscal year beginning next Tuesday until the House District Committee took responsibility for what's to be done about school construction.

Unlikely to Act

House District Committee Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said it was unlikely his committee would act this session on the plan for a Federal loan to finance increased school construction.

Commissioner John Russell Young said the Commissioners would probably send a formal request for the loan to the Capitol. Conferences with District Committee chairmen of both Houses had left District officials with strong doubts they could get a loan through at this session.

Linked to the battle over schools is a continuing dispute between Horan and District Committee leaders over the new city revenue program.

Horan calls it inadequate and says there should be a sales tax for Washington at once. District Committee leaders defend the revenue plan as adequate to meet city needs if the budget is trimmed about two million dollars.

Would Increase Budget

Horan declares the budget shouldn't be trimmed, but increased, particularly to do the school building that would eliminate part-time classes.

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) ,House leader in drafting the city revenue program, suggested a District Committee survey of the schools. He said he might introduce a resolution, and would be willing to make the survey himself, as chairman of the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee.

Horan said he would visit the schools this week, to get more information on present crowding.

Sawmill Damage Put at $20,000

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 24 (Spl.).—Damage resulting from a fire which swept the Hess sawmill near Martinsburg early yesterday was estimated at $20,000 today by D. M. Hess, owner of the property.

Hess said in addition to sawmill equipment, which was badly damaged, the loss included about 12,000 feet of lumber, totally destroyed. The flames also damaged his residence nearby.

Martinsburg firemen were handicapped by a lack of water as they battled the blaze for several hours, Hess said he had no insurance on the mill property but his residence was fully covered.

They said a majority of the congregation's 60 members voted at a meeting to dispense with his services, but Attorney Edward H. Ryan, representing the minister, asserted that no formal meeting was held to dislodge the pastor from office.

Last-Minute Rush Due On Md. Tax Licenses

Collectors figured yesterday fewer than a third of the merchants who will start taking in Maryland's new 2 per cent sales tax July 1 have applied for their licenses.

Merchants must register and file applications for licenses to collect the tax, and experts on the enforcement staff estimated 50,000 would have to comply. Yesterday, only 16,100 had.

To accommodate an expected last-minute rush, the sales tax office in Baltimore will remain open Saturday.

Truck Hauls Loot Away

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—The bulk of household objects coveted by thieves who entered the home of Lieut. Comdr. R. E. Hill at Sylvaan Shores didn't hinder operations.

County Police Henry Carroll and Lloyd Smith said today the burglars evidently backed up a truck to the house and loaded a breakfast set of four pieces, a desk lamp, a large rug, two handmade bedspreads, dishes, a maple coffee table and two bathroom scales, total value: $110.50.

Carroll said Commander Hill was recently transferred to New Mexico. The house was for sale.

Gun Blast Kills Boy

Pearisburg, Va., June 24 (AP). Edward Sanders Dalton, 6, was killed early today at the farm home of his parents, Jack and Minne Dalton, near here, by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of a 7-year-old brother, Harless Franklin Dalton. Deputy Sheriff W. T. Jamison said it appeared purely accidental.

Registers Open July 5

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP).—Virginia registrars will work July 5 as usual, even though other State employes have an added Fourth of July holiday.

The State Board of Elections announced this today in passing along a ruling of Attorney General A. P. Staples that "it would not be legal for the registrar's office to close on the 5th of July."

Some confusion had arisen as to the last day of registration for the Democratic primary, since the primary falls on August 5. Thirty days prior to the primary counts back to July 6, a Sunday, and Staples ruled that in this case the final day for registration before the primary would have to be on the preceding day, Saturday, July 5. The statute setting this deadline for registration must be observed, the attorney general held.

Candidacies Recorded

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone 2d today approved the certificates of nomination of Edwin S. Panette, Republican, and Edward A. Garmantz, Democrat of Baltimore, candidates to succeed Baltimore's mayor in Congress.

A special election to be held July 15 in the Third Congressional District will decide the successor to Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., who resigned.

Fire Under Control

Norfolk, Va., June 24 (AP).—Thomas S. Turner, district forester, said today the worst fire in Dismal Swamp in three years is being brought under control and probably will be put out this week.

He said 438 acres of timber and open land between Wallaceton and the North Carolina State Line have been burning since May 14.

Harvest Begins

Norfolk, Va., June 24 (AP).—Tidewater potato growers today were looking forward to a profitable season as the 1947 harvest began.

John B. Senter, secretary of the association of Virginia potato and vegetable growers, reported that a small quantity of potatoes were harvested in this area yesterday, but that heavy digging should be under way throughout the area by the end of the week. Monday will find all farmers harvesting, he said.

Between 7000 and 8000 acres are scheduled to be harvested in this area with a lower yield per acre than last year.

Outbreak Quelled

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP). An outbreak of diarrhea among newborn babies in the twelfth floor nursery of the Medical College of Virginia Hospital has been brought under control, Charles P. Cardwell, acting director of the hospital said today.

Cardwell said that "about four or five" other babies developed the disease after the first case was discovered. The babies were transferred to another nursery and two special duty nurses were employed for a constant watch over them, Cardwell said, adding the infection was a "very mild" one and and all the babies now are out of danger.

5000 to Protest Base

Delegates representing more than 5000 Marylanders are scheduled to appear at a House subcommittee hearing today at 10 a. m. (EDT) to protest construction of a Naval Academy airport at Sandy Point, Anne Arundel County.

Representative Bates (R., Mass.) is chairman of the House group which has granted time to hear protests from the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce, the Anne Arundel County Farm Bureau, the Severn and Magothy River Association, the Steamship Trade Association of Baltimore and other organizations.

20 Years for $1 Theft

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—Joseph H. Hening got $1 and 20 years for his part in a holdup of the Liberty Finance Co. here.

He admitted in Criminal Court yesterday that his partner in the daylight grab from the company's cash register parted with the $1 before they fled. They never did get together to settle up the $230 police said was taken in the April 30 theft.

He received the 20 years from Judge J. Abner Sayler on a robbery conviction.

Prosecutor Anselm Sodaro said Hening's accomplice was Henry Weber, who now is held by New Jersey police on an armed robbery charge.

Lane Names Mayfield

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—Governor Lane today appointed Thomas H. Mayfield as trial magistrate for Ellicott City to replace Louis M. Leimbach, who resigned.

The Governor said Leimbach informed him private business commitments would not permit him to give adequate time to the magistrate's duties.

Mayfield's term will begin July 1.

It is expected this task will be completed by the end of the month, when the division will go to work on auditing the previous year's returns.

Cinderella Meets the Prince

"HOWDY, BUB"—When the curtain rises tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Arlington Recreation Center, the audience will see Anne Kilmer and Donny Walsh, both 7, in a tot's-eye version of the play "Cinderella." Staged by 35 youngsters of the Green Hedges School, the play weaves songs and poems the children learned this year around the familiar fairy tale. It was adapted to the young talents by school owner, Mrs. Kenton Kilmer. Patricia Cookman, 8, and Belle Sumpter Miller, 9, the Fairy Godmother, are in the background of this scene. Admission is free, but "good will offerings" will be accepted for the Arlington Hospital drive

Water System Expansion Set In Alexandria

A two-year expansion project entailing a cost of one million dollars was revealed to the Alexandria City Council last night by representatives of the City Water Co.

The representatives appeared on request of the Council to discuss the possible purchase of the company by the city.

Jerome Powers, president of the company, said it was not desirous of selling "at any price." Gardner Boothe, counsel for the company, then unfolded a four-point plan to improve service to consumers.

The plan, he said, has been under way two months and will be completed within two years. It involves:

1. Installation of five wells to increase the supply by 2½ million gallons per day.

2. Erection of a million-gallon elevated steel storage tank on high ground in the western part of the city.

3. Construction of a filter plant with a three-million-gallon capacity per day at the Barcroft reservoir. A 16-inch pipeline will connect the filter plant with the new storage tank.

4. Installation of four or five pressure-reducing connections between high and low pressure areas. fadcmfwy mfwyp cmfwyp m mm

Completion of the project would double the volume of water now available to the city. The current yield is about 5.7 million gallons per day.

The city's preliminary moves toward purchase of the company were taken in view of recent action by the company in contracting to supply water to a new housing development outside the city limits.

The council called a special meeting with representatives of the water company for next Tuesday night.

Baptist School Program Hinted

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP).—A system of Baptist parochial schools in the South was pictured here today as a possible outgrowth of "bewilderment" in public education.

Duke K. McCall, executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention, told a Virginia pastors' conference at the University of Richmond that several such schools had sprung into being on elementary and high school levels, though he made it clear he was not necessarily indorsing the movement.

As an alternative to parochial schools, he suggested pressure upon the public schools to hold their teaching into a "Christian pattern."

Shotgun Blast Kills Boy at Play

Pearisburg, Va., June 24 (AP).—Six-year-old Edward Sanders Dalton was killed by an accidental shotgun blast today while he and his brother, Hollis, 7, played in the dining room of the Dalton farm home near here, Deputy Sheriff W. T. Jamison reported.

Jamison said one of the children apparently climbed on a table and removed the gun from where it hung on the wall. He said it was not determined whether the gun discharged when it was dropped or whether the trigger was pulled by accident. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dalton, were outside the house at the time.

Mrs. Safford Dies in Her 106th Year

MRS. ELIZABETH SAFFORD

A long life ends

Mrs. Elizabeth Safford, who celebrated her 105th birthday only seven months ago, died Monday night at her home at 507 Carroll ave., Takoma Pak, Md.

With a philosophical "the secret of keeping young is to have a procession of young friends," Mrs. Safford was never much impressed by her age as the years rolled by.

With an alert memory, she recalled the days of the Civil War, when Union soldiers and Confederate soldier prisoners passed on the streets of Washington.

Born in the District, she was the daughter of the late William McPeak, who was curator of the Smithsonian Institution, where she lived as a girl.

Two years after the assassination of President Lincoln, she married Hiram Safford, and they moved to San Francisco where she remained until 1928 when they returned to Washington.

Each November 17, the date of her birth, had been a gala occasion for the past few years, with gifts and cards from friends all over the country and a large birthday cake to be shared with a small group of friends at her home.

At each birthday celebration, she was wont to declare: "I feel fine. I've had a wonderful life. I don't feel old at all."

Her only survivor is her daughter, Miss Clara Louise Safford, of 804 Maple ave., Takoma Park, Md.

Early Hearing Asked on Md. Sales Tax Suit

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—Hyman A. Pressman, Baltimore attorney contesting the validity of Maryland's retail sales tax, today requested Superior Court Judge E. Paul Mason to permit the case to go to a full hearing without preliminary testimony.

In the course of his arguments, Pressman contended that only a final hearing could satisfy a public feeling against the tax, which becomes effective July 1.

He also repeated an earlier assertion that the Governor had "coerced" members of the Legislature to secure passage of the tax law.

County Group Is Challenged On Voting List

The Arlington County Democratic Executive Committee yesterday was challenged to make its voting list available "to any of the Democratic candidates."

In a letter to Committee Chairman J. Maynard Magruder, Albert A. Carretta, Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates, said his request for the list had been rejected.

"I cannot help but recall that very recently the same list of voters was obtained by Mr. Charles Pratt (a Republican) via the backdoor route," Carretta wrote.

Pratt is former president of the Greater Arlington Association, which fought popular election of Arlington's School Board and issuance of an $11,125,000 county improvement bond issue in a recent county-wide referendum.

Meantime, Harrison Mann, another Democrat in the four-way race for two seats in the House of Delegates, yesterday announced his campaign platform.

He called for revision of election laws to eliminate the poll tax as a requisite for voting; a "capitation tax" for school support; legislation for "a permanent board of assessors"; an adequate salary scale and a teacher tenure law for Arlington, and a State-wide school health program.

In a radio address last night, Frank Ball, jr., Democratic candidate for the Virginia Senate, attacked a resolution sent all Democratic candidates by the Democratic Executive Committee asking them not to reply to questionnaires until they were answered by Republican and Independent candidates.

Ruling Voids Dennis Case 'Intent' Claim

Defense of Eugene Dennis, American Communist Party secretary, charged with contempt of Congress, received a judicial setback yesterday with the trial judge's definition of contempt.

Thomas

"Wilfull contempt" may mean contempt that is deliberate and intentional, and not necessarily "with evil intent," ruled Justice David A. Pine, in opinion on the charge.

The ruling swept aside contention of defense counsel that prosecution need show "evil intent" of the defendant's disregard to subpena of the House Committee on Un-American Affairs.

First witness in the District Court trial was Representative John Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), committee chairman, who testified the committee has seven roomsful of records on persons suspended of membership in Un-American organizations or their "fronts."

Of perhaps a "million" names on file, he said, some 100,000 "are Communists."

Under cross-examination, he told how Dennis had asked permission to address the committee on March 26 in opposition to legislation to outlaw the Communist Party. The defendant, he said, never got further than a denial that he ever used an alias.

Summoned later to appear before the committee, Dennis failed to show up, resulting in the present court action, the witness said.

FBI agents had said that Dennis was born Francis Waldron but took his mother's maiden name of Dennis.

The circumstance backfired on Representative Thomas when defense counsel drew from him an admission that he, too, took his mother's maiden name at the death of his father in 1919. The Representative was born John Parnell Feeney and was known by that name for the first 24 years of his life.

Representative Karl A. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), a committee member, is expected to lead the list of Government witnesses at today's session.

Summer Slimming Schedule

Measure Up to a Lovelier Figure

This is the third of a series of 10 articles on summer slimming.

By Ida Jean Kain

CHANGING from a size 18 to a 20 is worse than going from age 39 to 40.

The annoying part is you take an 18, by rights, and could slip into it easily if they didn't skimp so on material at the waist. It doesn't seem unreasonable that a woman should be able to ask for a size 18 with a 32-inch waistline. Still, if the waist is given an inch it takes . . . well, anyway, let's measure and get the unbiased facts. Sizes are standard, even if you and I do not find them exactly to our liking.

It's symmetry that makes a nice figure and a perfect fit. A proper waistline measure 7 to 9 inches less than the bust. Seven is average, 8 is very nice and 9 is elegant. With less than 7 inches difference you'll require a larger size.

Hips that measure 2 inches more than the bust are streamlined; 3 inches, average; 4 inches, full. Anything more than 4 inches is largely . . . hips, which call for a larger size.

IN MEASURING, start with the waist, circle tape around, draw it comfortably snug, then let out a half inch so as to be able to breathe. Mark down that figure.

Then the bust. Circle tape around the back and bring it together across the center of the bust. Excess weight increases the tendency toward sagging. Corrective exercise helps, but only bringing the weight to normal can actually reduce the size of the measurement.

The third measure should be at the top of the hip bones and across the abdomen, which we think of as the stomach.

HIPS should be measured at the largest part. If your measurements are proportionate, chances are you will lose proportionately.

Miss Manfuso, Mr. Morrison Wed in Chapel

The Naval Chapel on Nebraska ave. was the setting for the wedding yesterday of Miss Zelma Joan Manfuso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Agnus Manfuso, and James Brown Morrison, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morrison, which took place at 4 p. m. with Monsignor Vaeth officiating.

A musical program was given by Art Brown, organist and Mrs. David Shehan, soloist.

Mr. Manfuso gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of candlelight satin made with long pointed sleeves; a wide panel of Duchess lace falling from the neck of the fitted bodice to the hem. The skirt ended in a sweeping circular train. Her long veil of illusion fell from a Mary, Queen of Scots, cap of Duchess lace and she carried a prayer book covered with orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Betty Jo Manfuso, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor, wore an American beauty taffeta gown made with cap sleeves and sweetheart neck. The skirt, draped at the hips, formed a fishtail drapery in the back. She wore a matching tulle hat and carried blue delphinium.

Bridesmaids were Miss Louise Sanderson, Miss Patricia Moore, Miss Joanne Tucker, Miss Mary O'Brien, Miss Claudia Manfuso, Miss Fredrica Altemus, Miss Honey McBride, Miss Ann Manfuso and Miss Mary Cotton. Their gowns were of ice blue taffeta, like that of the maid of honor. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of American beauty roses.

Mr. Morrison was his son's best man and ushers included John Manfuso, jr., Thomas W. Perry, Robert Bronson, Gene Fitzgerald, Edward Bowie, Edmund Jones, Gordon Daisley, jr. and Beveridge Miller.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony and later Mr. Morrison and his bride left for New York to take a plane for Bermuda.

The bride was graduated from Rosemont College, Rosemont, Pa. Mr. Morrison is a graduate of George Washington University.

Town Talk—

Miss Vallarino's 'Shortened' Skirts Not Shrunk, Just Dressmaker Shorn

By Eva Hinton

ONE of the most beautiful brides seen in Washington in many a day was brunet Hillis Morris and everyone at her wedding reception was telling her so. Among the bride's contemporaries offering best wishes for happiness was attractive Sherry Parker, daughter of the Chauncey Parkers, who came down from New York for the wedding.

Miss Parker is studying dancing in New York, where she keeps posted on the latest fashions.

The other afternoon at the Morris-Garlick wedding reception she was teasing Hilda Vallarino, daughter of the Ambassador of Panama, about the shortness of Miss Vallarino's black, off-the-shoulder afternoon dress.

Miss Vallarino admitted that her skirt was too short for the prevailing mode. She explained that she has been visiting her aunt in Rio and that when she came home to change the first afternoon of her visit she sensed something odd about her dress. She went into her aunt's room to inspect it in a long mirror.

There she found her cousin, of whom she asked, "Why did you send my dress to such a poor cleaner? It has shrunk beyond repair!"

"I sent it, with all your other dresses, to the dressmaker and had them shortened! You simply look funny in longer dresses!" replied her cousin tartly.

It appears that the style for longer skirts hasn't reached South America yet and the gals there are still showing their knees.

MRS. EDGAR A. MOWRER, who leaves soon for Guatemala and Brazil, was happy to learn that she could wear her unlengthened last year's dresses and still be chic.

But Mrs. Mowrer still has a clothes problem. It has to do with a silver fox jacket which was left on a chair at the recent fete given at the home of Mrs. Martin Vogel by the Women's Action Committee.

The unfortunate guest found on leaving the party that her jacket had been exchanged by mistake for a silver fox cape which didn't fit her. And now she fears that her own jacket may be packed away in moth balls by some lady who doesn't realize the mistake!

CHATTING with Mrs. Mowrer at the Morris wedding, charming Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, was pitying the bride and bridegroom who stood for at least two hours shaking hands with the wedding guests. In Cuba, she explained, the custom is that the bride and bridegroom change to traveling clothes and depart immediately after the wedding, leaving the bride's parents to do the handshaking.

Mrs. Mowrer was unsympathetic with American brides and bridegrooms. She remembered attending a prewar wedding in Poland which took place at 3 in the afternoon and where dining, dancing and drinking continued until 6 a. m. And only then were the newlyweds allowed to leave the festivities.

On the Party Front . . .

MEMBERS of the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club met for luncheon yesterday on the lawn of the White House. The picnic, which is an annual event, was given by Mrs. Truman and the Cabinet ladies. Originally planned for Thursday, May 22, it was postponed because of the illness of the President's mother.

Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, as first lady of the Senate, is president of the luncheon club. Each Tuesday its members meet in two rooms of the Senate Building to do Red Cross work. At 1 o'clock the morning's work ends with a picnic luncheon. The fete yesterday at the White House marked the final meeting of the season.

Chinese Envoy, Wife Dinner Hosts

RANKING guest at the dinner given by the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo last evening was Senator Charles W. Tobey. The party had been planned in honor of the Secretary of Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal, but last minute circumstances unfortunately prevented the Secretary and his wife from attending.

Among the guests were Senator Raymond Baldwin, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Wilfred G. McNeil, Representative and Mrs. Walter H. Judd, former Ambassador William C. Bullitt, Mrs. Mason Gulick, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Gen. Ying Hoying-Ching, Gen. P. T. Mow, Judge and Mrs. George D. Neilson, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Mrs. Claude Beddington, the Counselor of the Chinese Embassy and Mrs. Chen, Miss Dorothy Wei and Miss Esme Chu.

GOV. INGRAM STAINBACK of Honolulu and Mrs. Stainback, and Mr. and Mrs. Blake Clark lunched in the lounge of the Mayflower yesterday with a group who had all lived at one time or another in the Orient or the Hawaiian Islands. At the luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morrow, Lyle Brookover, Miss Bessie Hackett and William Harris.

Mr. Clark, who has just published "Hawaii, the Forty-ninth State," with Mrs. Clark and their infant daughter, Nikki, will return to Hawaii for a visit this summer. He and Mrs. Clark first met when both were teachers in Honolulu, and they now compose one of the actively "writing couples" of the Capital.

Lieutenant Campbell was graduated from the United States Naval Academy, class of 1943. At present he is stationed with the Air Group aboard the USS Sicily.

The wedding is to take place in the early fall.

National Day of Siam Marked By Popular Party at Embassy

By Elizabeth Maguire

In the garden of their Embassy yesterday afternoon the Siamese Ambassador and Princess Wan Waithayakon greeted guests between the hours of 6 and 8. The fete was in celebration of National Day in Siam, dating back to 1934 when the form of government changed from absolute to a constitutional monarchy.

The Princess made her first appearance in society since her arrival in Washington about two weeks ago. Her Siamese dress was of royal purple and she wore silver slippers. Other Siamese ladies at the party wore adaptations of their native dress.

Mme. Bhakdi Present

Mme. Bhakdi, wife of the Secretary, wore an olive green skirt with gold cloth jacket. She and the Secretary are leaving soon for Bangkok after a stay here of 15 years.

Miss Krongthong Chutima, a Siamese student from the University of Pennsylvania, drew interested listeners when she told of an unusual custom of her country. The women are the bankers in Bangkok. Men voluntarily put all their finances in the hands of their wives, reserving a mere pittance as an allowance for themselves. And, according to Miss Chutima, it works.

His Serene Highness, Prince Sakol, Siamese agent to the Franco-Siamese Conciliation Commission, and brother of the Ambassador, was at the fete. He is a well known journalist and one of the outstanding scholars of Siam.

The Tarchiana twins sat under the trees with Jean-Claude Winckler, Second Secretary of the French Embassy. They were joined by their father and mother, the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani. The latter wore cool green linen with broad brimmed hat of natural straw. Sometime in the beginning of July the twins and their mother are sailing to Italy.

Tom Burke, tanned and handsome, exchanged a few words with Mrs. Hamilton Wright, and the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt were seen talking with the Indian Ambassador, Asaf Ali. Mrs. M. O. A. Baig, wife of the First Secretary of the Indian Embassy, wore an emerald green sari with ruby rings and necklace.

Shepherds Entertain For Thomases

BRIG. GEN. and Mrs. Gerald Thomas, who are leaving soon for Tsingtao, China, were the guests in whose honor Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., entertained at a farewell dinner last evening in their quarters at the Marine Barracks.

Other guests were Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Rosa Rowell, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Pedro del Valle and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Richard Copeland.

Daughter to Burkes

Mr. and Mrs. Donald T. Burke are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Megan Kathleen, on Friday, June 13, at Bethesda Suburban Hospital. Mrs. Burke is the former Miss Mary Ellen Degnan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Degnan of Washington.

At the Finnish Embassy mid-summer garden party yesterday were Mme. Martins (left) wife of the Brazilian Ambassador; the Brazilian Ambassador, and Mme. Jutilas Hosts at 'Midsummer' Garden Party; Senora de Leeras Welcomed at Reception

By Marie McNair

A "MIDSUMMER day garden party" at the Finnish Legation is new to Washington. In Finland it's as old as its ancient forests.

It's only one of the day-long celebrations on June 24, Finland's longest day in the year. The shops close on that day, there are games and picnics, and when evening comes the sun is still high in the sky and the moon comes up to give additional glow.

The party at the Finnish Legation yesterday came to an end with a program of Finnish songs given by Carl Ruusunen, opera star, as guests came inside from the cool garden.

The Minister, tall, pleasant Kalle Jutila, and smiling Mme. Jutila, elected to welcome their friends in the drawing room, with their son, Agekke, standing with them.

Making the Rounds

Most of the guests were making the party rounds yesterday afternoon. Wives of the Latin American chiefs of mission had been to the reception at the Carlton given by the Pan American Liaison Committee of Women's Organizations to welcome Senora de Lleras, wife of the new director general of the Pan American Union, to Washington. Others were going on to the Siamese Legation for the National Day celebration. Still more had been or were on their way to the Chamber Music Guild's bazaar and tea at the Afghanistan Legation.

The Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins were there. Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, was at the Carlton party, had stopped by the Embassy to pick up her husband to go to the Finnish Legation.

The Ambassador of India, Asaf Ali, came in followed by the ceremonial officer of the State Department and Mrs. Ray Muir.

Harry Andrews, Minister of South Africa, and Mrs. Andrews, had been to the Siamese Legation, and were calling it a day, after sipping a drink and stopping for a chat with friends.

Conversation Pieces

Conversation pieces were the draped white jersey burnoose type turbans worn by good looking Mme. Bertelsen, wife of the Counselor of the Danish Embassy, and her sister, Mme. Agnethe Tryde, who said she had brought both hats from Paris.

The Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani and their daughter, Dora, were there, and then there were the Swedish Minister and Mme. Eriksson; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Livesay, Vice Admiral and Mrs. William W. Smith and the Charge d'Affaires of Guatemala and Senora de Linares.

Greet Senora de Lleras

Most of the wives of the Latin - American Diplomatic Corps were at the reception yesterday to meet Senora de Lleras, who is to be so much a part of the Washington scene now that her husband is the new head of the Pan American Union. She's gracious and chic, and about the size of a minute. Yesterday for the party in her honor she wore dark blue—a simple faille suit—with a half hat resting on her dark hair.

Mrs. Marguerite Lucker, president of the Pan American Liaison Committee who was hostess, was in black with a wide-brimmed hat, and Mrs. Thomas Burke, who assisted the hostess, wore a summery print.

There was music—a stringed trio from the Army Air Force Band, and a long buffet table with Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, and Mrs. Homer Ferguson presiding in turn.

Army Officers' Wives Meet for Luncheon

WIVES of officers of the Judge Advocate General Department met for luncheon yesterday at the Little Tea House.

Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, wife of the General of the Army; Mrs. Leroy Lutes, Mrs. Ernest Brannon and Mrs. Hubert Hoover were in the receiving line as special guests. Mrs. Thomas H. Green, wife of the Judge Advocate General, presided.

Mrs. Claude Michelwaite, wife of Colonel Michelwaite, recently returned from Frankfurt, Germany, spoke to the group, which numbered 85. After luncheon Mrs. Eisenhower took them on a tour of Lee Mansion.

Baby Girl Sharply Resents Show of Affection Between Parents When Daddy Returns From War; Couple Pray for Guidance and Wisdom Dawns

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am writing in regard to "R. R.'s" letter of May 30, the case of parents who have reached their wits' end, trying to compel obedience from their son, now 3,—a problem which started two years ago, when the father returned from war a stranger to his year-old son.

The boy refuses to do anything his father asks, takes all the punishment that is meted out and comes right back with a defiant retort. Your analysis and advice hit the nail on the head. Let me cite our experience as proof.

I too am a former veteran, and when I came home I ran into the same difficulty with our child, a girl then hardly more than a baby. Our family life became just such a turmoil. When I would enter the house of evenings and kiss my wife, our baby would scream, "No! No! That's my mommie." Then she would be upset the whole evening.

I would try to correct her by different methods, but none worked. Things reached a point where some change had to be made. One night after baby was in bed, my wife and I decided the job was too big for us to meet alone, so we both knelt and prayed from the bottom of our hearts for guidance in a plan to solve it.

Child Responded To Real Interest

THEN we sat quietly for about two hours before we started exchanging ideas that came to us. First I explained that I realized I didn't truly know our baby as a father should. I said I should know her every like and dislike and that I would give anything to be able to talk to her in her own language.

During our talk we decided I should put baby first (for a short time) and gain her love. Up to that time, my wife always had a good dinner waiting when I got home. After dinner I helped her with the dishes, then went to the living room to read to baby for about 15 minutes. Baby would soon tire of that and get fresh. I would get angry, she felt it immediately, and we would be off again.

According to our new plan, we had dinner an hour later. When I got home I looked first for baby, romped with her a minute or two before kissing my wife, then took her for a walk or played with her in the living room until dinner was served. At times I even prepared her supper, telling her what she was having, etc., just to keep her talking to me.

Bond of Love Is Great Now

AFTER DINNER, while I helped with the dishes, she was busy in the kitchen, too, with a toy set of dishes I got her. Then baby and I would get out her dolls, give them supper, take them for a walk and put them to bed. All this took about two hours an evening, and it was an effort for me at first, but a very small price to pay for the love of my child.

Within a month I felt really important around the house. Baby was asking for me all day and when I got in sight of the house after a day's work I could see her in the window, both hands waving, and I knew she was shouting, "My daddy's coming home." Words couldn't express my feelings.

When my wife greets me with a kiss at the door, baby joins in. She hangs on my leg and says she loves me too. Believe me, this is worth all the effort spent to know her and have her know me. But spending time with her is no effort now. I hate to see her go to bed so early. I send my wife to the movies whenever a good one comes by, so I can take care of her all by myself.

And to Mr. R. R. I repeat your advice: Take a real interest in the boy. Be patient; be a companion to him. As they get to know each other, irritation will fade and love will follow. And may God's blessing be with them always. H. H.

A Little Reminder To Remember Mama!

DEAR H. H.: You've done wonderfully; but don't overdo it. Your plan inspired by prayer was to put baby first "for a short time," until you had earned her allegiance, remember? And I'm sure all readers will thrill to your story of answered prayer.

But I doubt that divine guidance would endorse your recent policy of shooing your wife off to movies by herself so you can spend whole evenings alone with baby. Mommie deserves rather better than that from the two she loves best. She ought to be beaued by her husband occasionally, while some other good soul takes care of the baby. M. H.

Mrs. Rex Rhoads, national treasurer general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Winifred J. Clearman, D. C. State regent, DAR, and Mrs. Ray E. Brown, State president, CAR, were amng the guests.

Mrs. Harriman Urges Women Act for Peace

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former Minister to Norway, and Lieut. Col. Robert M. McRae, chief of the War Department's reorientation branch, were principal speakers yesterday in a panel discussion on "The Reorientation Program of the American Military Governments in Occupied Areas" given in the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The program was sponsored jointly by Women's Conference on International Affairs, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Helen Montfort Moodie and the War Department.

Mrs. Harriman called upon the leadership of American women in defining democracy to women of the occupied areas of Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea. Pointing out that there are 1,580,000 more women in the United States than men, she said "fighting on the battlefront is the job of the men, but fighting on the peace front is the responsibility of the women."

The former diplomat suggested that women correspond freely with persons of the occupied territory in an effort to give them a clearer picture of American life.

Theda Bara, Wed 25 Years, Explains How

By Omer Anderson

Beverly Hills, Calif., June 24 (1947).—Theda Bara, the silver screen's famed "vampire" and Charles Brabin, who directed her pictures, will celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary June 27.

How, they haven't decided. Most likely they'll just invite old friends in for the evening.

The Brabins awe Hollywood, where most marriages last nearer to 25 months than 25 years.

Hollywood is downright incredulous that Mrs. Brabin should be Theda Bara, the screen's most famous siren.

But the actress sees nothing to be amazed at. Having achieved success in one career, she says she set out to achieve equal success in a much harder career—marriage.

Theda Bara has put into her marriage the same hard work she put into her screen career (she made 48 pictures in less than five years).

In her rich, cultivated voice, her expressive brown eyes shining with happy memories, Theda Bara discussed her marriage.

"Only on the screen," she said, "are marriages made in heaven. I learned to build a happy marriage from hard experience."

Mrs. Brabin ticked off the ingredients of her happy marriage. Then she reflected, "They all sound so trite, don't they? And that's unfortunate, because they are all so important."

Sacrifice Necessary

Frankly, however, Theda Bara thinks most artists would be better off unmarried. Too often they suffer frustration over the sacrifices that marriage demands at the expense of career.

In her own case, Theda Bara retired when she married. She doesn't say two people with careers can't be happily married, but she thinks it infinitely complicates their problems.

Of Hollywood divorces, Mrs. Brabin takes a dim—but understanding—view. To her it's obvious that film folk—and for that matter people in general—are kidding themselves if they demand that marriage with any mate should be an immediately beautiful experience. Her summing up: "A new mate, a new set of faults."

Like Interests Vital

Frequent changes of partners, she believes, only robs the individual of time necessary to build a happy marriage.

The actress, cinema-famed for her overwhelming physical attraction, argues that, in workaday life, it's better if marriage doesn't happen that way.

"Let marriage start with mutual respect and like interests," she proposes, "and physical attraction will follow . . . but I'm being trite again," she laughed.

Mrs. Brabin says it's true what they say about a good wife; she must be an efficient blend of housekeeper, mistress and secretary—and she must be expert at ladling vast stores of oil on stormy seas.

She eats virtually no breakfast, starves on an "egg-and-I" lunch, then enjoys a good dinner.

Keeps Strict Schedule

Like any good wife, Mrs. Brabin is proud of her home, for the last 20 years the Brabins have lived in Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Brabin operates on a strict schedule. Mornings she reserves for running her home, afternoons for social engagements. Dinner, in the summer time, is at 6 sharp, as her husband is fond of spending the twilight hours working in their garden.

England-born Charles Brabin started in motion pictures in 1908 with the Edison Co., and directed at Vitagraph, Essanay, Metro, Fox (where he met his wife), M-G-M and other studios.

Now retired, her well-read husband is able to satisfy his interest in art and literature to his heart's content.

All in all, Theda Bara views her enduring marriage as merely a logical extension of the screen vamp role she created.

"Once a vamp irresistibly has won a man, shouldn't she be able irresistibly to hold him?" laughed Mrs. Brabin.

Kerr Girl Cupid In Real Life Story

Hollywood—In London three years ago, Bob Quirk was stationed as newsreel cameraman at 35 Davey street, across from Claridge House, where Deborah Kerr lived. They met daily as Quirk went to assignments, she to her studio. When Quirk fell in love with an English girl, Miss Kerr played cupid and encouraged the romance.

Last week, on the set of Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's "If Winter Comes," Miss Kerr and Quirk met again for the first time since London days. He's stillman on the picture which stars Miss Kerr and Walter Pidgeon!

And, wed to the English girl, he expects his first heir any day now—and Miss Kerr will have a namesake!

Your Questions On Homemaking

The mattress must be damp inside and professional renovation is the surest way to restore it.

So many recipes call for "single-acting" baking powder and others call for "double-acting." Can you tell me which brands are single and which are double, or if there is some ingredient which would enable me to tell the difference? A. M. B.

I think you will find with no exceptions that the so-called "double-acting" baking powders are all plainly marked as such. If they are not plainly marked "double-acting" they are single acting.

My husband got oil from an elctric fan on the shoulder of his Army blouse. The blouse has been cleaned, but the oil still shows. Is there anything that would remove this completely? T. L. S.

First, rub vaseline or lard into the stain to soften it, then sponge with one of the grease solvents, carbon tetrachloride or benzine. Another method is to make a paste by mixing cornstarch with the grease solvents. Spread the paste over the spot and when dry brush it off. Repeat if necessary.

Recently, a bottle of deodorizer was capsized upon a boudoir chair upholstered in aqua and silver rayon-satin material. The resultant stain covered the entire front of the chair and I am rather worried as to whether the length of time that has ensued will contribute greatly to the degree of saturation and resistance to effacement. I should very much appreciate any suggestions you might make toward corrective procedure. M. R. I.

The chance of removing stains from anything are improved tremendously by very prompt action. This is especially true of stains on upholstered chairs, since allowing to stand gives the staining substance that much longer to penetrate the padding under the cover. I would suggest you discuss your problem with a first-rate upholstery cleaner.

I placed red crepe paper around the base of the Christmas tree and one of my children put water in the container, spilling some on the paper. The color went through to the rose-beige rug and I didn't discover it until the tree was taken down. Is there anything that will remove such a stain? The rug is all wool. E. E. O.

Old dye stains in rugs must be given professional treatment.

You suggested using Pepsin powder to remove perspiration odor from fabrics. This product is not available in the drug stores. Can you tell me where I can obtain it? V. G.

Pepsin powder is not available in all drug stores it seems, but it is available in a long established drug store on Pennsylvania ave. Or you may buy it through a chemical supply house. Look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory.

I recently bought a second-hand dinnette set. It looks like it has been stained cherry or at least it is wine color. I would like to make this set oak. How would I go about it? F. M.

Remove all of the old finish of your furniture by using a varnish and paint remover. If the color is still too dark after the old finish has been removed, use one of the new commercial wood bleaches. Follow the manufacturer's directions carefully.

When bleached, sand with the grain whenever possible until smooth. Now, apply a thin coat of white shellac and let dry thoroughly. Apply water stain in the desired color. Sand lightly and carefully with the grain to avoid cutting stain. Apply a second coat of thin shellac or varnish. Let dry thoroughly. Sand lightly, and dust off. Apply one or two more coats of shellac or varnish, sanding after each coat is thoroughly dry. Rub down with rottenstone or powdered pumice and linseed oil.

I have a gooseneck lamp finished in what is probably baked on enamel which I would like to paint red. Would the heat of the bulb cause the paint on the shade to crack? Should enamel, lacquer, or flat paint be used? Would it be desirable to wax the lamp after painting? C. S.

Paint your lamp with a special heat-resistant metallic paint. You might wax your lamp base, but not the shade.

Will you please tell me how to get finger-nail polish out of a rayon crepe slip? M. R. C.

Apply a few drops of banana oil to the stain, let stand a few minutes and sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

This is a small fishing town with few conveniences. Our wash and utility room is outside. Could you please tell me how I can keep the minerals and rust from the pipes from specking my clothes and making them a yellowish color? D. S.

If there are specks of rust from the pipes in the water, you might do away with these by straining the water into your washer and rinsing tubs through a closely woven cloth. Such a cloth might be tied onto the mouth of the faucet. Allowing your water to stand in another tub so that rusty sediment will settle, then dipping the water out carefully into the washer and rinse tubs to avoid the sediment.

Also, adding a cup of household bleach to the washer of suds will help. Of course, the only permanent answer to your problem is to install rust proof pipes.

My little boy put lipstick on a white plastic pocketbook. Is there a way I can remove the spots without removing the color? R. H.

Put coolrless vaseline into the lipstick stain and then sponge with carbon tetrachloride. If a trace of color remains, sponge with denatured alcohol.

Some time ago I wrote, asking this help, and as I have not seen it answered, I am sure it did not reach you or that many were ahead of my question. In cleaning the hard-water mark off of a new enamel coffee pot, I broke some of the enamel and have been afraid to use the container because of the powdery substance that appears from the break. Is there anything I can do about this and is the the damaged coffee pot dangerous to use? J. C. B.

Your question was answered in these columns about a month ago, but since you didn't see the answer I will reprint it. It is not safe to use a porcelain enamel utensil that has been chipped. The bare spot may rust and more of the enamel chip away. This is a glass-like substance and contaminates food. There is nothing you can do to repair the interior. Exterior chipping can be repaired.

I spilled chocolate ice cream on a light coat. After washing it off there was a stain. Please tell me what will remove it. J. R.

Sponge the stain with carbon tetrachloride or use a cleaning powder. If this doesn't remove the stain, sponge with a pad moistened with hydrogen peroxide. Rinse thoroughly. Caution: Test the effect of hydrogen peroxide on the color in an inconspicuous spot before applying to the stain.

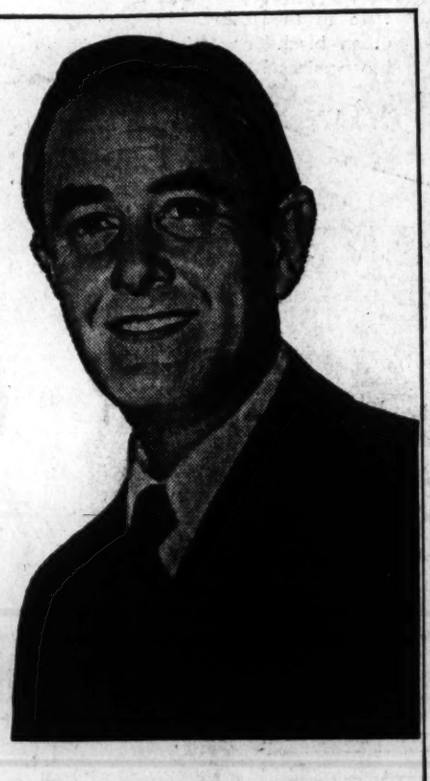
W. A. HARRIMAN
Secretary of Commerce Says:

Keep Turning In Your Used Fats



Used cooking fats have represented a substantial part of our total industrial fat supply. The more than 600 million pounds of used fats that American homemakers have saved and turned in since 1942 has been of vital importance. It is a record of which every woman who contributed may well be very proud.

The United States still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we are particularly short of industrial fats. Many, if not most, of the things we all use and wear require industrial fats, or the products of industrial fats, such as soaps and glycerine, in their manufacture.

So won't you keep up your good work and continue to save and turn in every possible pound of used fat?

W. A. Harriman
Secretary
U. S. Department of Commerce

Song-Writing Starlet, Seeking Other Worlds, Tackles a Typewriter

By Richard L. Coe

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC: We've commissioned a Hollywood starlet to do a yarn for us about "starletdom" in Hollywood . . . She's Virginia Welles, that pretty blonde playing Bill Holden's sister in "Dear Ruth" at the Earle . . . Virginia was in these parts briefly and an airy little miss she is . . . Virginia says she's 22, but we don't think she's a day over 17 . . . One of our village's proudest young fathers was baiting her rather ruthlessly about the advantages of marriage over career and Virginia certainly wavered . . . But she confessed she had "no one in particular" in mind for the other matrimonial role . . . Virginia's one of those gals who got into the movies by accident, just the way you read about in the fan magazines . . . We brought up this unlikely facet in discussing the projected article with Virginia, and she promised us she would not give it what she called "the fan magazine treatment," so for the record we're taking her up on her offer. . . She composes to the satisfaction of Freddy Martin and Paul Whiteman, who've done her "I'm So Afraid" and "The Love Waltz" on the air . . . Says she'd like to work with the words, so we've given her a month to come through.

Virginia Welles

UP-COMING THURSDAY will be a novel program at the Trans-Lux, "The Sportsman's Show" . . . Five sport reels are on the bill and the newsreel will be showing the golf, rowing, baseball and racing events the sports pages have been covering lately . . . While the baseball short will be Disney's (Goofy in "How to Play Baseball"), the others will be the McCoy . . . among them, "Monarchs of the Ring," "Grappling Groaners," "Mountain Anglers" and "Wild Turkey" . . . The latter takes you 'round Maryland's Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, as snappy a shooting spot as you'll find.

FRIDAY, NOT THURSDAY, will be this week's opening day at the Palace . . . The picture will be the one that was sneak-previewed Monday night to an evidently pleased house, "Miracle on 34th Street," wherein Edmund Gwenn gives a wondrously acted performance as the man who dares people to say he isn't Santa Claus . . . which gives "Sea of Grass" a day over a week's run . . . This doesn't necessarily mean the Palace will be switching opening days . . . It's just one of those things.

THE PIX is struggling to break into the "first run" parade with its all-week engagements . . . At the moment Republic's "Hit Parade of 1947" is on the screen with Eddie Albert, Constance Moore, Joan Edwards and Gil Lamb and the Woody Herman orchestra . . . The twin of its double bill is "Road to Hollywood," which is a compilation of four old Mack Sennett-Educational two-reelers starring Bing Crosby . . . Bing sings "I Surrender Dear," "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain" and "Just One More Chance." . . . So you can't truthfully say "Road to Hollywood" is a new picture . . . Fresh hash is more like it . . . Still the Pix is trying.

THE FUTURE BOOK on other screens includes "Cheyenne," opening Thursday at the Metropolitan, which a few months ago said it was going to play only first runs, by the way . . . That swell melodrama, "The Killers," goes into the Open Air tomorrow night to run through Saturday's night owl show . . . The Little isn't planning any immediate shifts, so happy are they with "The Well-digger's Daughter," which goes into its sixth week this morning, and a very nice picture it is, too . . . "The Jolson Story" pops up again with a return run at the Anacostia Theater on Good Hope rd. next Monday and Tuesday. The Jolson picture is still one of the boxoffice champions, for the fourth successive month, on the Nation's screens . . . It's sharing top honors, as Congressman Rankin might be interested to know, with that glowing tribute to sexy Texas, "Duel in the Sun."

YE ALMANAC this morning almost contained a note on the National's next, but it seems the Detroit phone isn't too sure. . . . So about all we can say about the National is that something's cooking. . . . Hypnotist Ralph Slater of the Capitol will be autographing copies of his book, "Hypnotism and Self-Hypnotism," in the National Press Pharmacy this afternoon at 5. . . . "Alice in Wonderland" is closing in New York Saturday night after 100 performances. . . . The closing will give the cast a summer holiday before taking to the road in the fall. . . . If the nurse of Keith's recent short, "I Am an Alcoholoc," looked familiar, no wonder. . . . She's Natalie Core, the lass of many a local play now radioacting in Gotham. . . . Speaking of radio, Helen Hayes and her daughter, Mary MacArthur, top the last Theater Guild of the Air Sunday night in James M. Barrie's "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire." This is the comedy they played together last year on the citronella circuit. . . . The Guild's radio plays will be back after a nine-week vacation.

Good Neighbor Policy In New York's E. 70s

New York — Chief Magistrate Bromberger lives in a house in the East seventies. His neighbors, who have been parking their cars in the street for many years, suddenly started to find police tags on them—for overtime parking and for parking near the fire hydrant there. They suspect that the complaints come from the Chief Magistrate . . . in retaliation, some of them have started to keep record on the parking of the Chief Magistrate's car. One of them, a lawyer, has made a series of photographs, marked with the time when each picture was made, all sworn to before a notary public. The photo series shows overtime parking.

Orson Welles

Wayne Morris, the screen star, appeared at the Pasadena Playhouse with Onslow Stevens in "The Bad Man." Morris' scene called for him to appear onstage, draw a gun and shoot Stevens . . . In reaching for the six-shooter, Morris fumbled at the holster and all the cartridges dropped to the floor. The quick-thinking Stevens, who was to be "killed," immediately raised a chair to start a "fight"—so that he could pretend that Morris' fist killed him . . . But Wayne Morris had a different idea. He too did some quick thinking. He pressed his hand against Stevens' face and announced: "I keel you wit' my poison ring."

A producer who is about to make a movie in Mexico asked Orson Welles about the difference between the film actors of Hollywood and Mexico. "Their reactions are different," Welles explained. "If you tell a Hollywood actor you're giving him more money, he'll laugh. If you tell him you're cutting his salary, he cries. But tell a Mexican actor that you're giving him more money, and he'll cry. Tell him you're giving him less, and he'll laugh."

Edward Folliard of The Washington Post, who won the Pulitzer Prize for his expose on the Columbians in Georgia, was at his desk in the city room when his publisher, Phil Graham, walked by. Graham mentioned the Pulitzer Prize. . . . "Oh, that's old and done with," shrugged Folliard. "Sometimes as much as 30 second go by without my thinking about it."

Carlo Levi, the author of "Christ Stopped at Eboli," has agreed to write an article for the co-operative magazine, "'47." Gjon Mili, the photographer who is one of the editors, made the deal with Levi—to write the piece in return for three photographs of him made by Mili. . . . "Why don't you write an article about your visit," Mili suggested, "about your reactions to American life and customs?" . . . "No, I don't believe that any writer who comes to a country as large as this should immediately write his reactions," said Levi. "After I return to Italy I'll reflect for three months—and then write it."

'2 Guys From Moscow' Climb Hollywoods' Anti-Red Wagon

Hollywood, June 24. — Darryl Zanuck, to take advantage of summer weather, has made a radical change in Twentieth Century's production schedule. All the pictures that are to be shot on outdoor locations are being rushed before the cameras so they can be completed before autumn. Among them are "Spoonhandle," "Missouri Waltz," and "The Flapper Age." The last, starring Jeanne Crain, will be filmed in Ohio and Illinois. This means that "Julie," for which Jeanne was announced a few days ago, will be put off until fall. It can be shot entirely indoors here, despite the weather . . . Alex Gottlieb is cooking up another story for his "Two Guys"—Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson. This time the boys will kid the pants off communism in an opus titled "Two Guys from Moscow." Alex himself is writing the outline of the story, which is awaiting approval by studio heads. That guy seemingly can't get enough work to do. He has three pictures in production at Warners now, which brings his tally up to five in as many months . . . Orson Welles has changed the play script of "Macbeth" to give Lady Macbeth and Lady Macduff scenes together in the movie version.

Jeanne Crain

Heroes of the Stage

Deborah Kerr, on location with "If Winter Comes," is having her first opportunity to enjoy our great American outdoors. On the first day, she got poison ivy, a sunburned nose, broke three fingernails, and was stung by a bee. Now she'll settle for a sound stage . . .

Garlands for Garland

The Coronet Theater here got off to a bang-up start with its first production, "Skin of Our Teeth." The staging was excellent; and members of the cast headed by Keenan Wynn, Jane Wyatt, Hurd Hatfield, Carol Stone, and Elizabeth Fraser, turned in admirable performances. Carol, who never missed a trick in a role that would have delighted the heart of any gal, was especially noteworthy. Kate Lawson's sets were uniquely effective. Among the first nighters were Van Johnson and Evie (who sat in one of the back rows), Olivia De Haviland and Marcus Goodrich, Judy Garland and Vincente Minnelli, Angela Lansbury, Ed Wynn, Ruth Hussey, Gene Kelly and Hume Cronyn . . . The party thrown for Judy Garland on her twenty-fifth birthday took place on "The Pirate" set. It brought out entertainment money couldn't buy. Cole Porter played the piano. Irving Berlin sang "White Christmas"; then he and Judy did a duet with "There's No Business Like Show Business." The Nicholas Brothers did some fancy hoofing. Sounds like the old days, when picture making was fun.

Rushing Around

Cornel Wilde skips the rushes on his picture at Columbia, but rushes over to another lot to see wife Patricia Knight's. She's doing her first picture, "Rosies Are Red," for Sol Wurtzel.

QUONSETS ARE SPREADING. That prancey-dancey summer opening party at Quonset Inn last night also marked the development of a Quonset epidemic that will sweep the country, its projectors believe. A new Quonset will soon be launched in Alexandria and others will be scattered from East to West. A national syndicate is handling the enterprise . . . New top stars at our Washington Quonset are the Tunesmen, novelty trio recently held over at the Capitol Theater—and being held over at the Capitol is a feat next door to a miracle. There's dining and dancing outdoors on the Country Club Terrace, also indoors in the Bamboo Room. Or you can perch at the long Music Bar and rest your feet. Dance music by Art Calevas and strolling tunes by violinist Durward Bowersox.

At El Patio

Little Jack Little

The Adantes, an athletic "study in slow motion", opened at the Casino Royal last night together with dancer Harriet Lane. Songs by "Jive" Schaffer and Louise Lee and picture numbers by the Elaine Shaffer Girls round out this new revue.

MIKE WRASTLING is an ever-present trouble to Yvonne Moray, midget singer at the Lotus. When 6-foot Buddy Shaner walked off stage leaving the mike away up there, infuriated Yvonne shook her fist at him, then shinnied up the mike and pulled it down to her 4-foot size . . . Startling at the Lotus, too, are the black chiffon stockings worn with a voluminous white evening dress by the beauteous blonde girl half of the dancing Springers.

FIRST FLYING VISITORS to Bill Stricklands' new summer spot at Old Cedar Point were Sammy Seymour, bandleader on the Starlight Roof, and Julian Shawkeer, trumpeter with Jack Corrys' Glen Echo band. Both music men are pilots. They flew down and back to Old Cedar Point on Sunday without incident, approved the landing strip and did a bit of fishing.

"How Dry I Am" is played upside-down by Edith Davies, new Neptune Room organist. "It comes out like a Korean chant," says David Pierce, who's publicizing Neptune for Frank Romer. We can testify, personally, that Edith does some fine Raymond Scott music and such jolly Milt Herth specials as "The Whistler and His Dog."

Ruddy Poppell, new manager of Restaurant 400, gave a birthday dinner there last night in honor of his pretty missus, Mary. They met in a nitery Rudy was managing when Mary inquired about a lost purse. She never did get the purse—but she got Rudy.

Va. Personnel Problems Laid To Low Wages

Richmond, Va., June 24 (AP).—Many of Virginia's personnel problems were attributed today to low rates of pay, as compared with private industry, in testimony before a Virginia Advisory Legislative Council committee studying the advisability of a wage-hour law covering State employes.

The committee, headed by State Senator James Hoge Tyler 3d of Norfolk, also received a cautious note from Budget Director J. H. Bradford that while uniformly shorter hours admittedly would be desirable, their achievement could come only with the expenditure of considerably larger appropriations, which in turn would call for higher taxes.

A spokesman for attendants and other personnel at Central State Hospital, Petersburg, reported long hours and low pay a big factor in an "exceedingly rapid" turnover of employes there. Spokesmen for maids, janitors, cooks and helpers at the University of Virginia Hospital, Charlottesville, called for pay raises there.

Representatives of a number of other departments and groups told the committee that their problems were aggravated by either comparatively low salaries or long hours, or both.

Urges Standards Law

In addition to the State employes' spokesmen, a representative of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Miss Mary V. Smith, appeared to recommend enactment in Virginia of a law corresponding to the Fair Labor Standards Act, universally applicable, and providing time-and-a-half compensation for overtime work.

The State Department of Agriculture reported that it had had seven vacancies for positions as junior chemists for a long time and not a single qualified applicant in the last year. The reason, officials said, was that the starting State salary was $2150, as compared with $3000 to $4000 in private industry.

R. H. Cooley, attorney for employes of Central State Hospital, one of the State-operated mental institutions, testified that attendants and other employes there work 12 hours a day five days a week and receive wages of $60 to $71 a month. As a result, he said, some wards where four attendants normally would be on duty now have only one or two, although the patient population of 160 is unchanged. He called for a standard eight-hour workday and a minimum "living wage."

George King, speaking for the Negro employes of the University of Virginia Hospital, asked increases in pay, which he described as necessary to bring the hospital wages to a par with other employment, maintenance of a 48-hour week and merit increases.

Uniform Week Sought

On behalf of custodial officers of the State penal system, Maj. W. Franksmith, jr., superintendent of the State penitentiary, transmitted recommendations for a uniform work week, with overtime pay for extra hours, and higher starting salaries. He noted that some of his road camp guards still worked 60 hours or more a week, despite reductions permitted under appropriations by the last regular session of the General Assembly.

John G. Allen, Botetourt County attorney, urged consideration of better pay for the Highway Department's laborers, and said he appeared at the behest of a group of employes in his section.

The committee listened to all the witnesses at some length and then adjourned to meet at a later date at the call of Senator Tyler. Other members are Giles M. Robertson of Richmond, H. A. Haden of Charlottesville, W. Tayloe Murphy of Warsaw and James M. Robertson of Norfolk.

16 Fairfax Playgrounds To Be Opened

Sixteen playgrounds in Fairfax County will open on Monday for a six-week summer program, officials of the Fairfax Recreation Association announced yesterday.

The association, a Community Chest agency, will supervise the program, but community groups will assist in the operation and maintenance of the play centers. Paid directors will supervise organized programs at all grounds.

The recreation association provides a $30 weekly salary for playground directors. Civic and community groups in at least four areas have agreed to supplement the supervisors' pay, Mrs. R. A. Osborn, director for the summer program, revealed.

Mrs. Osborn said four less playgrounds than last year will be operated, due to a combination of a reduced budget and the fact that two former playground sites are being used this summer in connection with school construction projects.

The director said white playgrounds will be operated at Lincolnia, Dunn Loring, Forestville, Clifton, Fairhaven, Groveton, Grays Village, Fort Belvoir and Falls Church. Negro play centers are situated at Gum Springs, Vienna, Merrifield, Odrick's Corner, Baileys Cross Roads, Youngs Village and Fairfax.

Appointment of directors will be completed this week, Mrs. Osborn said.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Laura Bates Donnan; a daughter, Mrs. Harry T. Zimmerman, Frederick, and a son, T. E. Donnan, Oak Harbor, Mich.

Car Theft Ring Suspect Held In $10,000 Bail

Pennington Gap, Va., June 24 (AP).—William P. Napier, 30, was in Wise Jail today in default of $10,000 bond on charges of violating the National Motor Vehicle Act. He is the third person arrested on such charges as FBI agents and State police pressed the hunt for others allegedly involved in widespread motor thefts in four States.

Pennington Gap Police Chief Ervin Fritts said Napier and another man drove into town with 1947 models of Dodge and De Soto automobiles. They offered them for sale at the Thompson Motor Co., and when the manager called State highway patrolmen they fled.

In a chase down a Wise County road State Trooper John Boyd crowded Napier to the side, and both the police car and the De Soto in which Napier was riding were wrecked. Napier was charged with unlawful transportation of the car from Richmond, Ind. Napier said he was from Kentucky.

Already charged with violating the Motor Vehicle Act are Charles Thompson, president of the motor company, and his son, Cecil. The father is at liberty on $25,000 bond and his son on $1000.

The Richmond office of the FBI said the motor company sold 200 cars during 1946 and 1947.

Mrs. Mary Boyd, Beach Inn Owner, Dies at Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., June 24 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Williams Boyd, prominent resident of Virginia Beach and owner of the Dundee Inn, died today in a local hospital after an illness of two weeks.

A native of Lynchburg and direct descendant of John Woodson of the Virginia House of Burgesses, and Charles Lynch, founder of Lynchburg, she had resided at Virginia Beach for 23 years operating the Dundee cottage and the Dundee Inn during that period. The inn was built in 1936.

She was the daughter of Charles Mortimer and Mrs. Ottway Stitzer Williams.

In addition to her husband, James Ramsey Boyd, she is survived by two daughters, Miss Mary Hamilton Boyd and Mrs. Louise Boyd Robinson, Virginia Beach, and two sisters, Mrs. Harold T. Estes, Roanoke, and Mrs. William Rosenfeld, Chicago.

Funeral services will be conducted at the First Presbyterian Church, Virginia Beach, tomorrow at 11:30 o'clock after which the body will be taken to Lynchburg for interment in Presbyterian Cemetery.

Union, Celanese Negotiators Held In Night Session

By The Associated Press

Federal conciliators held striking CIO textile workers and representatives of the Celanese Corp. of America in session last night to speed efforts to end the 25-day shutdown at the company's Cumberland (Md.) plant.

Conciliators Peter J. Manno and James Holden worked with representatives of the union and company separately and in joint conferences in an attempt to break the deadlock over "fringe" contract adjustments which brought on the strike of 9000 workers.

The mediation sessions began Monday and were quickened yesterday, but neither conciliators nor the parties reported much progress. The night session broke up at 6:45 p. m. and discussions will be resumed today at 10:30.

Association Urges Lottery to Aid District

Mid-City Citizens Association Tuesday night adopted a resolution urging Congress to enact legislation to operate a lottery in the District under Federal supervision, as a means to pay off the four-million-dollar deficit in the District's 1946 appropriations bill.

In the meeting last night at the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., the association also adopted a resolution commending Representative Walt Horan, chairman of the House Committee on District Affairs for his work in promoting District schools and other needed facilities.

Denton Dentist Shot Himself, Coroner Says

Denton, Md., June 24 (AP).—Caroline County Coroner Dawson O. George reported that Dr. Julius Henry Summerfield, about 55, a prominent Denton dentist, shot himself to death with an old Army rifle in his office here. The dentist had been in ill health for some time.

Dr. Summerfield, a native of Bristol, Va., is survived by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Summerfield, Baltimore. His wife died last year.

Better Road Sought Near Clarksburg, Md.

A trio of Clarksburg, Md., farmers yesterday asked the Montgomery County Commissioners to improve Slidell-Shiloh Church rd., near Clarksburg before winter again makes it impassable. Last winter, they said, people who were ill had to be carried out on a stretcher.

Brown Heads Lions

Manassas, Va., June 24—William Hill Brown, jr., has been elected president of the newly organized local Lions Club. Other officers are: First vice president, Worth H. Storke; second vice president, Norman MacManaway; third vice president, G. Keith Lyons; and secretary-treasurer, Arthur Carter. The new club has 22 charter members.

National Weather Summary

24-HOUR FORECAST: Coolest temperatures in the Nation will be recorded in northern Maine and along the Canadian border from Minnesota to Montana Wednesday. Early morning temperatures will drop to near 50 degrees in these areas. Afternoon maximums will be near 90 degrees from Louisiana to New Mexico while thermometers will soar over 100 degrees in the southwest desert region.

Weather Bureau forecasters are calling for showers and thunderstorms from western New York to Alabama, also in the Plains States. (Affected areas on the Fotocast picture where these rains will fall.) Afternoon and early evening thundershowers are indicated for the northern Rockies and the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Pleasant weather with sunny skies is promised from Wisconsin and Michigan to the central Plains, also in the Far West. Skies will be overcast from Maine to North Carolina and Tennessee. (The inset map shows cloudiness for the next 24 hours.)

Photographic fans will find the inset chart helpful in planning activity. Clear skies afford the maximum amount of light and are best for color pictures. Overcast skies are poorest for sharp outlines, shadows and detail.

Large, open arrows on the Fotocast show the movement of warm, cold, moist and dry bodies of air called air masses. The smaller, solid air flow arrows show the circulation of air around high and low pressure cells as well as the wind direction over the Nation.

Highest temperatures Wednesday afternoon will range from 106 degrees at Las Vegas to 62 in Maine and northern Michigan. Forecast maximum readings include Fort Worth, 93; Buffalo, Albany and Kansas City, 88; Cleveland and Nashville, 87; St. Louis, 84; New York, 83; Philadelphia, Washington and Atlanta, 86; Chicago, 82; Bismarck, 80; Milwaukee, 78; Detroit, 76; Hartford, 72; Boston and Duluth, 70 degrees.

2 Servicemen Sentenced for Brig Abuses

Annapolis, Md., June 24 (AP).—Two enlisted service men charged with abusing prisoners at the North Severn Brig were given prison terms today as the trial of another closed except for final arguments.

Seaman First Class James E. Childs, 21, of Camilla, Ga., was convicted on 10 counts of "striking another Navy man," sentenced to 22 months in the restraining command at Norfolk, Va., and given a bad-conduct discharge.

Marine Pfc. Joseph C. O'Leary of Buffalo, N. Y., was convicted on seven counts of the same charge and sentence dto 18 months' confinement also at the restraining command. He was reduced to the rank of private and given a bad-conduct discharge.

Both prisoners were tried as a result of an inquiry of an alleged "kangaroo court" at the North Severn Brig early this year.

Meanwhile, the trial of Marine Pfc. Roger E. Fontaine, 18, of Grand Coulee, Wash., continued with Steward's Mate 2/c Heize B. Jennings testifying O'Leary had struck him about January 17, but had not heard Fontaine order O'Leary to do so.

For the defense, three of Fontaine's superior officers testified to his "good character, efficiency and ability as a soldier."

Insanity Pleaded For 'Paul Revere' Of Radio Berlin

Boston, June 24 (AP).—The defense rested its case in the treason trial of Douglas Chandler here today after presenting four psychiatrists who agreed the 58-year-old former Baltimore newsman was "incurably insane and had been for at least 10 years."

Government attorneys, seeking to send Chandler to the gallows for his wartime broadcasts as "Paul Revere" from Radio Berlin, immediately called the first of five medical experts in an effort to prove Chandler sane.

Dr. Norris B. Flanagan, professor of psychiatry at Tufts Medical School, said he had examined Chandler and found him sane.

"The defendant does not suffer from delusions," Dr. Flanagan said. "His attitude toward Jews is fanatical rather than delusional. He has a personality disorder, but he is not neurotic or psychotic."

APO Bans Smokes To France, Austria

The War Department last night announced a ban, effective July 1, on mailing of cigarettes, cigars, and tobacco to Army postoffice addresses in France and Austria.

50 Maryland Workers Guilty of $5500 Fraud

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—Fifty Maryland workers were convicted or pleaded guilty today to charges of defrauding the employment security board of about $5500 and were ordered to make restitution.

Fines totaling $1817 were imposed against the group by Criminal Court Judge J. Abner Saylor.

T. S. Johnson, Sr., Dead

Baltimore, June 24 (AP).—Relatives here today received word of the death at Montclair, N. J., of Thomas S. Johnson, sr., 68, retired assistant superintendent of the United States Lighthouse Service's Fifth District.

Johnson was seized by a heart attack while visiting a son in Montclaire three weeks ago and had been a hospital patient since then. Survivors include his widow, a daughter, and two sons.

Fairfax Children Will Vacation At Forest Camp

More than 100 Fairfax County children will have a week's vacation at Camp Wakanda in Shenandoah National Forest beginning next Monday through the joint efforts of seven Methodist churches in the county.

Supervisor for the project is the Rev. Esdras S. Gruver, pastor of Langley Methodist Church and Andrews' Chapel, who said yesterday each child attending the camp would be assessed a nominal registration fee. The participating churches will underwrite additional expenses of the week's program.

In some instances, the Rev. Mr. Gruver said, the churches also will pay the expenses of children who cannot afford the registration costs. Most of the children will represent churches participating in the program, but there will be no denominational restrictions.

Sponsoring churches, in addition to Langley and Andrews' Chapel, include Dunn Loring, Merrifield, Vienna, Oakton and Annandale.

Depression Insurance

You keep telling us now is the wrong time to buy. Things are too high. Prices are coming down, etc. Why not buy an insurance against this? Featuring several houses at $11,750; $830 cash for veterans, $2,000 cash for non-veterans. Monthly payments in both instances approximately $80 per month. You couldn't rent the same home if it were available for $120 per month and there would be no return on this monthly rent. Approximately one-half of the $80 each month reduces the principal. About 90% of the other $40, including taxes and interest, can be deducted from your income tax. How can you afford not to buy one of these extremely well-built 5-room homes, including over 18-ft. living room with charming fireplace, nice dining room and kitchen, 2d bedrooms and tiled bath; also, stairway to large attic for expansion. Behind The Scenes In Veto Action: Labor Chiefs Hold Secret Huddle

By Drew Pearson

Both friends and enemies agree that seldom has any President in history gone to bat harder to sustain a veto than did Harry Truman on the labor bill. What they don't know, however, is that the secret strategy to spur the President was laid on Friday, June 13, in the office of Florida's Senator Pepper, together with Leslie Biffle, director Senate Democratic Policy Committee, AFL Boss Bill Green, John L. Lewis, CIO Chief Phil Murray, Teamsters Union Boss Dan Tobin and Edward Lyons, executive director of the railway labor executives association.

MURRAY

Pepper, who had called the meeting, opened it by saying the chance of sustaining a presidential veto of the Taft-Hartley bill was meager. "The general sentiment among Senate Democrats," Pepper declared, "is that the President will have his 'penny and the cake' by vetoing the bill, thereby winning political support of labor. Then he will let the bill be passed over his veto."

John L. Lewis, Phil Murray et al agreed. Turning to Truman's close friend, Les Biffle, they said that a veto wouldn't mean anything if it did not include presidential action to mobilize support in the Senate.

The bull-voiced Lewis then rumbled about the damage the labor bill already had done to his negotiations with the soft coal operators.

"I could have settled all issues with them if the operators hadn't figured the gains they would make from the bill," he complained.

"How do the rank and file feel about the bill?" Pepper asked.

Labor Seethes

"In my 40 years in the labor movement," said Green, "the rank and file have never been more aroused and angry than they are today."

Dan Tobin agreed. "There's a teamsters' strike in Milwaukee," he said. "This is the first time in 30 years they've ever struck in that town. They think Congress is discriminating against them."

Turning to Biffle, who comes from antilabor Arkansas, Dan Tobin remarked: "I've been a labor representative in the Democratic National Party for 16 years, Leslie. And I can tell you there's damn little chance that the Democratic Party will enjoy the support of labor if the party fails to uphold the veto."

A few days later, Sunday night, June 15, the same group met with Clark Clifford. Clifford indicated that if the President vetoed, his message would also exert every influence to sustain his veto.

Career Man Hit

Returning to Washington next day, Truman promptly withdrew from the Senate the name of one of the best career Government servants working in the intricate, specialized field of communications—Ray Wakefield.

"The District Line" by Bill Gold is being suspended during Bill's vacation.

Wakefield, a California Republican, devoted a life-time to the Government, beginning as a California district attorney, then as a California railroad commissioner, finally as an outstanding member of the Federal Communications Commission. When his term expired last month, Wakefield was unanimously recommended for reappointment by Democratic FCC Chairman Charles Denny, and by both California's Democratic Senator Downey and Republican Senator Knowland.

Howls From West

Accordingly, Truman sent his name to the Senate. But three days later—immediately after his Princeton speech urging young men to become career Government servants—Truman, without explanation, reversed himself. Here, however, are the real explanations:

1. On June 13, Commissioner Wakefield voted to deny a radio station to the nephew of former Speaker Sam Rayburn. Rayburn's nephew, Robert T. Bartley, owns all the common stock in KHTN, Inc., and applied for a station in Houston. But Wakefield voted No. Two days later, Sam Rayburn demanded that Wakefield's name be withdrawn.

2. Wakefield had also stepped on the toes of the big radio networks, had shown himself too independent. Furthermore, Senators Taft and Bricker of Ohio didn't like him. Taft has one radio station and Bricker has applied for one. Their man was Congressman Robert Jones of Lima, Ohio.

Working a triple-play—Speaker Joe Martin to Former Speaker Sam Rayburn to the White House—Taft and Bricker finally got Jones appointed.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

A young college student displayed admirable calm and a certain amount of dash in the play of a grand-slam contract on today's hand. He maneuvered the cards to provide a surprise ending for his classmates by having all four aces fall on the last trick.

"I thought you'd be interested in this hand," writes Robert Jeffrey, of Williams College. "It was recently played at the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity house. The bidding is unusual as nine bids were made before any passes occurred. The most extraordinary thing about it, though, is the fact that all four aces fell on one trick.

"The king of diamonds was opened. I trumped low and started pulling trumps from the jack up. Three rounds pulled all the trumps. Then I went to the board for the queen and jack of clubs, came back to my hand, cashed all my clubs and started running the spades from the bottom up. On the last trick I laid down the spade ace, and the rest of the aces fell on it."

North did well in refusing to let West's interference five-diamond call prevent him from responding to his partner's Blackwood bid, but his five-spade reply was technically incorrect. North's bid is five hearts, showing one ace after the intervening overcall raises the bidding level.

My time with you

My darling, out of every day . . . I carve a niche or two . . A little corner where I plan . . . To spend the time with you . . . It may be just an hour that . . Becomes our very own . . . Or merely minutes for the words . . . That fill the telephone . . . But every moment of that time . . . Is paradise for me . . . And all the rest of every day . . . Is like eternity . . . My darling, if I only had . . . Command of every tide . . . I would be living all my life . . Forever at your side . . . Because with every second and . . . With every season new . . . I cherish all your charms and I . . . Am more in love with you.
